GENEALOGIES OF BARNARD FAMILIES

The following pages contain the genealogical matter of the town of Barnard, Vt. Here have been brought together the vital statistics recorded in the town books, the cemetery inscriptions, manuscript records in old family Bibles now found in the homes of the descendants of the early settlers scattered far and wide, supplemented by such information as has been gleaned from a careful search, especially in the library of the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

Following the custom of their time the vital statistics for the early years of the town's history were presumably, for the most part, recorded in the book of the now long defunct Congregational Church. This book was sent many years ago to Wm. Portius Baxter of Chicago, Ill., and after his decease was taken by a relative to one of the Carolinas where it was soon after destroyed by fire. Thus priceless genealogical data have been forever lost. The town records do, however, contain much valuable data, the children of many families being recorded in family groups, while in other instances they are scattered about promiscuously in the records without rhyme or reason.

There is considerable data alphabetically arranged at the close of this work which could not be grouped under any of the families. The larger part of this consists of the record of single individuals or, at the most, of the names of a few persons of a single family whose connection with the family appearing elsewhere is either entirely unknown or not fully established.

This part of the work has been condensed and abbreviated as much as possible, but the abbreviations will be readily understood from the connection in which they are used.

The writer desires to express his gratitude for the unfailing courtesy and assistance of the several librarians, to the authors of genealogies printed, to the host of persons scattered all over the country who have answered freely and fully the many inquiries sent them and especially to some of this number who have rendered very valuable assistance concerning families which have not been heretofore traced. Without the help of one and all of these the work could not have been as complete as it is.

In several instances the writer, having more trustworthy information, has been able to correct errors in other works and this will account in some instances for discrepancies appearing. While great pains have been taken to make the work trustworthy it is unthinkable it should be free from mistakes.

In using this part of the work search should first be made under the names, arranged alphabetically by families, second, under detached names arranged alphabetically and, lastly, by use of the index where names not alphabetically arranged may be found.

EXPLANATION

It has been the aim of the compiler of the following pages to give as much information as possible in the space allotted. Consequently the work has been condensed to the limit and abbreviations freely used. The name of the state has been omitted when it was Vermont or when it had just before been mentioned and was clearly indicated by the context.

The following abbreviations have been freely used: abt. for about; b., born; bapt., baptized; Bd., Barnard; Be., Bethel; bur., buried; ch., child or children; d., dead or died; dau., daughter; Hdwk., Hardwick; Pom., Pomfret; pub. published; m., married; Rand., Randolph; res., reside, resided, residing; Roy., Royalton; s., son; Stock., Stockbridge; Tunb., Tunbridge; unm., unmarried; w. wife; wid., widow; Wood., Woodstock; yrs., years. Other abbreviations will be readily understood from the context.

The Arabic figures before the name of a person, except the numeral 1, indicates that a further and more complete record of the person will be given before the family record closes. An * before the name of a woman indicates that her complete record may be found in the family of her husband.

Children of a family are numbered consecutively with Roman numerals, grandchildren with lower case letters in parenthesis, great-grandchildren with lower case Roman numerals in parenthesis. In a few instances great-great-grandchildren are given and designated by Roman numerals in small capitals in parenthesis.

ABBOTT FAMILY

There were at least two families by the name of Abbott touching the town, but neither of them were here among the earliest settlers. The family of Abner Abbott came in by the way of Woodstock, while descendants of John Abbott of Stockbridge, came in from the opposite direction and at a somewhat later date.

The Abbotts were English people who settled first, Andover, Mass. After about three generations one branch of the family moved to Andover, Me., where Abner Abbott was born about 1779. As a young man he came to Woodstock, where in 1825 he met and married Laura Hammond. Some time in their early married life they came to Barnard and made their home in the colonial cottage, the first frame house on the Bicknell-Fort Defiance farm, the cottage which still stands not improved by attempts at modernizing. He was a first class cooper by trade and worked in the shop adjoining the house. The last months of their lives were spent at the home of their son John E. Abbott on Pond Brook.

ADAMS FAMILY

There have been several Adams families in town who are probably all related. Likely most of them trace back through Ensign Edward Adams to Henry Adams the first of Braintree, Mass., who is thought to have come to Massachusetts with his wife, eight sons and a daughter in 1632-3. He died October 6, 1640. This Barnard stock is of the same lineage as President John Adams and his son John Quincy Adams of Quincy, Mass. At least this is true of three of the groups here traced. The family of Samuel P. Adams of Chateauguay, Barnard, has not been traced.

The Adams name first appears in Barnard when John Adams of Kingston (now Granville) bought of Ezra Ball ninety-two acres of land near Benjamin Cox's place in the eastern part of the town, April 15, 1788. He bought seventy-five acres more on April 27, 1792, near the land of Ebenezer Cox and the following July 5th added to this land twenty-five acres more. April 27, 1792, he sold seventy-five acres. His land was on Broad Brook in the eastern part of the town.

This family was not long in Barnard. Indeed, to judge by the birth of the children, John was a rolling stone, for his offspring were born pretty nearly all over New England and a part of New York. Of his fourteen children, two were born in Barnard. After the birth of his son John W. he seemed to have a short stay in Old Hardwick and then returned to Barnard where his daughter Elizabeth was born. By 1795 he was probably permanently away from Barnard.

1. John Adams (Col. Andrew[6], Deacon John[5], Edward[4], John[3], Ensign Edward[2], Henry[1]), b. Milton, Mass., July 23, 1761; d. Worcester, Mass., Sept. 23, 1843; m. (1), Boston, Mass., Oct. 9, 1785, Elizabeth Welch, b. Charlestown, Mass., Feb. 15, 1759; d. Bd., Aug. 24, 1788; m. (2), Mar. 15, 1790, Sylvia Tobey, b. Sandwich, Mass., Dec. 29, 1765; d. Worcester, Mass., Mch. 30, 1839. As this family left town so early only the two ch. d. in Bd. are here given.

Children:

I. JOHN WADSWORTH, b. Bd., Aug. 14, 1788; d. Medfield, Mass., Sept. 18, 1816; m. Hannah Dean, Dover, Mass.; d. 1854. He was a baker, son of Elizabeth.

II. ELIZABETH W., b. Bd., Dec. 14, 1793; d. June 6, 1817, dau. of Sylvia.

Another family descended from Ensign Edward Adams was the family of Issachar Adams of Pomfret, who came into Barnard and remained for a much longer time.

1. ISSACHAR[6] ADAMS (Nathan[5], Obadiah[4], John[3], Ensign Edward[2], Henry[1]), b. West Medway, Mass., 1754; d. Jan. 18, 1829; m. June 17, 1776, Millicent Alden; d. Sept. 9, 1855, ae. 99-11-26.

AIKENS FAMILY

Since the year 1775 there has not been wanting the name of Aikens in the old town. For many days the name was very numerous and many not bearing the name were related to the Aikens clan.

James Aikens was a Scotchman who came to America and settled in Brookfield, Mass., where his children were all probably born. He married in Brookfield, October 15, 1718, Mercy Gibbs and became one of the pioneer settlers of old Hardwick.

Solomon Aikens bought five hundred fifty acres of land in Barnard, Sept. 2, 1775, to which he added twenty-five more acres four years later. May 25, 1781, he bought ten and a half acres more. This land was southeast of the head of "Stebbings' Pond" and a part of it is still known as "The Aikens Stand," a famous hotel of the early days, on the turnpike road maintained by Solomon, and his son Elijah Aikens after him. Here Lafayette stopped for refreshments when on his visit to the country he was making his journey to Montpelier.

Solomon Aikens sold a farm to his son James on April 21, 1780, and on June 12, 1784, sold one hundred fifty-three acres to Solomon Aikens, Jr., and one hundred sixty-one acres to his son Nathaniel. April 6, 1778, James Aikens bought one hundred acres to the north of the Aikens stand near Freeman and John Newton. The sons and daughters were all located near their parents.

The family was prominent in the town in the early days. When the town was organized, April 9, 1778, Solomon Aikens, Sr., was elected one of the selectmen. He was a useful man in the town and his children after him filled honorable place.

ALLEN FAMILY

The Allen family was numerous in Pomfret, Barnard and Royalton in early days and still has representatives in Barnard. The family was descended from Samuel Allen, born in England and came to Cambridge, 1632, removed to Windsor, Ct., 1635, where he died, aged 60 years. His wife, Ann, married (2) William Hurlburt of Northampton and died in 1687. The pioneer to come to this section was Elnathan Allen, a Revolutionary soldier, who settled on Allen Hill in Pomfret near East Barnard village. The writer is not positive as to his children, their number or the order of their birth, but from information coming from several sources assumes the four here set to him are probably correct.

1. ELNATHAN[5] ALLEN (Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Nehimiah[2], Samuel[1]), b. 1752; d. Pom., 1827; m. Sarah Gibbs, d. Pom., 1827. Was an early settler of Pom.

(b) JAMES T., m. Bd., May 23, 1827, Caroline Smith, dau. Samuel and Anna or Amy (Durkee) Topliff, b. Bd., Sept. 29, 1805.

(c) ISAAC (?), m. Bd., Dec. 5, 1813, Sally, dau Jesse and Hannah (Stearns) Kenney, b. Bd., Aug. 20, 1792. Isaac was of Braintree.

(d) ELIZABETH (?), m. Aug. 20, 1818, Asa Davis of Roy.

(e) JACOB (?), m. Mary ——.

(i) CAROLINE, d. Bd., Oct. 19, 1819, ae. 8 yrs.

Little but tradition is known of Jacob Allen. He was called a first-class shoemaker, lived on the north road where the iron kettle is, the buildings all long gone, possessed a powerful physique and was addicted to drink. He attended a Quaker meeting on Mount Hunger, perhaps at the Wing home, and broke it up by insisting the sisters dance with him. At another time he called at the home of Prince Haskell and asked for drink and being refused took Haskell by the throat, held his head against a post in the shed and threatened to cut off his ears with the axe which he swung uncomfortably close to Haskell's head, sticking it into the post on either side. For each of these offenses he served time in prison.

2. James Madison[7] Allen (Capt. Roswell[6], Elnathan[5], Ebenezer[4], Samuel[3], Nehimiah[2], Samuel[1]), b. Richford, Nov. 28, 1809; d. Bd., May 23, 1887; m. Apr., 1831, Huldah, dau. Aaron and Polly Smith, p. Pom.; d. Bd., Nov. 25, 1877, ae. 71-7-13. James Madison was called Madison. He lived a time in Roy. where he buried two small ch. Prob. came to Bd. 1850-60 and with his son lived on the place west of the Newcomb farm, buildings have been burned. After the d. of Milton's wife, father and son were gone West for a year but returned and lived in the small house north of the Timothy Newton place. Here Milton was employed making axe helves.

ANNIS FAMILY

This family has been in town only in recent time in the person of Frank A. Annis and his immediate family. They are descended from Charles Annis the immigrant who was born in Ireland in 1638; married May 15, 1666, Sarah Chase and the same year came to New England. He died December 19, 1717, and his wife Sarah was dead before 1726. The father of the Barnard settler seems to have lived in many places in New Hampshire and Vermont according to the birth of his children. For the past fifty years Frank A. Annis has lived in Barnard. At the present time, and for some years back, he lives alone in a house on the east side of the creek above the Morgan schoolhouse on the Bowen place. There was once a bridge over the creek in front of his house and the substantial abutment is still in evidence but the bridge has long been gone.

ATWOOD FAMILY

The first of the name in the country of whom we have record was John Atwood who came to Plymouth, Mass., 1643, and whose wife was Sarah Masterson. He was a person of considerable note, was Assistant to the Governor of Plymouth Colony for several years and treasurer of the colony from 1641 to 1644.

The Atwood families of Barnard seem to have come into town by the way of Bridgewater. Capt. Ebenezer Atwood and his wife Betsey resided in Bridgewater where his daughter Betsey was born in 1800, but he was a resident of Barnard in 1802 when his son Ebenezer, Jr., was born. This family lived in the south part of the town. Luke D. Atwood came with his father to Bridgewater but married and settled in Barnard on the north road where Mr. Hathorn now lives. Harrison C. F. Atwood also came into town from the same place and settled in the south part of the town. Abner Atwood and Lyman Atwood were residents of Bridegwater and some of their children became identified with Barnard. It is supposed that the Bridegwater homes of the Atwoods were in the part of the town adjacent to Barnard.

XIII. One child, name not given, d. young.

The following, together with much of what has gone before, was furnished by Mrs. Nancy Ann Sprague and is quoted from "History of Royalton," by Lovejoy.

"They were typical specimens of the early, sturdy, intelligent manhood and womanhood which developed in the land of the Puritans; and probably, to their having been born and reared in the rugged hills and climate of Vermont, and to their early training in the Purintanism of New England, may be attributed their well balanced characters.

"The Atwoods were of English descent. On my father's maternal side we are direct descendants of William Hammond and Elizabeth Penn. . . .

"I well remember my stately, handsome grandmother Atwood, who prided herself upon her Hammond-Penn pedigree. I believe my father inherited directly from her his sterling qualities. Though distinctly Puritanical in character and habits, he was not austere. He was strict in the discipline of his family, yet he was always genial and friendly with his children. It was not unusual for my father and mother to join us as we cracked our butternuts and jokes before the big open fire, or played our games of Blindman's Bluff in the old kitchen.

"My father was always interested in public and political affairs. He was for a term of years a member of the Vermont Legislature, and held various responsible offices affecting the welfare of his town and state. He gave liberally of his time and strength; of his money he had none to give.

"The Atwoods will be remembered as a musical family. My father was for many years leader of the church choir in Barnard, and later in Royalton, and, I think, was a factor in elevating the standard of church music. Our home was never without music. It was our pastime, and there never was a day without a concert. Whether quartettes, trios, solos, we never lacked performers, for we all sang. Most of my brothers played stringed instruments, in a self-taught and probably faulty manner; but the spirit of music was in them all and pervaded the home. Our library consisted of singing books. No pleasure could be keener than ours, when by hook or crook, we could procure a new singing book, were it a collection of anthems, fuges or glees. The music of our home circle is one of my dearest memories, notable mainly in the fact that we all sang and there were many of us.

"My father's family was of singular devotion to each other, and though I have now grown old, I cannot forget my happy life in that simple and unselfish circle. We had often to deny ourselves and forego pleasures granted our companions; but we were early taught the joy of sacrifice."

John Atwood, possibly a brother of Ebenezer Atwood, Sr., was of Deighton, Mass., in September 12, 1792, when he bought sixty-six acres of land of Joseph Foster, Jr., near John Herraden's in the south part of Barnard. He was still there in 1800 when the No. 2 school district was created. How long he remained there is not known. Quite likely he raised a family of children there.

1. William Dustin[7] Atwood (Philip[6], Jonathan[5], John[4], James[3], John[2], Harmon[1]) was descended from Harmon and Ann (Copp) Atwood who came to Boston in 1642 and died in 1651. AYRES FAMILY

There were two, and perhaps three, branches of this family in town. One was the family of Moses Ayres who came to town from Brookfield, Mass., and settled on the farm first west of the creek on the Smith Hill road to the Delectable Mountains.

The family of Dr. Henry C. Ayres was from Hartland and arrived in town much later.

There were traces of several others of the name who were here early and who were likely related to the family of Moses, but just how is impossible now to say.

The Moses Ayres family were descended from Capt. John Ayres of Ipswich and Brookfield, Mass., who was killed by Indians in their attack on the latter place, Aug. 3, 1675. His widow died in Ipswich, February 8, 1682-3. No record of the death of Moses Ayres or his wife Lucy is found in Barnard and no stones are erected to their memory. The names of the first eight children credited with their birth dates, together with the death dates of Dolly and Josiah, may be found in the records of Brookfield or in the "Ayres Family," by W. H. Whitmore. It is thought by the writer that James F. Ayres was probably a son of Moses and Lucy Ayres, born after they came to Barnard.

This branch of the family came to Barnard about 1792-3, the father, mother and probably seven children. The family was related to other Barnard families, probably to the Calvin Fairbanks family and the oldest daughter married Samuel Wood and settled near her father in Barnard.

1. Moses[5] Ayres (Capt. Moses[4], John[3], Joseph[2], Capt. John[1]), b. Brookfield; d. prob. Bd.; m. Brookfield, Mass., Jan. 1, 1777, Lucy Cutting, d. prob. Bd. He taxed in Bd., 1824.

Children:

*I. Lucy, b. Brookfield, Mass., Sept. 23, 1777; m. Samuel Wood.

II. Dolly H., b. Brk., July 29, 1779; d. unm., Brk., Nov. 19, 1841.

III. John, b. Brk., Sept. 16, 1781. May possibly have m. Hannah Winslow and if so was taken prisoner at Sacketts Harbor, May 29, 1813, and d. on board the prison ship in Quebec the same year. If this is true then he lived in Watertown, N. Y. Taxed in Bd., 1824.

IV. James, b. Brk., Sept. 27, 1783; d. unm. prob. Bd. at the home of Josiah Gale.

V. Josiah, b. Brk., Oct. 27, 1785; d. July 11, 1786.

VI. Isaac, b. Brk., May 27, 1787; d. unm., Bd., Sept. 30, 1800. The stone at his grave in the cemetery in Bd. village says, "in the 20 year of his age" and also calls him the son of Moses and Lucy Ayres, but the date on the stone would make him only thirteen years old instead of twenty.

VII. Josiah, b. Brk., Sept. 13, 1789; m. and lived in Bd. His widow went to Ware, Mass. abt. 1835.

*VIII. Lydia, b. Brk., May 21, 1791; m. Capt. Apollos Warner.

IX. James, prob. b. Bd., was a carpenter and with his family went to Ware, Mass., about 1835.

1. Peter Ayres, m. Esther Sumner. It is not thought they lived in Bd. but two of their children d. in Bd. and unless the clerk is mistaken in his return of the death of one of them then one was also b. in Bd.

Children:

*I. Polly, d. Bd., Feb. 4, 1860, ae. 73 yrs.; m. Henry Richmond.
II. Frederick, b. Bd.; d. Bd., Mch. 15, 1868, ae. 73.
III. Henry, b. Hartland; d. Bd., June 26, 1868, ae. 72; prob. m. Caroline ———. He was a teacher.
2. (a) Henry C., b. 1823.

2. Henry C. Ayres, M. D. (Henry[2], Peter[1]), b. Hartland, 1823; d. Bd., Apr. 5, 1862; m. Bd., June 23, 1853, Laura D., dau. Rev. Nathaniel W. Aspenwall, b. Warren, N. H. "Dr. Ayres was town clerk, a good singer and interested in the general welfare of the community and for all-around usefulness has never had his equal in town." He was a useful member of the Methodist church and a member of the choir. His home was the house still standing at the northeast corner of the town common, built by Squire Chaney and sold to the University of Vt. and later known as the Twombly house.

Children:

I. George Latimer, b. Bd., July 5, 1857.
II. Annie J., b. Bd., Mch. 25, 1860.
III. Harriette C., b. Bd., Aug. 5, 1862; d. Bd., Sept. 21, 1862. In this case the tombstone inscription has been followed as to death rather than the record in the town book which is manifestly incorrect.

BABBITT FAMILY

Capt. Abel (sometimes written Abiel) Babbitt was the Barnard pioneer. He bought one-fourth of a share, about one hundred acres of land, in the south part of the town of Samuel Tobey on May 20, 1779. He was called a "joyner" in his deed. He served continuously in the early wars and the Revolution and was with Colonel Winslow at the expulsion of the Arcadians. With him came to Barnard his son Abel and his daughter Bathsheba who married William Hathaway. Whether his son Benjamin came with him has not been definitely ascertained, but most likely he did. In 1807 he gave to his neighbor, Roger French, a deed to his land on condition that French support him and his wife Patience as long as they lived. Later his son Abel, Jr., had the land, giving to French a bond for the support of his father and Abel, Sr., went to live with him after the death of his second wife, Patience. This family was closely related by marriage to "the Hathaways, a wealthy and prominent family of Dartmouth," Mass. In later life Capt. Abel Babbitt was a very portly man. He was a prominent member of the Congregational church and noted for his regularity and punctuality in attendance.

1. Capt. Abel[4] Babbitt (Benjamin[3], Elkanah[2], Edward[1]), b. Berkley, Mass., Sept. 3, 1740; d. Bd., May 2, 1829; m. (1), Jan. 2, 1762, Elizabeth Hathaway, d. Bd., Jan. 22, 1807, ae. 62 yrs.; m. (2), Patience ———, b. abt. 1743; d. Bd., June 11, 1823. The date of his b. is as given in the genealogy of the family but his tomb stone says he was 87 yrs. old and that would make the year of his birth 1741-2.

Children:

I. Elizabeth, b. Berkley, Oct. 27, 1762; m. Taunton, Mass., Feb. 23, 1782, Abial, son Benjamin and Mary (Davis) Hathaway, b. Dec. 16, 1759.

†Note. The date of b. and d. of Benjamin is give above from the town book while the b. of Benjamin F. is not given as in the family genealogy. Evidently Benjamin F. was b. after the d. of his bro. Benjamin and the genealogist, not knowing of the d. of Benjamin, assigned the wrong date to Benjamin F. His wife was a talented woman.

V. George Wellman, b. Bd.; m. Three ch. in the West.

There was another Babbitt family in town for a time who were distantly related to the family of Capt. Abel Babbitt. Simeon Babbitt was left an orphan at an early age. He was placed with a farmer until he was fourteen years old and had small chance for schooling but became a good scholar. At age of fourteen he was apprenticed to Wm. Barry, a house joiner of New Salem, Mass., where he remained until he was twenty-one yrs. old when he was given a new suit of clothes, as the custom was, and with his books, tools and clothes in a bundle he set out into the world.

He came first to Barnard where he found employment with Aaron Barlow, a cabinet maker, and the following year married Mary, the daughter of his employer.

In 1815 he moved his family from Barnard to Bethel where he carried on the business of architect and builder, but was taxed in Barnard as late as 1824. He built the first hotel and the first meetinghouse in Bethel, both built in 1816. He was employed in other parts of the state in the erection of public buildings. He held many offices of trust. Was selectman, town clerk, justice of the peace and was ever a man of unswerving honesty.

1. Simeon[5] Babbitt (Simeon[4], Nathaniel[3], Edward[2], Edward[1]), b. Dartmouth, Mass., June 2, 1776; d. Be., Aug. 21, 1844; m. (1), Bd., June 20, 1799, Mary, dau. Aaron and Mary (Winslow-Terry) Barlow, b. Roch., Mass., Oct. 22, 1774; d. Be., Nov. 8, 1837; m. (2), Mrs. Abigail (Langdon) Scoville of Castleton.
Children:

I. Stillborn son, Bd., Mch. 25, 1800.
II. Zebina Terry, b. Bd., Jan. 16, 1801; d. Bd., Feb. 24, 1801.

III. Arnon, or Aaron, b. Bd., July 2, 1802; d. Mch. 3, 1829.
IV. Simeon Augustus, b. Bd., Nov. 17, 1806; d. July 9, 1877; m. Elizabeth McKinstry. Lived in Rand.
(a) Jennie E., d. Modesto, Cal., June 8, 1927, ae. 89 yrs.
(b) Dau., m. E. B. Silverthorn, lived in Modesto, Cal.
V. George Nelson, b. Bd., Oct. 18, 1813; d. Sept. 25, 1833.

The above children of Simeon Babbitt are recorded in the town book of Barnard, as to birth, however, the name Terry was added to Zebina from the family record and the record of the child younger is mutilated as to the name.

BADCOCK FAMILY

This name was sometimes spelled Babcock. The family did not make much impression on the town.

Enoch Badcock bought one hundred acres of land, lot No. 99, on October 19, 1779. It is not certain he ever came to town to live.

James, son of Timothy and Thankful (Reed) Badcock (James[4], James[3], John[2], James[1]), b. Stonington, Conn., July 5, 1770; d. Alexandria, N. Y., 1854; m. four times. Presumably on attaining his majority he decided to settle in Barnard for on March 14, 1791, he bought lot No. 143 and sold the westerly half of it on May 16th of the same year and the easterly half of the lot and the whole of lot No. 143 to Levi Chamberlin. He probably did not come to Barnard or if he did come he made a very brief stay.

Russell Badcock was a class leader on the Barnard Circuit in 1808 and 1809 and a local preacher from 1809 to 1811, in which latter year he was expelled from society. He appealed to the Annual Conference which met that year at the old meetinghouse on the north road in Barnard and the Journal of that body reads, "Took into consideration the appeal of Russell Badcock from the Quarterly Meeting Conference holden at Sharon for Barnard Circuit. Voted that the proceedings and decisions of the Quarterly Meeting Conference should not be reversed." It is not known that he lived within the bounds of the town of Barnard since the Circuit took in several towns in this vicinity.

BADGER FAMILY

This family had lived in Hartland before coming to Barnard sometime between 1825 and 1833. Here David Badger settled on the farm on the gulf road near South Barnard, still known as the Badger place. This farm at the foot of the gulf was occupied by his son Dorman and his grandson Charles.

1. David[1] Badger, d. Bd., Dec. 25, 1854, ae. 86 yrs.; m. Polly ———, d. Bd., June 30, 1861, ae. 85 yrs. Only the ch. of this family who appear in Bd. are known.

Children:

I. George W., b. Hartland; d. Bd., Aug. 19, 1874, ae. 74-11-17; m. Caroline M., dau. David and Elizabeth (Raymond) Rogers, d. Bd., Nov. 17, 1886, ae. 71-2-25. Both buried in So. Bd.

V. Daughter (probably Abbie J.), b. Bd., May 20, 1872; m. Bd., June 20, 1906, Alfred D., son Daniel F. and Frances A. (Roundy) Abbott. His 2d wife.
VI. Son, b. Bd., Dec. 27, 1873.
VII. Son, b. Bd., Mch. 28, 1876.
VIII. Son, b. Bd., Nov. 14, 1877.
IX. Willie C., b. Bd., Oct. 21, 1879; d. Bd., Sept. 25, 1884.
X. James E., b. Bd., Oct. 16, 1882.
Scott, son Chas. H. Badger, m. Wood., June 30, 1913, Helen, dau. David and Selina (Ruel) Morey, b. Mass.

Alton E. and Charles Badger have remained in South Barnard until recent days, one living on the homestead and the other on the adjoining farm to the south.

BALL FAMILY

Little is known concerning this family except what can be gleaned from the land records and a stray reference here and there.

Israel Ball of Barnard bought of Gideon Billings one-fourth right in the saw mill on broad brook in the Cox neighborhood, July 26, 1784. He had already bought on May 6, 1784, fifty acres of land of Thomas Swift in the same section of the town He had bought other land in the same section for he and Persis Ball (prob. his wife for she signed the deed with him) sold seventy-two acres to Levi Ball on April 21, 1785. He also sold his right in the saw mill and twenty-five acres of land in the "northeasterly part of Barnard" to Levi Ball on October 29, 1785.

Levi Ball sold to Ezra Ball of Barnard ninety-two acres on August 1, 1785, and to Sylvanus Washburn seventy-five acres on July 9, 1787. Ezra Ball sold his ninety-two acres in the east part of the town to John Adams on April 15, 1788.

Not far from the last date Ezra Ball of Barnard married Francese, daughter of Amos and Elizabeth Bicknell, born about 1767. She received a gift of one hundred acres of land from her father as a wedding present, the deed dated May 13, 1791. This land was on Mount Hunger near the Wing farm. She died in Barnard, August 5, 1793, aged twenty-four years and was buried on the point opposite the old Fort on her father's farm.

Ezra Ball of Barnard bought of Amos Bicknell eighty acres of land near Benjamin Clapp's on Mount Hunger, May 13, 1791. This was near the land given to his wife referred to above.

Joseph and Peter Ball lived in Woodstock, joined the fanatical sect of "Pilgrims" about 1817, led by Isaac Ballard, and went to New Madrid, Ohio, where they left the company.

BALLARD FAMILY

The name of Ballard appeared for a brief time in the early days. The family were also represented in the adjoining town of Pomfret.

Sherebiah Ballard, given as of Monson, Mass., bought one hundred acres of land in town on June 4, 1778. Exactly three years later he, then of Lebanon, N. H., sold the land to Ebenezer Sabin. The land was in the south part of the town. He served in the militia in Barnard in 1780. It does not appear that any of his children were born in Barnard but there are traces of him in New London, N. H., and Pomfret, Conn. A grandchild of his was born in Pomfret, Vt.

1. Sherebiah Ballard (John[4], Sherebiah[3], John[2], William[1]), b. Andover, Mass., May 9, 1745; m. dau. Andrew Emerson. Perhaps he went West with his ch.

Children:

I. Frederick, b. New London, N. H., July 17, 1780; d. Sparta, O., Nov. 6, 1868; m. 1805, Achsah, dau. Peneuel and Hannah (Slack) Everett, b. Feb. 18, 1784; d. Nov. 4, 1857. Ten ch. The third child was:

(a) Lydia, b. Pom., Vt., Jan. 17, 1811.

II. Andrew, b. New London, N. H., May 26, 1786; d. Decatur, O., Jan. 26, 1872; m. Nov. 22, 1810, Olive Barber, b. Newmarket, N. H., June 17, 1787; d. Aug. 14, 1870.

Another Ballard family was in school district number one, the central district, in 1800 but according to the census of 1790 was not here then. This was the Daniel Ballard family which came to Barnard from Pomfret, Conn., between 1795 and 1797.

1. DANIEL BALLARD of Pom., Conn., m. abt. 1784, Freelove Kinney of Stonington, Conn. How long representatives of this family remained in town is uncertain.

Children:

I. JOHN, b. Pom., Conn., Nov. 19, 1785; d. Oct. 4, 1849; m. (1), May 11, 1815, Laura Comstock; d. Apr. 1, 1824; m. (2), 1825, Elizabeth Weatherhead.
II. CHESTER, m. Bd., July 17, 1803, Anna Perkins of Bd.
III. JESSE.
IV. GEORGE.
V. HULDAH.
VI. EZRA. Perhaps went to Parishville, N. Y., Helena, Fort Covington, N. Y.
VII. DANIEL, b. Bd., June 1, 1797; d. Bd., Jan. 15, 1819.

Daniel is the only one of the children recorded in the Barnard town books. It is, therefore, assumed the family came to town between the birth of Ezra and the birth of Daniel.

BALLOU FAMILY

Rev. Hosea Ballou was the first settled pastor of the Universalist church in Barnard. There had been preaching of this denomination in this region, and quite likely in Barnard, before the time he was settled and a society had been formed in Woodstock which contained in its membership several Barnard names. In February, 1803, Mr. Ballou became the pastor of these people and moved his family to town from Hardwick, Mass., and remained here for six years during which time two of his children were born and one died in the town. While here he did much of his writing which contributed to his fame.

Rev. Mr. Ballou served a considerable circuit of which Barnard was a part. There is a tradition that while he lived in Barnard he resided in the house opposite the town common lately owned by the writer. So far as the writer knows this is only a tradition and no evidence has ever been adduced to prove its correctness. The writer rather prefers the other tradition which has been long current and was accepted by so good a local historian as the late Dr. Gardner Cox that he lived on the road from the head of the lake to the south over the hill to South Barnard, the first or second house off the main road. In early times a road went from the town common to and by these houses and this house would not be too far away from the church. The writer supposes the tradition concerning the former house to be mainly based on the fact that it was near Mr. Ballou's church and from the further fact that it was later owned by Mr. Blackmer, a supporter of that denomination. The land deeds do not help us at all in this matter as he was not a freeholder.

1. Hosea Ballou, son Rev. Maturin Ballou, b. Richmond, N. H., Apr. 30, 1771; d. Boston, Mass., June 7, 1852; m. Sept. 15, 1796, Ruth Washburn of Williamsburg, Mass.

Children:

I. Fanny, b. Hardwick, Mass., Oct. 13, 1797; d. Mch. 28, 1846; m. Oct. 7, 1827, Leonard Homes of Boston.
II. Hosea Faxon, b. Hdwk., Apr. 4, 1799; d. May 20, 1881; m. Mary Ballou and resided in Wilmington, Vt. A Universalist clergyman.
III. Massena Berthier, b. Hdwk., Nov. 28, 1800; m. Dec. 21, 1825, Mary S. Jacobs of Scituate, Mass. Lived in Stoughton, Mass. A Universalist clergyman.
IV. Cassendana, b. Hdwk., Jan. 9, 1803; m. Apr. 25, 1822, Joseph Wing of Boston.

VII. Elmina Ruth, b. Portsmouth, N. H., Apr. 3, 1810; d. New London, Conn., June 29, 1856; m. Oct. 26, 1831, Rev. Josiah C. Waldo.
VIII. Clemantina, b. Portsmouth, July 10, 1812; m. June 4, 1837, Col. Isaac Hull Wright of Boston.
IX. Fiducia, b. Portsmouth, May 1, 1814; m. Apr. 22, 1838, Abijah W. Farrar of Boston.
X. Maturin Murray, b. Boston, Apr. 14, 1820; m. Sept. 15, 1839, Mary A. Roberts of Boston. He was a publisher in Boston.

BANCROFT FAMILY

Timothy Bancroft was the Barnard pioneer and had his farm in the north part of the town. They were ardent supporters of the Methodist church which was not far from their home and Timothy and his wife are buried in the Methodist cemetery.

They probably came here from Nelson, N. H., where Timothy had a brother, Joel, and where his father and mother lived. The family was descended from Thomas[1] and Elizabeth (Metcalf) Bancroft, through Capt. Ebenezer[2] and Abigail (Eaton) Bancroft, of Lynnfield and two Timothys[3 and 4] who lived respectively in Dunstable, now Tynsgsboro, and Nelson, N. H. The father and mother of the Barnard pioneer were Timothy and Abigail (Taylor) Bancroft of Nelson, N. H. One daughter born in Barnard was named for her grandmother. There were, perhaps, other children of Timothy and Lucy (Day) Bancroft but we do not have the record of them.

1. Timothy Bancroft, b. prob. Nelson, N. H., Dec. 13, 1788; d. Bd., Dec. 17, 1848; m. Lucy Day, b. May 22, 1792; d. Bd., Dec. 2, 1871.

Children:

I. Rebecca M., b. Bd., Apr. 22, 1817; d. Roy., Nov. 1, 1884; m. Dec. 3, 1840, James H., son Polydore and Percia (Davis) Williams, b. Plainfield, Sept. 3, 1813; d. Roy., Nov. 27, 1893. They were both loyal Methodists. Three ch. b. in Roy.

BANNISTER FAMILY

Just where this family came from is something of a question. There is some reason to think they lived in Hartland before coming to the north part of Barnard and to Royalton, for Timothy Bannister was in both towns. Timothy may have been the son of Benoni Bannister who died in Royalton, November 17, 1798, aged 74 years, and is buried in the Howe cemetery in that town. Timothy died in 1822, his will having been made, August 10, 1822, and his estate in probate that same year. He paid no poll tax in Royalton in 1780 which would have made him born in 1759, provided he was living in town in 1780. In June, 1787, he bought a farm in Royalton Hill, probably having been previous to that a resident in Barnard. He was in the Royalton militia in 1780 and 1781, the former year as drummer and the latter year as fifer. He seems to have been in both towns during these years and only to settle down to steady ways and permanent residence in Royalton in 1787.

Jason Bannister was in Barnard in the census of 1790 with himself, his wife, two boys under sixteen and a girl in the family but in 1791 he was in the Royalton militia as a drummer.

The Timothy Bannister family only lightly touched the town by residence in it yet they lived so near the old Methodist meetinghouse, which was the center for social and religious life in that section, that they were closely identified with the people, even after they moved over into Royalton. His son, Alvin, lived in Barnard a few years after his marriage to a Barnard young woman and before they went West. Both Timothy, his dau., Achsah, and his son, Alvin, married into families living in the north part of Barnard. In the Windsor Riot.

BARLOW FAMILY

Between 1783 and the close of the century there were several Barlow families in Barnard. Aaron Barlow, a farmer and cabinet maker, who had a brief residence only in Old Hardwick, was the first to come to Barnard in 1783. Seven of his children came with him or soon after him. Here he became not only a farmer and cabinet maker but became a land speculator also. His first purchase of land was 550 acres, lots No. 135, No. 136, one-half of No. 137 and No. 153 which was a lot of two hundred acres, was made June 17, 1783. August 4, 1784, he sold one hundred acres to his son Joseph. On November 16, 1786, he sold three hundred fifty acres to his son Benjamin of which one hundred fifty acres was sold back to Aaron, September 1, 1788. On June 9, 1791, Aaron Barlow sold one hundred acres to his son Timothy and the following 26th of November sold a farm to Joshua Nye. This appears his first sale to one not of the Barlow name but it was not the last for in 1790 he had bought four proprietors' rights at vendue for taxes and two years following he bought another right of Prince Haskell out of which he immediately sold three hundred acres back to Haskell. Other land deals there were but it is not necessary to trace them. It would seem that some of this land lay in the west part of the town. It would also seem that the family did not long persist in the town after the children of the various families grew up.

Aaron Barlow was a leading man in town. He represented the town in the legislature in 1784, 1785, 1790, 1791, 1793, 1798 and 1799 and was a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1793. He was one of a committee to prepare Articles of Association for the First Congregational Church in Barnard to which he was dismissed in 1783.

No record of the second marriage of Joseph is found but the children are recorded in the town book in two separate groups. The broken record of names is eloquent evidence of careless use of the town book.

3. BENJAMIN[5] BARLOW (Aaron[4], Joseph[3], Moses[2], George[1]), b. Roch., Oct. 31, 1764; m. Bd., Nov. 30, 1786, Lovisa King. Lived in village 1800. Benjamin Barlow came to Bd. unm., bought land Nov. 16, 1786, and on the 30th day of the same month set up a new home on his farm. He was class leader, 1808-9 and local preacher in 1809 among the Methodists.

Just what time Nathaniel Barlow came to town is not known but he bought 100 acres of land on Sept. 1, 1778, and ten years later he bought another hundred acres, the westerly half of lot No. 137 and the easterly half of lot No. 138. He sold his first purchase in 1790.

Another Barlow family came to Barnard but probably did not arrive until after 1790 as the name does not appear in the census of that year. They came from Hardwick and seem to have been located in the east part of the town.

The above children of Moses Barlow were all baptized in Hardwick on September 29, 1782.

BARNES FAMILY

Elijah Barnes died at the old Belding-Barnes place off the creek near Newcombsville, July 14, 1816. The family are buried in the Methodist cemetery.

Margaret (Shay) Barnes was a sister of Capt. Daniel Shay, of Shay's Rebellion fame, and was a sister of Mrs. Abner Perkins, her neighbor in Barnard. Barnes was early prominently identified with the Methodists, was a class leader and one of the trustees who built the first Methodist meetinghouse on the Old Barnard Circuit in Barnard. He held office in the town as second constable and collector of taxes. At the time of their marriage Margaret Shay was living in Sherborn, Mass. The family soon moved to Hardwick, Mass., where the three oldest children were baptized, June 30, 1782, the father having become a member of the church on February 24, 1782. The family soon joined the migration of Hardwick families to Barnard, buying a small farm of one hundred acres on December 9, 1783. This land lay on the Royalton town line, near the Abner Perkins and Ellis Davis farms. Elijah, Jr., lived on the old place in a house now long gone. April 4, 1795, Elijah Barnes, Sr., bought lot No. 185 on the creek in Barnard just west of the mill dam in Newcombsville.

At the same time this family was living in Barnard there was a family of the same name living on the nearby Royalton hills. This has caused some confusion among some who have written but, so far as known, the two families were not related. Miss Chamberlin, who knew the children of Elijah Barnes, Sr., very well, is authority for the statement that the two families did not resemble each other. The Royalton family were dark complexioned with black eyes, while the Barnard family were light complexioned.

BARTHOLEMEW FAMILY

This family probably came into town not far from 1820 and settled near East Barnard village. This was an old New England family coming from Hingham, England, to Hingham, Mass., in the person of Henry Bartholemew. The family was later in Coventry, Conn., and then by the way of Hartland to Hartford, Vt., where the family of Luther, Sr., lived in the Jericho hamlet near the old Methodist church. In Barnard, Luther was prominently identified with the Methodists as Class Leader in 1836 and Steward in 1838 when the church was built and for some years after continued his interest.

BARTLETT FAMILY

Very little has been ascertained concerning this family save the list of children recorded in the town book and a few casual references. Joshua Bartlett built a dam on the brook coming down near the upper village schoolhouse, probably at the place where there still is a dam, some time before 1795 but the family is not reported in the census of 1790. On the upper creek in Chateauguay was a saw mill which went by the name of Bartlett's mill, even to recent times. It would seem as though Joshua Bartlett came to town between 1791 and 1794 and did not live long in town, having the list of children recorded while here, or that he came at some earlier date and left before 1790. In this latter case only a part of his children could have been born in town.

BEEDLE FAMILY

There were three families of this name touching the town who were probably all sons of Thomas and Hannah Beedle from Cornish, N. H. The family of Thomas J. Beedle was here but a brief time, his oldest child having been born in Weathersfield, and the second one in Barnard, the remainder being born in Royalton. Moses and Hiram Beedle began housekeeping in town and remained a somewhat longer time but from Barnard all the families moved over the Royalton line. "They were reckoned among the best citizens" wherever they lived. The Beedles were a musical family and from the number in the later generations was recruited the famous Beedle's Bell Ringers, famed for their entertainments. Albert Haller Beedle was the leader of the choir in the Congregational church in Randolph for many years and is well remembered by the writer. He was well regarded by the people of the town and entrusted with many town offices.

BELDING FAMILY

The name was spelled Belding in Barnard but has elsewhere been Belden, Beldin, and in early times was Bayldon or Balydon. They were an old English family, tracing descent back to Richard Belding, the immigrant ancestor, son of Sir Francis Balydon or Bayldon. Richard settled in Weathersfield, Conn., 1640, having come from County Yorkshire, England. From Weathersfield the family went to Hatfield, Sunderland and to New Hampshire and Vermont.

Two sons and a daughter of David Belding came to Barnard. They were Lieut. Moses Belding, who made Barnard his permanent home and whose children were here, and David Belding who was here for a few years and then moved on to Weybridge, Vt. Their sister, Dorcas, who married Abner Graves, also made her home in Barnard.

June 20, 1790, Thomas Chamberlin of Barnard sold one hundred acres of land directly west of the Brigham farm in the north part of Barnard to David Belding of Swansea, N. H., who about the same time bought three acres adjoining of Gideon Newton for the purpose of erecting a saw and grist mill on the creek. David Belding took into company with him in the mill venture Calvin Fairbanks who lived on the opposite side of Locus Creek and in this mill, or its successor, the first mill on the creek, was sawed the boards which went into making the first frame houses in this part of Barnard. Fairbanks soon sold out his interest in the mill to James Belding, son of Lieut. Moses Belding. About 1793 David Belding sold his interest in the mill to Calvin Fairbanks and moved to Weybridge where he was living when he sold his farm to his brother, Lieut. Moses, who was then in Barnard. In the meantime the mill had burned and the new partnership rebuilt it.

The buildings on the David-Moses Belding farm have long been gone. The house was gone before the writer can remember but a barn remained standing for some years. The land was combined with the Anson Newton land and owned by Mr. Newcomb. The mill and dam have now been long gone but within the recollection of the writer there was a thriving business done here by Wesson Newcomb.

March 12, 1804, David Belding bought for £20 that part of lot No. 77 lying east of Locus Creek, Thomas M. Wright selling the land. Here he built a house which was last occupied by "Aunt Ceney" Cole. The writer remembers the buildings well but they have now been long gone and the land was reunited with the Wright acres.

For much of the information concerning this family, with the exception of the two generations living in Barnard, the writer is indebted to Mrs. Maude (Belding) Perry of Roseville, Cal., a great-great-granddaughter of Lieut. Moses Belding of Barnard.

BELKNAP FAMILY

Simeon Belknap was one of the pioneers of Randolph and was captured by Indians on October 16, 1780, when Royalton was burned. After his return from captivity he was twice married. His first wife was Mary Gibbs. Seymour Belknap kept the store in East Barnard and his son, Julius Orlando, was a clerk. After the store was sold Julius Orlando continued in the employ of the Union Store as manager, accepting the position when but sixteen years old. He continued in trade in East Barnard until 1875 when he sold out and went to business in South Royalton.

BENJAMIN FAMILY

The following disconnected facts concerning these people are here given.

Capt. John Benjamin was in command of Fort Fortitude in Bethel, August, 1781.

John Benjamin, Esq., of Barnard and widow Lydia Steward of Barnard were married in Barnard, April 22, 1784. Tradition has it that they "went over the mountain" which probably meant they went to the west part of the state as several families did not far from that time.

John Benjamin, according to the census of 1790, was in Barnard with a wife and a son over sixteen years of age.

"John Benjamin, son of Caleb and Abigail (Livermore) Benjamin, died in Barnard. 'He married a sister of Mr. Gibbs' wife of Windsor' and had children: Caleb, John, Daniel, Ezra and Abigail." Quoted from "Burke-Alvord Memorial, page 194. He was probably born between 1732 and 1742. No record of his death in Barnard.

Sarah Benjamin was the second wife of Thomas, son of Rodolphus and Abigail Carver of Barnard and Royalton, being a householder in the Cox neighborhood in 1800 and also here in 1824.

Children of Ezra and Lucy Benjamin:

I. Lucy, b. Roy., 1797.
II. Keziah, b. Roy., 1798.
III. Isaac Avery, b. Roy., 1800.
IV. Prudence, b. Roy., 1803.
V. Olive, b. Roy., 1805.

Widow Lucy Benjamin left Royalton and went to Preston, Conn., in 1813.

BERNARD FAMILY

The name of the town was originally spelled Bernard and John and Ira Bernard were two of the original proprietors but it is not known that either of them ever came to town.

Joshua Barnard bought of Moses Bruce one hundred acres of land July 9, 1793. Francis Barnard bought at vendue the original right of Jesse Hallowell, August 22, 1789. Probably neither of these men ever came to town to live.

1. Samuel Bernard (Samuel[6], Benjamin[5], Benjamin[4], Robert[3], Stephen[2], Robert[1]), b. Jan. 3, 1789; m. Huldah ———. He was the son of Samuel and Hannah (Laughton) Bernard of Harvard, Mass.

BICKNELL FAMILY

Among the early settlers in the northwest part of Barnard was Amos Bicknell, Sr., who bought several hundred acres of land in that section including the old Bicknell-Hammond, or Fort Defiance farm, and land to the west of that and land lying north of the Timothy Newton farm (at that time the Newton place embraced the Brigham farm), extending to the town line and into the northwest corner of the town. From this last mentioned purchase came the Gideon Newton farm and the mill site at Newcombsville. His first purchase of land for which he paid £600 was the original right granted to Thomas Kirk and the right granted to Isaac Dickman and a half right granted to Patrick Burt. This purchase was made from Jonathan Grout of Petersham, Mass., and Bicknell was given as of the same town when the deed was made on May 4, 1779. The Burt right of two hundred acres was sold to Seth Hudson for £200, June 5, 1780. On June 20, 1786, Bicknell pitched lots No. 191, No. 192, No. 193 and No. 194 to the original right of Isaac Dickman and No. 106, No. 115, No. 122 and No. 130 to the original right of Thomas Kirk and No. 179 and No. 180 to the original right of Patrick Burt and No. 121 and No. 131 to the original right of Thomas Bentley, "said lots lying in the north westerly corner of Barnard." June 5, 1780, Seth Hudson sold a half right granted to Thomas Bently and pitched by James Hawkes for £200 to Bicknell, the land being 200 acres. Thus Bicknell had practically exchanged the land on the creek north of the Brigham farm for an equal amount adjoining his land on Mount Hunger. In this last mentioned deed Bicknell is given as of Barnard and is styled "Gent." These deeds would seem to place the time of his coming to Barnard as a permanent resident between May 4, 1779 and June 5, 1780. Doubtless he was here in 1779 for at the time of the Indian raid he already had a log cabin and land under cultivation. Other land transactions are as follows: November 8, 1783, he sold one hundred acres, lot No. 164 in the northwesterly part of Barnard to Elihu Hotchkiss of Petersham, Mass. He sold Moses Rowell lot No. 188 on Mt. Hunger, September 7, 1790. He gave his daughter, Francese (Bicknell) Ball, one hundred acres next the land of Mr. Wing, May 13, 1791. He sold Joseph Bowman, Jr., five hundred acres, one-half right of Governor Wentworth, and lots No. 156 and No. 160 out of the right of Thomas Bentley on May 23, 1793. On December 18, 1793, he sold land in the westerly part of Barnard to Brigham Eaton of Hartford. July 10, 1790, he bought the original right of Thomas Bently at vendue. On January 6, 1791, he and Aaron Barlow bought at vendue the original right of Gov. Benning Wentworth.

Amos Bicknell was with John Whitcomb, Solomon Aikens, and Prince Haskell under Benjamin Stebbings in the Windsor Riot, attempting to prevent the court of common pleas from sitting in Windsor, October 31, 1786. An indictment was found against him by the grand jury but the writer has been unable to find whether he ever was brought to trial.

The early generations of the Bicknells were buried in the old Fort Point cemetery, opposite the log house of Amos Bicknell and east of the present main road on the south side of the brook. When it was seen that the creek was working that way and would eventually wash out that land and at the time Captain Bicknell died in 1841 the members of the family interred there were taken up and buried in the Barnard village cemetery. Within the recollection of the writer some of the stones were in evidence in the old cemetery and some graves of others were in evidence there but now it has been partly washed away and the rest has been plowed over and a garden was growing there in 1924. Few will know a cemetery was ever there.

The Bicknell log house, around which the picket fort was built stood on the south side of the brook about where the present cottage house now stands which was built by Henry Putnam. The first frame house on the farm is the colonial cottage which still stands on the Mt. Hunger road, just off the main highway.

BIGELOW FAMILY

The Bigelow name appeared three generations in Barnard and a fourth generation in the adjoining town of Royalton. The Barnard immigrant was Eliphaz (Isaac[5], Isaac[4], Sergeant Isaac[3], Samuel[2], John[1]) Bigelow. John[1] Bigelow was baptized in England, February 16, 1617; died Watertown, Mass., July 14, 1703; married Watertown, October 30, 1642, Mary Warin (Warren), who died October 19, 1691. It is claimed that the English ancestry of the family is traced back in England to King Richard, 1243, and that the Warin (Warren) ancestry runs through Capetian and Carolingian lines to Cimmerian kings on the shores of the Black Sea.

For two generations, in Isaac[5] and Isaac[4], the family was located in Colchester, Conn., and from there came to Putney, where Eliphaz was born. Soon after attaining his majority Eliphaz Bigelow appeared in Barnard about 1790 but does not appear to be a land owner at that time. About 1795 he bought land on Royalton hill near the town of Barnard and lived there for ten years and then returned to Barnard and bought land west of Fort Defiance—probably the farm called the Lesure-Townsend farm and possibly the land across the brook owned by Walker and Paige. About 1816 he relinquished the farm to his son, E. Dana Bigelow and bought the Barnes place on the creek next to the site of the old saw mill and here he died.

Eliphaz Bigelow early cast in his lot with the Methodists who built their first meetinghouse not far from his home near the Royalton line and he continued steadfast until the end in his support of this work. He was one of the first local preachers in the Old Barnard Circuit, probably getting his license soon after 1800 and holding it, with the exception of two years, until his death in 1844. He was one of a famous group of local preachers of his time on the old circuit and assisted the circuit preachers through the large circuit.

BILLINGS FAMILY

Since about 1783 to 1925 there has been some representative of the Billings family owning land in town.

Lieut. Daniel Billings of Hardwick bought of Lot Whitcomb three hundred acres of land lying in the northeasterly corner of the town of Barnard, June 2, 1779, and on August 30, 1785, sold the same, lot No. 152, to his son Gideon who was already a resident of Barnard having bought a farm lying on the Pomfret line from Joseph Marsh on September 28, 1783. In this deed from Marsh he is given as of Old Hardwick, not yet having become a permanent resident of the town and is also called "cord-winder" (sic). In Barnard he was not only a worker in leather but also a wheelwright and Cox says most of the early gravestones in town were quarried on his farm and carved by him. August 18, 1788, Gideon Billings bought of Samuel Steward of Barnard one hundred acres of land, lot No. 71, lying north of Jesse Kenney's land on the north road. It was in this section that Gideon or his son, finally made the home which remained in the possession of the clan until sold by Melvin Henry Billings.

Gideon Billings sold one hundred forty acres of his land in the east part of Barnard, June 20, 1778, to Joseph Ellis of Walpole, N. H., containing the southerly part of lot No. 52. This land has been more recently known as the Elwin Morse place in East Barnard. On November 12, 1778, Gideon sold twenty-five acres in the same region to William Walcott of Pomfret. He was thus disposing of his land in the east part of the town while making his home on the north road.

Gideon Billings was in the Revolution in 1778, when he was nineteen years old and was described as being of light complexion.

Lieut. Daniel Billings, the father of the Barnard pioneer, was born in Sunderland, November 21, 1731; died Hardwick, Mass., December 23, 1787; married Hardwick, February 23, 1758, Mary, dau. of Capt. Benjamin and Alice (Merrick) Ruggles of Hardwick, born May 7, 1738; died June 8, 1835. Paige in his "History of Hardwick" gives the death of Daniel as occurring in 1778, but in this he seems to have been in error as has been found elsewhere in transposing the last two figures of the date. The reason for placing the date of death of Daniel as late as 1787 and later than 1778 is primarily that he deeded land in Barnard to his son Gideon Billings on August 30, 1785, and there is no other known Daniel Billings who was old enough to make a deed in 1785. Moreover had he died at the date Page gives his youngest child would have been posthumous, perfectly possible, but the father would have died at the rather early age of forty-seven years and his widow being only forty years old, would likely have married again, a thing she did not do.

1. The Barnard pioneer was GIDEON BILLINGS (Daniel[5], Samuel[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], Richard[1]) who came of an honored New England family. Richard Billings was in Hartford, 1640, but in 1661 he removed to Hatfield where the family remained for two generation after his day. Samuel[4] Billings, born in Hatfield, removed to Sunderland where most of his ch. were b., but shortly after 1739 he removed to Old Hdwk. where the family remained for several generations. There is no evidence that Daniel Billings, the father of Gideon Billings, ever lived in Bd. His ch. were all b. in Old Hdwk.

BLACK FAMILY

The Black family seems to have been much given to moving about as traces of them are found in Augusta, Me., Saxtons River, and Westminster, Vt. At what time the family appeared in town is not certain and whether Zenas H. Black was the first to come is a question. The home of the family while in Barnard was near East Barnard village.

1. Zenas H. Black, b. abt. 1790; d. Bd., June 17, 1866; m. Beulah Snow, b. abt. 1780; d. Bd., Feb. 21, 1878.

BLACKMER FAMILY

For much of the following information supplementing the town records of Barnard the writer is indebted to Rev. Anson Titus and Rev. Alvan M. Smith of Williamstown. The name was spelled Blackmore until about the time the family came to Barnard when Blackmer was the accepted spelling of the name.

1. WILLIAM[1] BLACKMORE, b. in Eng. abt. 1636, came to N. E. in 1665, settled in Scituate, Mass., and the following yr. m. Elizabeth Banks. He was killed by Indians on Apr. 21, 1676. Their oldest ch. was Peter[2] Blackmore, b. prob. Sandwich, Mass., May 25, 1667; d. Roch., Mass., Apr. 17, 1717; m. Elizabeth ———, b. 1673; d. Roch., May 13, 1711; m. (2), Sarah Edwards. They lived in Roch., Mass., where the family remained until the migration to Bd. To Lieut. Peter Blackmore and his wife Elizabeth were b. eight ch. as well as three ch. by his second m. The fifth ch. of Peter and Elizabeth Blackmore was William[3] Blackmore, b. Roch., Mass., Oct. 11, 1699; m. Sarah ———. To William Blackmore was b. in Roch. at least nine ch., of whom three sons migrated to Bd., Hollon[4], Timothy[4] and William[4]. It would appear that the first to come was William Blackmer who bought nine hundred acres of land, Dec. 18, 1779. He sold lot No. 111 of one hundred acres to his brother, Hollon, Apr. 13, 1782, and lot No. 112 to his brother, Timothy. Timothy also bought the northeast corner of lot No. 111 from his brother Hollon on which Hollon was living Aug. 20, 1788. These three lots were on Pond Brook.

BLANCHARD FAMILY

Just what time this family arrived in town is not definitely known but they were here probably before the beginning of the century on their farm in Chateauguay section of the town near the Stockbridge line. The record of the birth of the children of Aaron and Olive Blanchard and a few of the marriages and deaths of the same is from the family Bible of Aaron Blanchard, now in the possession of his great-grandson, George A. Whitney of Athol, Mass. It is the understanding of Mr. Whitney that the children of Aaron were all born in Barnard, but the "History of Royalton" gives the birth of Warren, the second child, as of Ackworth, N. H. It is definitely known that some of the later children were born in Barnard and it is quite probable the family came here with some of the older children and the birthplace of Warren may give a clue as to the place from which they came.

Joseph Blanchard of Amherst, N. H., owned three rights or shares of land in Barnard which he sold to Asa Taylor of Ringe, N. H., on July 1, 1779. There is no evidence that Joseph lived in town.

The burial place of the Blanchards has not been found but as the family lived in the west part of the town and others of the name are known to have lived in the Stony Brook section of Stockbridge, near by, it is possible the family lot was in the cemetery in that town.

BOWEN FAMILY

There is evidence that the children of Jonathan Bowen and David Bowen touched Barnard somewhat in early days and that grandchildren of Thomas remained here. The wife of Thomas Bowen was a Barnard woman and one of his children, at least, was born here. Two of his daughters married Barnard men and lived in town and two of his sons lived here. The Jonathan Bowen home was on the Royalton hills not far from the Barnard line, while the Barnard Bowens, like the McCormicks, lived in Barnard Chateauguay.

BOWMAN FAMILY

In early days there were two families of the name in Barnard who were not related, so far as known. One was the family of the Rev. Joseph Bowman, first pastor of the Congregational church in Barnard, and the other was the family of Joseph Bowman who came to Barnard from Old Hardwick. As each of these men has a son bearing the name of his father it has occasioned some confusion in tracing the land transactions. Joseph, Jr., son of Rev. Joseph, was a land speculator and in his deeds was styled a trader and many hundred acres of Barnard land passed through his hands. He eventually failed in business in Barnard and moved to Gardner, Me. His father, Rev. Joseph, lived and died in Barnard.

1. Joseph Bowman (Jonas[5], John[4], Francis[3], Francis[2], Nathaniel[1]), b. Bedford, Mass., Sept. 19, 1752; d. Roy., Aug. 17, 1815; m. (1), Rebecca, dau. Between 1789 and 1794 he moved over into Roy.

Rev. Joseph Bowman, the first settled minister in Barnard, graduated from Harvard in 1761 and on August 31 of the following year was ordained to the work of the Christian ministry in the Old South Church of Boston with the purpose of going as a missionary to the Indians about the head waters of the Susquehannah River. His stay among the Indians was only about one year owing to the unwillingness of the Indians to receive him and to the fact that war had broken out among them. On his return he at once became pastor of the church in Oxford, Mass., where he remained until the close of the Revolution. During the siege of Boston he served as Chaplain in Ebenezer Larned's regiment—Larned being one of his parishioners. He was a man who loved peace and harmony but owing to the changed conditions following the war he had his full share of trouble, many of his parishoners in Oxford refusing to pay the ministerial rate. Yet he left the town with the respect of all parties and most commendable resolutions were passed by his parish. In Barnard much the same condition existed as to dissenters. When he came to the town in 1785 there was an unfinished house of worship on the common. He lived to see a modern house completed near the south end of the common and within the bounds of the present cemetery and remained the pastor of the flock as long as he lived. He was a good man and a strong supporter of what he held to be right, being honored by his ministerial brethren and being a trustee of Dartmouth College.

Mr. Bowman drew his ministerial right a short half mile south of the common, April 22, 1785. It consisted of two hundred acres of which he sold a part to his son and reserved about fourteen acres for his own use. This was the place lately owned by Rollin Abbott, the house on the east side of the road and the barn and land on the west side.

BRIGGS FAMILY

Clement Briggs, according to his own testimony, was living in Southwark, England, in 1616, and was then a felmonger or dealer in pelts and hides. He was probably born about 1600 and he came to New England in the ship "Fortune," landing at Plymouth, November 9, 1621. He removed to Dorchester in 1627 or 1630 and to Weymouth before 1633 and died at Weymouth before October 24, 1650, when his will was proven. He married first, Joan Allen of Dorchester; married second, Elizabeth ——— of Plymouth about 1639-1640. She died in 1691 as her will was proven August 11 of that year. Traces of the family from whom the Barnard pioneer came are found in Weymouth, Berkley, Scituate, Taunton and Ashford.

The Barnard pioneer was Capt. Ephriam Briggs, a soldier of the Revolution and an officer in the militia of Vermont. His service in the Revolution was as a private and sergeant. In the War of 1812 he served as a Captain in the Regiment of Col. J. Williams on detached service from December, 1812 to May, 1814.

When Ephriam Briggs was fifteen years of age he was assisting his uncle in a blacksmith shop but a little later he was apprenticed to Mr. Fisher of Ashford, Conn., to learn the carpenter's trade. It was from this place he enlisted at the time of the Lexington alarm and was made a Sergeant in Maj. David Smith's Co., 8th Conn. Regt., June, 1777, he received an injury to his right thumb and was granted a furlough and took occasion to visit his uncle, Simeon Dean, in Woodstock, Vt. This was during an epidemic of camp fever and his knowledge of carpentry made him a useful member of the community as he was employed making the coffins to bury the dead. He could probably the better do this as he was left handed and the injury to his right hand did not completely cripple him. It was probably during this visit that he met Rhoda Whitcomb whose father was the agent of the proprietors of Barnard and who lived in Barnard and Woodstock, as his deeds show.

June 4, 1779, Ephriam Briggs bought of Philip Jurden of Hardwick, Mass., one hundred fifty acres of land in the south part of Barnard, lot No. 189 and the northerly half of lot No. 190. Here he built his log cabin and in 1796 built the frame house in which he died in the home of his son, Benjamin. July 10, 1790, he bought the original right of James Halliwell. The farm eventually consisted of 235 acres and passed out of the Briggs family on February 17, 1836.

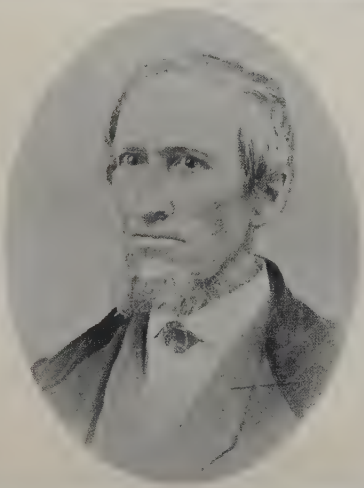
BRIGHAM FAMILY

Capt. Asa Brigham was the Barnard pioneer. Capt. Asa was Captain of the Second Co. of militia in Shrewsbury in 1774. He was descended from Thomas and Mercy (Hurd) Brigham who was born in England, probably 1603, and died in Cambridge,



Alexander Briggs

Asa Barnard Briggs

Ephriam Dean Briggs

Flavius Josephus Briggs

Mass., December 8, 1653. The family lived in Marlboro and Westboro. They gave a good account of themselves in succeeding generations, occupying the ancestral acres in Barnard for three generations and were good citizens of the town. They were all identified with the Methodist church and were among the first fruits of the preaching of John Langdon in Barnard before 1800. Captain Brigham was one of the trustees who built the first Methodist meetinghouse in Barnard in 1806.

The wife of Captain Brigham had two brothers and a sister settled in Barnard before they bought their farm in 1783 and another brother followed to town soon after. Timothy Newton sold one of his lots, No. 75, to Captain Brigham, January 6, 1783. So there were four related families on adjoining farms on Locus Creek, Thomas Martin Wright, Timothy Newton, Capt. Asa Brigham, Gideon Newton. John Newton lived about four miles away toward the east in the Cox neighborhood.

Captain Brigham built his log house on the west side of the present highway in the present pasture and not far from the Newton farm line. The cellar hole was visible in the writer's boyhood days and the remnants of the wall are still seen which fenced in the orchard lot about the house. At some later time they moved across the creek and built the house still standing, which so far as known, is the only frame house built on the farm.

Alden Brigham and his children are well remembered by the writer. He was a tall and dignified old gentleman who in his old age often wore a black coat, high stock and silk hat and carried a cane.

Dennis Smith Brigham succeeded his father in the possession of the farm and his children were born there. In addition to his farm work he engaged in the nursery business. He finally gave up the farm, lived in several different places and located in Brattleboro, where he died and is buried. All the Brighams who died in Barnard find burial in the Methodist cemetery.

Dr. Charles Wesley Brigham studied medicine and practiced his profession in Pittsfield, where he was extensively engaged in lumbering and where he kept a general store. One of his sons is a physician and one a lawyer.

BROWN FAMILY

The Robert Brown family settled on the side of the Delectable Mountains near Mount Hunger where for two generations the family resided. The burial place for this family is in the Nye cemetery near their home. Others of the name find burial in the cemetery at the village. The family was in town as early as 1810. Where they came from is unknown. Joseph Brown of Willington, Conn., bought two hundred acres of land, May 15, 1780, and it seems to have been in the Mt. Hunger section. There is, at present, no evidence he ever came to the town.

BUCKMAN FAMILY

The Buckman family in Barnard was located not far from the Pomfret town line in the person of Abner Buckman who came to town an unm. man as early as 1814. William Buckman who was probably born about 1751 was living in Barnard in 1840 as a pensioner and was then 89 years old. He may have been the grandfather of Abner Buckman but not more is known of him. There were two Buckman families who located in Bethel.

BUGBEE FAMILY

The Bugbee family was descended from Edward, born 1594, and Rebecca Bugbee who came from England in the "Francis" in 1634 and settled in Roxbury. For the four following generations the family was in Woodstock, Conn. From Woodstock the family removed to Ashford, Conn., where Abiel, the pioneer of these regions, was born in 1746. As an unmarried man he moved to Union, Conn., and married Hannah Harwood of Sutton, Conn. They went to Ashford where they lived until about 1780. Then they lived in Union, Conn., six or eight years and in 1788 came to Pomfret. In this town two of his younger children were born. With this family came to Pomfret the family of Increase Hewett, whose daughter married Abiel Bugbee, Jr.

The place of the family in Pomfret was near the Barnard town line, not far from the East Barnard village and the family were rather closely identified with Barnard interests. What can be gleaned is here given.

There are traces of another family of the name, related to this family as they were from Woodstock, Conn., who owned land in Barnard next to Pomfret. The information concerning this family is very meager. On April 18, 1788, Daniel Bugbee sold to Cyril, his son, one hundred ten acres of land in Barnard "on the Pomfret line." Cyril Bugbee of Woodstock, Conn., sold this land to his brother, Daniel Bugbee, Jr., August 18, 1789. As yet the writer has no definite knowledge that Daniel, Sr., or Cyril lived permanently in Barnard.

For the history of this family in the early generations the writer is indebted to Mr. E. Holmes Bugbee's manuscript genealogy in the Genealogical Library in Boston. Valuable information concerning the later generations was furnished by Mr. O. C. Ellis of Barnard.

BUTMAN FAMILY

This family was in town early but little can be found concerning them. On August 28, 1780, William Butman, then of Barnard, bought fifty and one-half acres of land. Ten years later his family is given in the census as consisting of himself, his wife, one male over sixteen years of age and one under sixteen. Tradition says he was an Indian Wars man and that he is buried in the cemetery in the village, if so then without stone.

Jeremiah Butman died in Barnard, Mch. 4, 1792. He had married Abigail ——— who was born about 1714 and died in Barnard, July 2, 1791. Tradition also gives this man a place in the Indian Wars.

BYAM FAMILY

1. Joseph Byam was of Old Hdwk., where he sold his farm on Nov. 6, 1775, and came to Bd. Here he bought a farm May 14, 1776 which was east of the Seth Dean place and near the head of the gulf. June 25, 1779, he enlarged his farm by buying fifty acres more which was the southerly half of lot No. 5 which adjoined his former purchase and was next to Asa Cheedle's and Joseph Foster's land. He sold his land to John Herraden in 1786 and is not afterward heard from in town. At the town meeting held in Barnard, 1778, he was elected first constable. He was in service in Bd., Aug. 1, 1780, for one day.

Child:

I. Sally, b. Hdwk., Sept. 3, 1775. It is supposed she came to Bd. with her parents but nothing more is known of her.

BYRAM FAMILY

There is a statement, with what authority the writer knows not, that Moses, Joseph and James Byram, all Revolutionary War men, came to Barnard. The writer only knows definitely of James Byram who bought one hundred ten acres of land, the Orison Boyden farm, west of the Osborn Paige place, on April 25, 1780, but he does not appear to have brought his family to town for some five years thereafter. This branch of the family had been in Hardwick for a few years before coming to Barnard but before that the seat of the clan was in Bridgewater, Mass.

1. Theophilus Byram, m. Elizabeth Beale. It is not understood they came to Bd.

CADWELL FAMILY

This family was of old New England stock from the vicinity of Hartford, Conn. Horace Cadwell, the Barnard pioneer, came from Wilbraham, Mass., and lived on a portion of the Crowell farm in the Aikens neighborhood. His marriage to Mary Crowell appears to be his second marriage, but we have no record of the first wife.

CADY FAMILY

This family was not among the very early settlers but probably came about 1818 when Chester Cady was located in the house on the main road on the creek opposite the old Brigham house. He was a blacksmith and had a shop in the garden lot next the house. He was also engaged in teaming to Boston, Troy and Albany, N. Y., and intermediate points and to Whitehall, and Fort Ann. His son, Samuel, went with his father driving a two-horse team when not more than ten years of age. Somewhat later the family moved to the village and built the two-family two-story house opposite the village schoolhouse, now torn down. Here Chester and his wife died. The family came to Barnard from Ely, where their first children were born.

CALL FAMILY

This name appears in connection with the town very early but none of the name seemed to remain here.

Tradition has it that James Call chopped the first wood in Barnard in 1774 but left in the fall and did not return. What foundation there is for this tradition Thompson fails to state and Cox seriously doubts its reliability.

Ebenezer Call who was given of Barnard on November 29, 1779, sold one hundred acres of land to Joseph Foster. This was fifty acres off the east end of lot No. 9 and fifty acres to the west. At what time he came into possession of this land the writer has not yet found out. He seemed to be a "wandering Jew" for he was constable in Hartland, tything-man in Barnard in 1778, and a citizen of Woodstock together with his brother, Joe, who was the all-around strong man of the county, the champion wrestler of his day.

Silas Call, with a family consisting of a wife and no children, was the head of a household in Barnard according to the census of 1790.

CAMPBELL FAMILY

The name seems to have been first spelled Cambell and later appears as Campbell. The family came early to Pomfret, probably near to East Barnard village, and became identified with Barnard families by marriage and by residence in Barnard of some of the later members of the clan. From the birth of one of the children of Sylvanus it would seem the family came from Andover, Mass. There is some uncertainty concerning the family of Sylvanus but the following seven children have been assigned to this family. The order of their birth is not certain.

1. Sylvanus Campbell, b. abt. 1767; d. Oct. 16, 1847; m. Mercy or Marcy ———, b. abt. 1773; d. Jan. 21, 1849.

CARLIN FAMILY

Thomas, son of Thomas and Catharine Carlin, came to America from County Cavan, Ireland, in 1827. He was for a time in Keene, N. H., and about 1845 bought part of the Amos Carroll place above Bartlett's Mills in Chateauguay, where the family lived and where he probably died. His second wife was a woman much younger than himself who had a family of children of her own and who also bore him two children. So there were three sets of children in the home, giving rise to "mine, yours and ours." This was one of the first Irish Catholic families to come to town. Probably the older members of the family are buried in the Catholic cemetery in Keene, N. H.

CARPENTER FAMILY

The Carpenter family which touched Barnard for a brief time was descended from William Carpenter who came to New England in the ship "Bevis" in 1638. With him came his wife Abigail and his son William. The family came to Barnard from Old Hardwick where Gideon, the father of the Barnard pioneer, moved from Dudley, Mass., having lived in Pomfret, Conn. He was in the Revolution from Woodstock, September, 1778, for five days.

Nathan Carpenter was of Hardwick when he bought one hundred acres of land, lot No. 82, in Barnard, May 6, 1777. He sold this land on September 7, 1784. On November 5, 1787, William Culver of Barnard sold Nathaniel Carpenter of Pomfret twenty-five acres of land near the Pomfret line in Barnard and three days later Carpenter bought between ten and eleven acres more of Gideon Billings in the east part of the town. Carpenter seems to have moved around a good deal. He lived in Stockbridge, Barnard, Royalton, perhaps Pomfret, Rochester and in the first house built in East Middlebury.

For much of the following information concerning Nathan Carpenter the writer is indebted to Dr. W. A. Dewey of Middlebury.

1. NATHAN CARPENTER (Gideon[6], Nathan[5], Samuel[4], Samuel[3], William[2], William[1]), b. Feb. 6, 1751; d. Middlebury, Feb. 11, 1842; m. (1), Hdwk., Mch. 15, 1773, Anne, dau. Capt. Ebenezer and Elizabeth (Wight) Cox, b. Mch. 13, 1755; d. Bd.; m. (2), Bd., May 8, 1788, Hannah, dau. Eleazar and Sarah (Pool) Lurvey, and widow of John Andrews, b. Gloucester, Mass., after 1756; d. Hancock. The family came to Bd. as early as 1787. Lived in Bd. until after birth of Hannah's second child.

Children:

I. EBENEZER, b. Hdwk., Nov. 10, 1773.
II. MARY, b. Hdwk., Apr. 2, 1775.
III. NATHAN, b. Stock., Apr. 15, 1789; m. Eunice Converse of Hancock.

V. ANNA, b. June 15, 1792; m. Charles Everds.
VI. JABEZ LURVEY, b. Apr. 5, 1796.
There were six other ch. by the first wife.

Isaiah H. Carpenter was a printer in Woodstock, as early as 1805 and a little later came to Barnard. He died in Woodstock, 1867; married, Windsor, 1804, Elizabeth Welch.

John Carpenter, born Sutton, Mass., 1744; married, Attleboro, Mass., Hannah Record. The Carpenter Genealogy says he lived in Barnard after his marriage and in Bethel and moved to Derby or Brownington. He was a clothier.

CARROLL FAMILY

Elijah Carroll, accompanied by his wife and his son, Amos Franklin Carroll, and perhaps other children, came to Barnard and bought a large tract of land on the east side of the Delectable Mountains in the upper creek valley. This farm was next the old No. 17 schoolhouse, now long gone to decay, and is at present (1927) occupied by Will (Jonas) Adams and is the last house occupied on the Chateauguay road. The place was occupied by his son, Amos Franklin Carroll, until the time of his death, who shared the place for a while with his son, Amos Franklin, commonly called Franklin.

Elijah Carroll, died Barnard, April 13, 1848, aged 77 years; married Patience ———, died Barnard, January 14, 1855, aged 80 years. Their place of burial is in the village cemetery.

There is no definite information as to whose children the two following of the Carroll name are but it may be supposed they are children of Amos Franklin and Mary (Rich) Carroll—yet this is unproved.

CARVER FAMILY

The home of the Carvers was on the old turnpike road next the Royalton line, the place later owned by Frank Rand. One of the name also lived on an adjoining farm in Royalton. It would appear that Seth and Rodolphus Carver, probably brothers, came to these regions rather early. Tradition says they were both Indian War and Revolutionary soldiers and that they are both buried in the Barnard village cemetery. If this is the case then Seth has no stone. The Rodolphus Carver place descended to his son, Seth, who lived there until his death.

1. Rodolphus Carver, d. Bd., Oct. 22, 1801, in his 67th year; m. Abigail ———. No list of their ch. has been found but from various sources there have been gathered three names. There likely were other children.

Children:

2. I. Thomas.
II. Lucy, d. unm., Bd., Nov. 22, 1857, ae. 77 yrs.
III. Seth, d. Bd., Sept. 2, 1846, ae. 63 yrs.

2. Thomas, m. (2), Sarah Benjamin. Hist. of Roy. says he removed from Bd. to Roy. and lived near the town line abt. 1791 but if this is true he returned to Bd., for in 1800

he was a householder in the Cox neighborhood and taxed in 1824.

Children:

*I. Alice, b. June 9, 1794; m. George Townsend.
*II. Mary, b. abt. 1796; m. E. Dana Bigelow.
*III. Nabby, m. Nathaniel Clark.
IV. Rebecca, b. abt. 1802; d. Bd., Nov. 14, 1877; m. Mr. Peck. It is said they lived in Mich., but she is buried in Bd.
V. Philena, d. unm.
VI. Dau., killed at the age of two years by being run over by an ox cart.
VII. Mary Ann, b. July, 1811; d. Jan. 12, 1893; m. B. Heath and lived in Ware, Mass., and Be. She was Heath's second wife and a dau. of Thomas' second wife.
*VIII. Susan, b. July 10 1815; m. Alfred Richmond Townsend.
IX. Elizabeth, m. Nelson Gerry and lived in Ware, Mass.
X. Son.

CARYL FAMILY

At one time Willard Caryl was the most prominent man in Barnard. He conducted the largest mercantile business of any man who ever lived in town. His store was located just south of the town common and on the same side of the road and his teams were constantly on the road to Boston with produce and bringing up supplies for the store. Much of the village real estate passed through his hands. At the first it seemed the village would grow to the south of the common and the store seemed well located but when the water power began to be developed at the outlet of the pond the village grew in that direction.

Rodney C. Caryl followed in his father's footsteps as the village merchant but did not prosper as his father. He built the hotel near the outlet of the lake about 1830-32, for it was two years in building. But this venture was not successful and in 1835, or a little later, he joined the migration to Ware, Mass.

For much of the information following, especially concerning the children of John Caryl, Sr. and Jr., and the Warrant family, the writer is indebted to Donald W. McCallam of Wadsworth, O.

1. John Caryl, d. 1791; m. Oct. 3, 1779, Eunice Willard of Grafton. She m. (2), 1794, Benjamin Walker.

XI. HOSEA BALLOU, b. Bd., Aug. 12, 1833; d. young.

CASSIDY FAMILY

1. MILES CASSIDY, b. Ireland; m. Ellen ———, b. Ireland. They came to Bd. and settled in Chateauguay in the southwest part of the town. Perhaps Catharine Cassidy who was b. Ireland and d. Bd., unm., Apr. 1, 1878, ae. 55 yrs. may have been a sister of Miles.

Children:

*I. ELIZABETH B., b. Rutland, abt. 1868; m. Richard T. Hoar.
II. SON, b. Bd., Dec. 2, 1876.
III. ELLEN C., b. Bd., May 9, 1880.
IV. JAMES, b. Bd.; d. Bd., Sept. 29, 1882, ae. 11 yrs.

CASWELL FAMILY

Some time probably after 1830 this family appeared in town and remained here for some years. Later, in the fifties, traces of the family appear in Stockbridge as well as in Barnard. No accurate record of the family is obtainable.

1. SETH S. CASWELL m. Tina or Plina Roundy and was in Bd.

Children:

I. BINGHAM, b. Bd., May 27, 1837; d. Lilliesville, Stock. or Be., Jan., 1923; m. ———, who did not survive him.

WILLARD S., b. Bd., abt. 1845; m. (1), ———; m. (2), Bd., Apr. 1, 1883, Sarah A., dau. Sylvester and Roxana (Goss) Withington, b. Hanover, N. H., abt. 1861.
A DAU., name not known, who m. Frank Harris and in 1923 resided in Northfield.

CHADWICK FAMILY

These families were late comers to Barnard. There seem to have been two families of this name in town. Whether they were related or not is not known.

1. EDGAR H. CHADWICK, b. Rand.; d. Bd., Sept. 23, 1877, ae. 37-9-1; m. Adelia A. Allen, b. Gran.; d. Jan. 16, 1902, ae. 61 yrs. Children:

I. EUGENE M., b. Gran.; d. Bd., Nov. 4, 1877, ae. 16-8-10.
II. FRED E., b. Gran., abt. 1862; d. Bd.; m. Roy., Dec. 17, 1883, Sadie E., dau. Prentiss and Alma Scribner of Roy., b. Hdwk., abt. 1863. Lived in Bd.
*III. IDA A., b. Gran., abt. 1866; m. Fred L. Culver.
IV. LESLIE A., b. Bd., Oct. 19, 1874; d. unm., Bd., Mch. 4, 1896.
V. EDITH S., b. Bd., Apr. 18, 1876.

1. GEORGE CHADWICK, JR., m. Della Macia and lived in Bd. Children:

*I. NELLIE, b. Hartford, abt. 1881; m. Arthur G. Porter.
II. ROSE MAY, b. Bd., May 31, 1885.
III. SON, b. Bd., Feb. 23, 1897.

There probably were other children in this family. The family may have lived in Stockbridge after being in Barnard.

CHAMBERLIN FAMILY

One of the most numerous family names in early Barnard was Chamberlin. Between 1779 and 1792 there were several families of this name owning land in town. Probably Joseph was the first to buy in June, 1779, his land being east of the creek, on the north road and in the Cox neighborhood. He also owned land west of the creek and west of the Newton-Wright land and south of land owned by Thomas, as early as 1790. He and his brother, William, were in the militia in Barnard, August 9, 1780, for two days. In 1791 Joseph bought an additional one hundred acres of land. According to the census of 1790 Joseph had in his family one male over sixteen, six males under sixteen years of age and one female besides his wife. We have no record of a son over sixteen at this time so we assume the father of Joseph or one of his brothers may have been making his home there.

Thomas Chamberlin became a freeholder in Barnard, October, 1780. His wife was Sally and his sister Nabby. One of his daughters was Sarah, born Apr. 1, 1768; died Barnard, October 5, 1839; married Barnard, August 19, 1788, George, son of Capt. Benjamin and Jerusha (George) Cox of Barnard, born Hardwick, Mass., July 1, 1762; died Barnard, Sunday, August 7, 1843. This Thomas Chamberlin is lost to the Chamberlin genealogists but is doubtless the brother of Joseph. He bought 300 acres of land west of the Newton and Wright farms, October 19, 1779, and owned it, at least in part, until 1800.

William Chamberlin was in town on August 9, 1780, when he served with his brother, Joseph, in Captain Cox's company of militia. He was given of Barnard on April 18, 1782, when he bought a part of the land owned by Joseph, his brother, and on it made his homestead between the creek and the north road and not far from the Methodist cemetery. He was one of the earliest members of the Methodist church on the Old Barnard Circuit and very useful in their work, being one of the nine trustees who built the first meetinghouse of that order on the circuit which was perhaps the first of the Methodist houses in the eastern part of Vermont. He was one of the first class leaders of the church and he and his descendants after him had a deep interest in the religious development of the community. He was with Arnold in the expedition against Quebec, was taken prisoner and carried to England.

John Chamberlin of "Barrey," Mass., June 26, 1780, bought land of Joseph Chamberlin. March 21, 1785, he bought 35½ acres of Joseph Bowman in the Cox neighborhood in Barnard, near Thomas Freeman's and on September 24, 1791, added to this farm 72 acres more. It was here he made his home. On August 24, 1784, he sold to Noah Hatch 90 acres of his land in the northwest part of the town west of the creek.

Simeon Chamberlin bought 100 acres of land adjoining the land of Thomas on the west of the creek on October 19, 1779.

Thomas sold 200 acres of the land mentioned above on June 20, 1786. In his family in 1790 there was one male over sixteen and three females. In 1790 Thomas sold his farm west of the creek to David Belding and probably about the same time bought of his brother, Joseph, land adjoining his former purchase on the west of the creek as he was owning this in 1793.

October 19, 1779, Simeon Chamberlin of Royalston, Mass., bought a farm next to Thomas Chamberlin and west of the same. On March 14, 1811, he married in Barnard, Meribah, daughter of Gideon and Polly (Hewett) Billings, born in Barnard, October 13, 1787. No record of the death of either of them is found in town and no record of their children is here.

John, William and Joseph Chamberlin were brothers. The writer also thinks Thomas was another unrecorded brother of the above.

Levi Chamberlin, a nephew of the three brothers, was here early as the birth of his children shows.

The Chamberlin family traces its origin back to William Chamberlin who was born in England, came to Woburn, Mass., and lived in Billerica, Mass., and whose wife was Rebecca Shelly who died in Cambridge prison accused of witchcraft, September 6, 1692. The family were in Union, Conn., Petersham, Mass., and William Chamberlin only was a short time in Hardwick before coming to Barnard.

3. William[5] Chamberlin (Samuel[4], John[3], John[2], William[1]), b. Petersham, Mass., Oct. 23, 1754; d. Bd., Aug. 25, 1842; m. (1), int. Petersham, Dec. 11, 1777, Lois, dau. Richard and Zipporah Ingersoll, who must have soon d.; m. (2), Barre, Mass., Feb. 25, 1778, Elizabeth, dau. Jedadiah Winslow, d. Bd., July 20, 1790; m. (3), Bd., Oct. 24, 1790, widow Meriba (Swift) Stevens, dau. Thomas and Rebecca (Clark) Swift and widow of Nathaniel, son Andrew and Mercy (Collins) Stevens, b. Roch., Mass., Aug. 8, 175(4); d. Bd., Mch. 3, 1813, in her 59th yr.; m. (4), Margaret ———, d. Bd., Feb. 19, 1836, ae. 80 yrs.

There is not absolute proof that Meriba Stevens who was the third wife of William Chamberlin was the widow of Nathaniel Stevens but after mature deliberation and for the following reasons she is so given. While the date and place of Nathaniel Stevens' death has not been found, the date of Meriba (Stevens) Chamberlin's death and the age there given coincides with the birth of Meriba Swift. She had a sister Lucy and her mother was Rebecca Clark and she names her first daughter Lucy and her only son Clark. The home of Andrew Stevens, the father of Nathaniel Stevens, was in Barnard near the home farm of William Chamberlin and as there is no other Meriba Stevens of marriageable age at the time this one was married to William Chamberlin she is given as above.

There was another strain of Chamberlin blood descended from WILLIAM[1] CHAMBERLIN but very distantly related to the family already treated who came into Barnard by the way of Stockbridge and at a later date than the first of the name to come to town. This family was numerous in the Stockbridge, Stony Brook region adjoining Barnard and in the later days was well represented in Barnard Chateauguay on the sides of the Delectable Mountains. They were descended from JOSIAH (Jedediah[4], Thomas[3], Daniel[2], William[1]).

Jedediah Chamberlin, baptized Stoneham, Mass., June 12, 1737; removed to Bethel, after 1780. He came with his father and his brothers and they settled in Bethel, Stockbridge and perhaps elsewhere in Vermont. There is no evidence he came to Barnard.

They lived on Stony Brook, Stock., but in their old age came to live with their son, Alanson Chamberlin, whose farm was on the side of the Delectable Mountains in Barnard. They are both buried on the Alanson Chamberlin farm in the lower edge of the meadow in a spot fast growing up to brush. Josiah was one of a family of fourteen ch.

CHANEY FAMILY

(See also the Cheney Family)

Luther Chaney was "par excellence" the village hotel keeper of early days. The village was not on the turnpike road and the Aikens stand was the principal refreshment place in Barnard on that route but the village was growing and there was a call for a first-class hotel. Moses Fay had built a dwelling house in the village and used it as a hotel but it did not fill the bill for a host is needed as well as a house and the Fay house is little heard of. So Chaney appeared in town, probably between 1809 and 1811, and built the Farmer's Hotel about 1823, an imposing two-story structure with ample grounds and barn room. The house is still standing in a fair state of preservation. This hotel became the headquarters for the Whigs about 1840, or earlier. Like all the hotels of those days intoxicants were freely dispensed to anyone who had the price and many is the story of riotous drinking at June Trainings and election days.

In addition to being the village hotel keeper, Chaney was a blacksmith, justice of the peace, and town clerk. He owned a saw mill in the west part of the town, built dwelling houses to rent and sold two houses to the University of Vermont to pay the college bills of his boys. He was a Universalist as long as he lived but all his four sons became Congregationalists and one of the number a minister.

Chaney had a scheme for the enlargement of the village. He planned a street running the north side of the common, then down by the brow of the ravine and out by the Universalist church. He built the two houses at the north of the common and presumably built the other two, one was burned and has been replaced, back of the church. But his vision of growth did not materialize. It was during the last years of his life that the high-water mark in the village growth was reached.

Chaney's children all gave good accounts of themselves. Henry B. Chaney, the oldest son, after graduating from U. V. M. became a professor there and for four years was treasurer of the University. He then went to Detroit, Mich., and was principal of a large high school and later was city librarian. Of his sons, one became a prominent lawyer in Detroit and the Supreme Court reporter for Michigan. The younger became a prominent physician in Detroit. Allen Chaney, after graduating from U. V. M. settled in Ogdensburgh, N. Y., where with his brother, Luther Norman, also a graduate from U. V. M., they became identified with the firm of E. B. Allen & Co., iron dealers and vessel owners. Allen went to Ogdensburgh when eighteen years old and there became a ruling elder in the Presbyterian church. He had a family consisting of one son and six daughters. The iron fence surrounding the Chaney lot in the village cemetery was erected by these brothers. Luther Norman Chaney was the last survivor of the immediate family and had been many years the treasurer of the E. B. Allen Co. He had three children by his second wife. Rev. Lucian West Chaney was a Congregational minister, graduate of U. V. M., 1844; Andover Theological School, 1849. His work was in the West where he held important appointments. His son became a professor in Carlton College.

After the death of Luther Chaney his widow made her home with her son in Ogdensburgh, N. Y., probably in the home of Luther Norman Chaney who was the administrator of the estate of his father.

CHEDEL FAMILY

The name has been variously spelled as Cheadle and Cheedle as well as Chedel.

George Chedel, with his brother, came from England and settled in Connecticut and married Martha Hall. The family were in Ashford, Conn., where their children were born. At least three of their children, John, Asa and William, came to Vermont.

John Chedel, with his family, came on foot from Connecticut, drawing on hand sleds their few possessions and arriving in Pomfret, March 12, 1770, three days after Bartholemew Durkee, the first settler arrived. It seems the families started from Pomfret, Conn., together but Chedel was delayed three days in Springfield and missed by that much being in town with Durkee.

Asa and William Chedel, brothers of John, came to Pomfret in 1775 but William immediately moved into Barnard and became one of the first settlers of the town. Asa Chedel soon came to Barnard and was deacon of the Congregational church. Thompson says he was here in 1775. He was counted a resident of town, May 2, 1777, when he bought lots No. 4 and No. 6 near the center of the town. February 7, 1791, he bought one hundred acres from Stephen Pool and July 25th following he bought lot No. 23 from Joseph Thurston. September 5, 1792, he sold one hundred acres to Nathaniel Richmond. Some of this land was on the side of Mt. Hunger, near the Richmond-Tucker place and probably to the west of that. Asa Chedel, Jr., bought of Joseph Foster, April 1, 1785, lot No. 118 "in the westerly part of town" and sold the same to John Gambell, March 3, 1791. This became the Gambell farm on Mount Hunger. Asa, Jr., had previously bought, October 18, 1790, lots No. 107 and No. 108.

William Chedel bought lots No. 36 and No. 37, bordering on the pond, May 2, 1777, at which time he was counted a resident of Barnard. He sold this land on May 6, 1780 and the same day bought one hundred acres, parts of lots No. 10 and No. 11, on which he continued to live. His homestead was on the road from the head of the lake to the General Foster farm. It was in his house the first town meetings were held, being held there for the first three years of the town's existence—from six to ten a year. We are indebted to the late Dr. Gardner Cox for locating the place through a descendant of Thomas Winslow who once lived in the house near the head of the pond. She said the William Chedel farm house was on the road from the head of the pond to the General Foster farm and was the first house up the hill. There is a short piece of wall on the left-hand side of the present road, running out into the pasture and having no present reason for being there. This was a part of the wall beside the old highway which led from the old yellow meetinghouse on the common. The road has long been abandoned. Its course can still be traced at various places by means of the abandoned walls. The road by the side of the lake is a modern invention. A little way from the present road—perhaps fifty feet—and near this bit of wall is the old cellar hole of the William Chedel house and the foundation of the big chimney. This is near the height of land on the present road. Probably no one now living in Barnard knows where the first town meetings were held. Forty years after the first town meeting was held in his house William Chedel became a town charge. His second wife survived him and is spoken of as a very pious person who was always in her place in the services at the meetinghouse.

CHENEY FAMILY

(See also Chaney Family)

Moses Ela Cheney was for many years the leader of the famous Barnard choir which sang in the Methodist church. The writer well remembers him with his long white beard standing like a patriarch of old in the old choir loft. He was one of "'The Cheney Family Singers,' consisting of four brothers, Nathaniel, Moses Ela, Simeon Pease, and Joseph Young, and one sister, Elizabeth Ela. Having sung from infancy in a home where 'spiritual songs' always abounded, and being all capable readers and teachers of singing, they composed a quintette of remarkable purity of tone and harmony. Nathaniel was a first tenor; could sing upper C with ease and power and had fine brilliancy throughout. Moses and Joseph had baritone range, though of different timbre; while Simeon had a fine unique and effective bass. Elizabeth's singing was singularly sweet and true, 'as strong as it was pure.' Beginning in New York City, October 13, 1845, they continued touring for two years, gaining great fame.

"Moses Ela Cheney was a great reader when he was a small child, a school teacher at nineteen, became a professional teacher, both of public schools in the day time and of singing schools in the evening. Thirty-seven such years of work touched a great many young lives with useful stimulus.

"Mean time he was active in public interests. In 1833 he was made captain of the state military company in which the students of New Hampton Academy were obliged to train. One of the pupils of the Academy who thus drilled under 'Captain Cheney' was Oren B. Cheney, since widely known as the founder and president of Bates College. He lectured in several western states three hundred times on music. He conducted at Montpelier, May, 1839, the first gathering known as a 'Musical Convention.' He was a member of the Vermont legislature. At a special session in 1857 he made an ingenious speech on the question of removal of the state capital; and exploded the fine plan of one of the ambitious cities (Burlington) by presenting a claim of Barnard, an obscure hamlet, with mock earnestness."

He taught singing schools in all the region round about Barnard and nearly always had one at Barnard village during the winter months. To him order was God's first law—unless harmony took precedence—and woe to the youngster who did not tend to business after the school had been called to order. A resident of East Bethel wrote in his diary in the winter of 1851-2, "Singing school by Moses Cheney. He was full of odd and sometimes cross ways." He taught pupils in singing and playing the violin as late as 1891 in Redfield, S. D.

His family had grown up and about 1889 or 1890 he left Barnard for South Dakota where several of his children had gone. He and his wife, together with his daughter, Mary Anteitam Archibald and her husband, Fay Archibald, are all buried in Mount Hope cemetery, about one mile from Watertown, S. D.

Moses Ela Cheney wrote the historical article which he read at the celebration of the centennial of the town and is said to have been busy on the preparation of a history of the town but the manuscript has been lost or destroyed.

1. Moses Ela Cheney (Moses[6], Nathaniel[5], Nathaniel[4], Daniel[3], Daniel[2], John[1]) was the son of a Baptist preacher, b. Sanbornton, N. H., Dec. 10, 1812; d. Troy, S. After his m., which prob. took place in Bd., he lived in Palmyra and Massilon, N. Y., where two of his ch. were b. They then returned to Bd. and made their home on the Dean farm on the old cross road from the creek schoolhouse to the Methodist cemetery. The buildings on the farm have long since disappeared and the road has been long abandoned.

CLAPP FAMILY

The Clapp family had an honored place in the affairs of the town in the early days. Benjamin Clapp settled on the side of the Delectable Mountains at the place still known as the Clapp or Hatch farm and here he built the first house. He represented the town in the state legislature twenty-one years and was many years a judge of probate and was commonly called "Judge Clapp." His brothers, George and Ichabod, and sisters, Katharine and Charity, and perhaps others of his father's family, came to Barnard. In the genealogy of the family the Barnard branch of the family is not followed out and it has been difficult to ascertain the facts. The family was of Rochester, Mass., but Judge Benjamin Clapp had come to Barnard from Woburn, Mass. He made his first purchase of Barnard land on April 24, 1785, when he bought lots No. 159, No. 166, No. 167 and on May 5 following bought lot No. 120. In the former deeds he was given as of Rochester, in the last deed he was of Barnard, which fixes the approximate time of his arrival in town. This was about three years before his marriage and it is not known whether he was in town all the time after that with the exception of the time he spent in the Continental Army. On December 17, 1789, he bought at vendue four rights of land and in September, 1790, added three more rights to his already large holdings. No list of his children is found in the town book but it is known that his son, Capt. Benjamin, succeeded to the farm and from various sources a list of his children has been compiled.

Ichabod Clapp, father of Judge Clapp, bought lots No. 149, No. 168, No. 170 and No. 171 on April 24, 1786 and was then given as of Rochester, Mass. It is not known that he ever came to town but his son of the same name was in town and in 1800 was listed in the No. 7 school district.

George Clapp, a brother of Judge Clapp, settled on the farm west of the Prince Haskell place on the road from the creek to the home of his brother.

The Clapp family was descended through the immigrant Thomas[1], Increase[2], John[3], Benjamin[4], Ichabod.[5]. The seat of the family was first in Dedham and after that in Rochester.

CLARK FAMILY

The Clark family first made its appearance in Barnard about 1777-8 for Josiah Clark was in Barnard that year when on February 2, he sold one hundred acres of land "known as lot No. 2 being the whole of the lot Josiah now lives on with the buildings and appurtenances thereto belonging." The writer has found nothing more concerning Josiah and thinks he left town.

Simeon Clark of Hardwick, cordwainer, bought lots No. 141 and No. 147 on September 5, 1783, and on October 17, 1787 he bought more land east of the Haskell-Putnam farm to which he added one hundred acres more "in the gore" on March 15, 1788. In these last two purchases he was still given as of Hardwick and it is not certain he ever came to town to live.

The Barnard pioneer was David[6] Clark who settled on the side of Mount Hunger, northeast of the Clapp-Hatch farm. He was descended from the immigrant, Joseph[1] Clark, born Suffolk Co., England; married Alice Pepper in 1640, shortly before he sailed for the new world. He settled in Dedham, Mass., where he had a son, Benjamin[2] Clark, born February 9, 1643; married November 19, 1665, Dorcas Morse. His seventh child was Edwin[3] Clark, born Medfield, Mass., November 11, 1679; married June 9, 1703, Hannah, daughter of Henry Adams. David[4] Clark was his sixth child, born April 23, 1714; married (1), Mehitable ———, who died May 7, 1754; married (2), November 14, 1754, Dorothy Harding who bore him his two youngest children.

There was another family living on the north road a little south of Barnard village which is thought to have been the family of David Clark who died in 1865 from injuries received in a fall. Little is known of the family except concerning one son, Parker B., and tradition concerning the son called Dick.

Dick Clark was a rather noted character in town in his boyhood days. He was often seen walking to the village on tall stilts which made it possible for him to look in at the second-story windows of the houses on the way. He was also something of a rhymster. A horse had been killed and stripped of its hide and left outside the old tannery on Back Street in the village. Dick righted the body on its frozen legs beside the street and decorated it with the following jingle:

"For many days I have been dead,
For many more I've not been fed,
And now you've robbed me of my hide!
If anyone wish, jump on and ride."

1. Still another family found refuge in town and remained for some time. It is not known that they were related to any who have been mentioned. Walter C., perhaps son of Walter Clark, d. Bd., June 18, 1889, ae. 75-2-0; m. Betsey E., dau. Samuel W. and Lucy W. Wheeler, b. Warren, 1814; d. Bd., Aug. 20, 1892, ae. 78-0-20. He was the village grave digger and always managed the old cannon on occasions of celebration. The writer has helped load and fire the old gun and the wonder is he lives to tell the tale. A train of powder was laid from the vent hole and touched off with a stick which had been set on fire by having the end in live coals in an iron kettle. At the Centennial Celebration of the old town the cannon did valiant service in the wooded hill north of the town house and was kept hot all day. The last shot was fired by Walt while some mischievous boy helper had hastily placed Walt's iron kettle over the muzzle of the gun.

COOLIDGE FAMILY

Very little is known of this family save what can be gleaned from the cemetery inscriptions and a few references in the vital records of the town. It is not known at present beyond peradventure that the three children here credited to Moses were his but that seems somewhat probable. No list of children are found. The burial place of the family is in the cemetery at the center village where Moses, his wife Lucy, Elisha C., his wife Betsey C. and two of the children of the latter are buried.

COX FAMILY

The late Dr. Gardner Cox of Holyoke, Mass., prepared quite a comprehensive genealogy of his branch of the Cox family which has never been printed but to which the writer is indebted for much in the following pages.

The Barnard Cox family originally came from Maine. William Cox lived at Pemaquid Beach, ancient for Cox's Cove, in the town of Lincoln between the Penobscot and Kennebec rivers. From here this branch of the family went to the vicinity of Boston, to Mattapan, which is Indian for Dorchester. Capt. Benjamin Cox was born in Dorchester, lived for about ten years in Wrentham and about 1760 came to Old Hardwick. By 1776 he was in Barnard for on October 31 of that year he took deed to about two hundred fifty acres of land in the east part of the town near the head waters of Broad Brook and in the deed was given of Barnard. This land was lots No. 65, No. 66 and the southerly half of No. 45. On July 19, 1790, he bought of his neighbor, John Newton, thirty-six and three-fourths acres adjoining his first purchase.

Benjamin Cox was actively engaged in the French War. His name was enrolled as a private in the Co. of Capt. Ebenezer Cox, 1758, Sergeant, 1759, and Ensign in 1760. In Barnard he was one of the most active citizens, a Captain of militia during the Revolution, assessor, justice of the peace, town clerk and representative. He died at Windsor at the early age of forty-four years, having been stricken with consumption and passing away while on his return to Barnard from a visit to his people in Old Hardwick.

The two-story George Cox house on Broad Brook was built in 1799. It has more Methodist history clustering around it than any other house in town. Here Bishop Francis Asbury and other notables of the early days were entertained. Lesser personages found the hospitable roof as long as a Cox stayed there. In this house the writer was granted his first local preacher's license at a quarterly conference presided over by Dr. Alanson L. Cooper the Presiding Elder. George Cox, Sr., was a trustee of the first meetinghouse the Methodists erected on the Old Barnard Circuit. He had a brick yard and saw mill on the brook below his house and here the materials for the house were made. He was rated the richest man in town in his day. He was constable for years. He was not counted a liberal man save toward the members of his own faith. They were a sturdy folk having the respect of their townsmen.

George Cox, Jr., is well remembered by the writer. He was constant in his attendance at the Methodist church in the village, was Superintendent of the Sunday School, a steward and an all-around useful member. He was commonly called "Uncle George." Dr. Gardner Cox has written so accurate a description of the couple that it is here given.

"George Cox, Jr., was a pillar in the Methodist church for sixty-five years. Summer and winter, storm or sunshine, he walked the hills to church. In summer with his coat on his arm, and his hat and red handkerchief in his hand, he would slowly climb the hills, leaving the team for the young folks. At his home the minister was always welcome, and there he always went, knowing that his soul and coffers would be filled with all the luxuries of the season. Few men did willingly more for the church, and few men, of like ability, ever did more for society. No boy was ever smart enough to evade him after church, and not go into the Sabbath-school. A truant that undertook to steal out to the carriage shed, or a refugee starting for the post office, was sure to stumble over 'Uncle George' as his very first mistake. He would plant himself in the vestibule, bare-headed, or rather wig-headed, and every facial muscle expressed the utmost painful, sanctimonious austerity.

"When he prayed they heard him on the back seats. He had a habit of bringing his voice down to a whisper, and then suddenly roaring out the fullness of his heart with a sincerity and volume that made the poor sinner tremble. He would rub his hands together and shout 'Glory to God' with an enthusiasm that was wonderfully effective.

"At family prayers in the summer, when the doors and windows were open, he prayed for, and was heard by the whole neighborhood. The occasion never was known when he was in a hurry. He was born before the hurry commenced and he was in no hurry to die. He thanked God for everything, good and bad. If it rained on his hay, or the frost bit his corn, if the wind blew down his barn, or the snow came a month too early, or if the weevils killed his wheat, he was, nevertheless, always ready to sing the the doxology with thankful gusto.

"He was late everywhere, late to commence his spring's work, late to get through with it, late with his fall's work, late to go to bed, late at morning prayers, and he used to say that his epitaph ought to be, 'Here lies the late George Cox.'

"Camp meetings were held on his land, free of charge, for many years; he was only sorry he could not do more for the Lord. On every possible occasion he would pass his snuff box, always going out of his way to pass it to his wife, whom he knew, under no circumstance, would partake of it. He loved music, laughter, young people, and every healthful pleasure, as he understood pleasure. Against dancing and card playing he set his religious austerity with decision.

"No social gathering ever lagged where he was the general and he wanted to open every occasion with prayer and close with a benediction. It was a very unwise man who undertook to convince him that the Bible was not inspired, every word of it, punctuation marks and all. It was God's own book and that was the end of it.

"Pride was one of his sins—his cravat, his collar, the set of his clothes, the freshness of his garments, were all religiously perfect, and his wig was a mathematical demonstration that every hair could be educated just how to behave on Sunday. He had a high appreciation of education, and his children were sent to the Newbury Seminary year after year, that being a good Methodist school after his own heart. He had a keen interest in the advancement of the youth around him, and everything pertaining to their welfare was dear to his heart.

"He remembered everybody, spoke to everybody, shook hands with everybody, and there was a cordial grip in his shake. He enquired after every member of the family, and everyone felt he had a near and dear friend in 'Uncle George.' Not being gifted in speech, or in scholarly effects, there was a great deal of repetition in his prayers and exhortations, but they were full of scripture and divine promises, and as his delivery was sincere, his influence told for sterling worth.

"His sap buckets might run over, or his hay might get wet on Sunday, the loss was nothing compared to the sin of saving them on the Lord's day.

"Their marriage was a happy combination of temperaments; she was the rudder, he the motive power. They lived to celebrate their golden wedding. They left golden sands all along their long pathway. She had a genius for the roots and herbs and was the neighborhood doctor. The case was alarming when she sent for a physician. What mysteries were hidden in that old long narrow pantry where she kept her 'materia medica.' She never, by deed or word, offended the least of God's creatures."

From Dorchester came the Topliffs, Freemans, Hewetts, Howes, Wrights, Wights, Danforths, Thayers, Tuckers, Deans, and Coxes. In Hardwick the Freemans, Newtons and Deans lived on adjoining farms, the Wrights and Crowells not far away, and the Cox farm adjoined the Newton acres.

CROWELL FAMILY

Among the early settlers of Barnard were two Crowell brothers born in Falmouth, Mass., but who came to Barnard from Old Hardwick. They were Nathaniel and Shiverick Crowell, the sons of Joshua and Mary (Shiverick) Crowell. They were both unmarried when they came to town and their unmarried sister came here and married Nathaniel Paige. At a somewhat later time children of Paul Crowell of Brookfield, Mass., a brother of Shiverick and Nathaniel came here. These families settled in the Aikens neighborhood.

These families are doubtless "descended from John Crowell (formerly written Crow or Croel) who came to New England in 1635 and was early in Yarmouth with wife Elishua." In the Joshua Crowell family in Hardwick there was a marked strain of insanity. One of the daughters, Hannah, who married Jeduthan Spooner, killed her aged mother and a little later took her own life. A son, Thomas, had an inoffensive form of insanity but finally built a big fire in the home of his brother, Joseph, who had the care of him, and perished in the flames.

Alexander Crowell lived toward East Barnard and became famous for killing the Barnard panther on November 24, 1881, one of the largest of the species, measuring seven feet and six inches from tip to tip and is now in the museum at the state house in Montpelier. It is thought the panther came down from Canada where extensive forest fires had been raging that fall. He was killed with a shot gun at close range under some spruce trees near Crowell's home.

Paul Crowell, lived in the same section of the town, as did James M. and Willard D. Crowell, the two latter living together on the homestead near the Aikens stand.

The place on the east side of the Barnard-Bethel road adjoining the Townsend farm was occupied by one of the Crowells. The land is now owned by Mr. DuBois and used as a pasture for his blooded stock.

CULVER FAMILY

William Culver sold twenty-five acres of land in Barnard to Nathaniel Carpenter on November 5, 1787. Nothing more has been discovered concerning him.

Wrothom Culver was one of the early settlers of Pomfret. On November 5, 1787, he bought forty acres of land in Barnard and at that time was a resident of the town. This land adjoined the Pomfret line and was a short distance south of the East Barnard village. He later bought land adjoining in the town of Pomfret and built his house just over the town line so he legally became a citizen of Pomfret. But the family were closely connected with Barnard interests, marrying into Barnard families and being ardent supporters of the Methodist church which later localized in the east village. In the home of his grandson Thomas was brought up Adin S. and Jesse Boyden, after the death of their father. These two brothers became Methodist ministers. This home was known for its inmates of sterling Christian worth. Simeon Culver, the father of Thomas Culver, was a member of the first class in East Barnard and a class leader from 1809 to 1821. No list of the children of Wrothom Culver has been found.

The above family lived a while in the Newton neighborhood and the children attended school there.

CUMMINGS FAMILY

This family came to town during the last years of the century. John Cummings, Sr., of Marlborough, N. H., bought land of Amos Bicknell on December 2, 1799. This land was on Mount Hunger and to the west of the Wright and Timothy Newton farms.

The family was early identified with the Methodist church in Barnard and John, Jr., became a Methodist preacher. One day he saddled his horse and went down to the mill on the creek to get a bag of meal. On the way home a terrific thunder storm broke about him and the lightning was uncomfortably near. It seems he had been resisting a call to preach and thought this storm an evidence of divine displeasure. He prayed for protection from the elements and promised he would heed the call, if spared. He became a local preacher in 1826 to 1828 when he joined conference and traveled until 1837 when he located and bought the starch factory on the creek. He and his wife lived and died in the house second below the iron bridge in Newcombsville. He continued his interest in the church and was a regular attendant at the services in Barnard as long as health permitted. The writer knew the family well. They were always called "Uncle John and Aunt Sukey." After the death of Sukey, Monroe Bryant and his family moved down into the house and cared for Uncle John as long as he lived. Cummings had sold his land and business to Wesson Newcomb who obligated himself to care for the family as long as they lived.

Joseph and Hannah are the only children of the family recorded in the town books. The marriages of Isaac and Haffield are recorded here. The other dates and names are from the stones in the Methodist cemetery and the children have been all grouped in one family although the only reason for this is that there does not appear more than this family in town.

1. John Cummings, d. Bd., May 16, 1833, ae. 77 yrs.; m. Hannah ———, d. Bd., May 19, 1832, ae. 68 yrs. John was a Rev. soldier. There were prob. four boys and two girls in their family when they finally came to town to settle.

IX. Haffield, m. Bd., May 12, 1822, Phebe Howe of Bd. Taxed Bd., 1824.

Lucia Maria Cummings, daughter of Miss Kellogg of Bethel, was brought up in the Cummings home, took the name and married in Barnard on Dec. 25, 1827, Leonard Fish of Randolph.

CUSHING FAMILY

This family first made its appearance in town about the middle of the century in the person of "Uncle Willard and Aunt Fannie," as the neighborhood soon came to know them. They lived on the creek at the old Barnes-Bigelow place near the bridge (now gone) on the road to Royalton. As Eliphaz Bigelow who bought the place in 1816 did not die until 1844 it is presumed the arrival of the Cushings was after the later date. The family probably had lived in Putney before coming to Barnard. Very incomplete records of the family are at hand.

DANFORTH FAMILY

No family identified with the early history of the town was more influential in the community than the family of Danforth. The pioneer in town was Dr. Isaac Danforth who bought two hundred acres of land on the north road about a mile from the village in May, 1790. One of the lots was No. 115. The place still goes by the Danforth name.

The family was descended from Nicholas Danforth who was born in Framingham, Eng., 1589, and came to Cambridge, Mass., 1634, where he was a representative in the General Court the next year. In 1637 he was on a committee to "take order for a college at Newton," later Harvard College. He was a noted surveyor as were two of his sons. His eldest son, Thomas, was treasurer of Harvard College, 1650-1669, and steward from 1669 to 1682.

Doctor Danforth probably came to town around 1785.. He first boarded with the Aikens family in their log house and it was here he brought his bride in 1788. After buying his land he first built a log house on the opposite side of the road from the present house and a little nearer the village and in 1794 built the present two-story frame house having abundant room for a large family and such help as the place required. The house stood in the midst of a large yard which they beautified with trees, shrubs and old-fashioned flowers and such herbs as the Doctor could use in his practice. Evidences of the flower garden can still be seen in the persistence of the hardy perennials, in spite of the lack of care for many years past.

Doctor Danforth brought to town his widowed mother, who was born in 1737 and died in Barnard, March 28, 1817.

The Doctor is sometimes spoken of as the first physician in town. He was the first to settle here permanently, but there were other physicians resident in town for a brief time before his day. Dr. Ruben Smith was already a resident of town when he bought his farm of one hundred twenty acres in the west part of town on September 19, 1785. Dr. Jonathan King who lived somewhere in town, a sort of traditional character, is said to have died here in 1787 and have left a widow named Abigail. But the first physician to make a real impression on the old town was Doctor Danforth. He was well equipped by education and temperament for his task and was so in love with his profession than several of his kin chose the same line of service. He was descended from a long line of worthy sires.

The late Doctor Cox, related to the family by marriage and a very intimate friend of the last of the name in town, has written, "I knew well the Danforths of Barnard, Dr. Isaac and his sons, Joseph B., Albert H. and Dr. Samuel Parkman. I also knew many of their descendants. I do not remember of having ever seen one of the name that was not kind, courteous, refined and scholarly. For three generations they were the royal family of Barnard, the last, the King of the Tudors, being Judge William Cullen Danforth, who died in town in 1906. Each and every one of the Danforths had a refined bow, a gracious hand-shake, immaculate linen and silk stock, typical of the gentleman and scholar, college presidents in mien and manner." On an earlier occasion he wrote, "He (Dr. Isaac) and his children were aristocrats in manner—a sort of royal family in their bearing. Solon hated everybody who did not hate everybody he hated and did not pet him although he was a man of influence in the county."

Dr. Isaac Danforth was in the Revolutionary army when he was only twelve years of age. The place of death of Mrs. Danforth is given as in the Danforth Genealogy but the writer wonders if this is not a mistake as the home in Barnard remained in the family. The cemetery in the center of the town is the burial place of the family.

William Cullen Danforth was an important man in Barnard. He had held all the important town offices, represented the town in the legislature, was side judge of Windsor Co. Court, for years conducted the village store, as his father did before him, and was highly respected. Both he and his first wife were excellent singers and prominent in the County Musical Conventions of the early days and members of the choir at the Methodist church where she was a member and a teacher in the Sunday school. After the Congregational church ceased to function in Barnard the Danforth family supported the Methodist church.

William Cullen Danforth was a student at Norwich University in 1844. After the marriage of his daughter they went to Detroit where Mrs. Danforth died and Cullen returned to Barnard about 1891. He was much interested in breeding fine horses. His home was the place next the town house on the south in the village.

DAVIS FAMILY

There were three families of this name early in Barnard. The first to come was Moses Davis, with his sons Moses and Stephen, who were here as early as 1778. About 1794 Francis Davis came and built the first grist mill at East Barnard village. In 1807-8 Rev. Joel Davis, the second pastor of the Congregational church in Barnard came to town and settled near the village, owning the land opposite the village cemetery. None of these three families were closely related.

At the second town meeting held in Barnard, March 29, 1779, Moses Davis was elected one of the surveyors of highways. How long he had been in town before this is uncertain. On June 21, 1779, he bought one hundred acres of land, the northwesterly half of lots No. 8 and No. 57, pitched to the original right of John Box. This land lay near the foot of the gulf in the south part of the town, on the east side of the highway and a little north of the Badger place. The substantial foundations of the barn and the cellar are plainly visible in the pasture. The buildings have been long gone. The house and barn were taken down and carried to Woodstock where their timbers were used. Moses Davis was in the militia in Barnard for a single day on August 1, 1780, and like all the other early pioneers of the town had a record in the Massachusetts militia or Continental line and served from March 12 to December 1, 1782, in Lieut. Ward Bailey's Co. in Vermont.

Phoebe Davis, granddaughter of the Barnard pioneer, in a book entitled "Two Years and Three Months in the New York State Lunatic Asylum at Utica" and published in 1854, says that her father was born in Gloucester, Mass., on Cape Ann, and that her grandmother taught school there for a living.

As a small boy the writer spent much time in the home of his grandfather Davis in Barnard upper village and from him and from "Uncle Henry" Richmond, who lived much in his later days at the Newton home, has heard many of the Davis traditions which have been found to have been pretty thoroughly disseminated among the descendants scattered far from Barnard and all pretty much agreeing in essentials.

The tradition which captivated my young imagination was that Moses Davis was the Barnard pioneer who settled in the south part of the town and that he or his father, Moses, had been strangely delivered at the time of an Indian massacre which took place further to the south. The tradition was substantially as follows: This Moses Davis was a lad living with his father's family in some frontier settlement a long ways south of Barnard. The settlement was attacked by a large party of Indians and a massacre occurred. The Davis cabin was attacked with the others and was stoutly defended but had to succumb to the inevitable. My understanding was that the father and mother and some of the children were killed. The boy Moses was saved in the following manner: Before the Indians gained access to the house his mother made him lie down on the floor and threw a feather bed on top of him. When the Indians came in and finished their work the boy kept still and they did not notice him. After they had gone he came out of hiding and worked his way to friends. He later married and with his children came to Barnard. The descendants of the family treasured feathers said to have been taken from the bed which saved the boy's life. This was essentially the tradition as the writer heard it. In 1907 the writer came into possession of a letter written by Helen Shaw Thompson, a descendant of Moses Davis living in Chicago, in which she rehearsed essentially the same tradition which she had received from Rosanna King of Woodstock, a daughter of Moses Davis, the son of the Barnard pioneer. She also said she had two feathers her aunt gave her which came from the bed which saved the lad. "In the mouth of two or three witnesses every word shall be established" and here was evidence from two independent sources of the existence of this tradition.

But what about this tradition and the possibility of connecting it with any authentic massacre of the people in the early days? This was difficult enough, as anyone may know who has searched the meager records of the pioneers, but the writer thinks he has made out a fairly satisfactory case from the evidence which follows: An Indian massacre occurred at Oyster River, Dover, N. H., June 10, 1724. In this massacre Moses Davis who was born in Haverhill, November 2, 1686 (therefore thirty-seven years and seven months old) and his father, Moses Davis, were both slain by the Indians. The writer has not been able to find an account of the marriage of the younger Moses mentioned above or a list of his children, but it is reasonable to suppose he, being nearly thirty-eight years old, was married and had he married soon after attaining his majority he may have had a son as old as thirteen or fourteen years at the time of the incident, or even sixteen years old. Now there was a Moses Davis who married in Gloucester, Mass., 1726, Abigail Sargent, and this was probably the Moses Davis who was the father of the Barnard pioneer and would if established make this Davis line run back to James Davis of Haverhill, born in England, 1583-8; died in Haverhill, May 28, 1673; married "Cicely" or "Sissilla" who died in Haverhill, May 28, 1673. While this, as yet, lacks absolute proof the line is so given in this connection.

Mr. John Scales, who assisted Mr. Hoyt in the preparation of the Davis part of his "Old Families of Salisbury and Amesbury," and was thoroughly familiar with the Davis line in Dover and when he had heard set forth the Barnard tradition, communicated the following to the writer: "Your letter of the 11th is at hand, in re Moses Davis your ancestor who escaped capture by the Indians by being covered over by a feather bed, in some house in Old Dover.

"Your story is interesting; I have no doubt of its being true, as there were many narrow escapes from the Indians during the fifty years of Indians Wars in the old town. These Davis families lived in Oyster River, now Durham, which was a part of Old Dover for more than a century. There was an emigration of quite a lot of young men from this section to Vermont near the close of the Revolution and a quarter of a century following, among the number were Davises. I do not think the Moses Davis who left Oyster River and went to Vermont is the 'boy' who was hidden under the feather bed, but probably he was the son of the boy who had such an experience."

Here it may not be out of place to give some account of Oyster River and the massacre of June 10, 1724. From Sweetser's "New England" and McClure's "New Hampshire," we quote the following:

"Dover, N. H., is the oldest place in the state, having been settled in the spring of 1623 on the point of land at the confluence of the Newichawannich and Bellamy rivers. The pioneer colony was composed of Episcopalians sent over by the Laconia Company and they had much trouble with the Massachusetts Puritans.

"Oyster River, made a parish of Dover in 1651, separated in 1675 and incorporated in 1716, was incorporated as Durham in 1732.

"In Durham or Oyster River many people were killed in various Indian raids during King Phillip's War. . . . The town was the object of other disasterous attacks during the Indian Wars but was never abandoned by its inhabitants. In June, 1724, Indians killed Moses Davis and his son at Oyster River and one Indian was killed and two wounded."

From Belknap's "History of New Hampshire" the following is taken. "The settlement at Oyster River being very much exposed; a company of volunteers under the command of Abraham Benwick, who went out on the encouragement offered by the government for scalps, were about marching to make discoveries. It happened that Moses Davis, and his son of the same name, being at work in their corn field, went to a brook to drink, when they discovered three Indian packs. They immediately gave notice of this discovery to the volunteer company and went before to guide them to the spot. The Indians had placed themselves in ambush; and the unhappy father and son were both killed. The company then fired, killing one and wounding two others, who made their escape, though they were pursued and tracked by their blood to a considerable distance. The slain Indian was a person of distinction. . . It was supposed he was a natural son of the Jesuit Ralle, by an Indian woman who had served him as a laundress."

It is a significant fact that the name Moses is found in six succeeding generations, including one born in Barnard, and that the daughter of the last mentioned named her son Moses Davis King.

Moses Davis (Moses[5], Moses[4], Moses[3], John[2], James[1]), born Gloucester, Mass., August 18, 1733; died Barnard, 1804; married Ipswich, Mass., Dec. 10, 17(61?, 1761, int.), Gloucester Vital Statistics, Sarah Lowe of Ipswich, died Barnard, November 9, 1806. He was the Barnard pioneer, coming to town with his son of the same name and with another son, Stephen, who died in Barnard, September 9, 1788. Stephen's age is not given in the return of his death but he was old enough to be in service in Beriah Green's Co. in Barnard from Dec. 10, 1782 to Mch. 31, 1783. There was also a Daniel Davis, an adult, in Barnard in 1812 but how he is related to any of the Davis families is not now known. He may have been a brother of Stephen and Moses.

On the first Tuesday of September, 1810, at the Congregational meetinghouse in Barnard, Stephen Davis took the freeman's oath. This Stephen was the son of Moses and Lydia (Barrows) Davis.

Mark Davis died while visiting his youngest daughter, Mrs. Lucette C. Glines, then living in Barre. After his death his widow went to live with her daughter, Mary, who was then Mrs. Taplin of Corinth, and died there but was buried beside her husband in Barre. The records of Mark Davis and his descendants were obtained from several family Bibles in the possession of Mrs. Glines.

Oramel Davis lived in Barnard village, owning at different times the house next south of the village schoolhouse, the house next north of the upper village schoolhouse, and the second house north of the last mentioned one on the same side of the road. This was the old Congregational parsonage from which the upper story had been removed. Here he died. His widow sold the place and spent her remaining days with her daughter, Mrs. Solon D. Newton. Oramel Davis held various town offices, especially the office of lister. He was long engaged in the purchase of cattle and sheep and driving them to the Brighton market. His judgment on the weight and value of stock was always considered valuable.

1. The second line of the Davis family made its appearance in town in the person of Francis Davis (Francis[5], Francis[4], Francis[3], Francis[2], Francis[1]) who came to the e. part of the town from Warner, N. H., abt. 1794, and built the first grist mill at E. Bd. No record of the d. or burial of himself or wife has been found. It is only certainly known that Ichabod was his eldest son. Betsey Davis, who m. Luther Goff, was likely a dau. and Asa Davis, who m. Elizabeth Allen, may have been a son, as likely also was Daniel Davis who m. Emily Davis of Stock.

The third branch of the Davis family to appear in town was in the person of Rev. Joel Davis, the second pastor of the Congregational church of Barnard, with a pastorate extending from 1808 to 1822.

The history of the Danforth family gives the birth of Rev. Joel Davis as occurring in Sharon, Vt., instead of Hubbardston, Mass., the place usually given.

Joel Davis prepared for college in the academy in Leicester, Mass., and graduated from Middlebury College in the class of 1805. He then took up the study of theology with Rev. John B. Preston of Rupert, Vt. What he did during the three years he was in his theological studies is not known but he doubtless found some useful employment such as teaching or supply preaching and in 1808 came to Barnard, an unmarried man, to become the pastor of the church. He was not long in selecting a helpmeet from one of the first families of the town, and from his own parish as was fitting, for the Danforths have ever had an honorable and useful place among the citizens of the town.

According to the custom of his time it was necessary he should have a farm and Benjamin Stebbings sold him land on the shores of Stebbings' Pond opposite the village cemetery. Indeed someone has said Stebbings sold him a large part of the pond but Mr. Davis bought while on the ground and with his eyes open and paid accordingly. Here he built a substantial house and barn which the writer recalls seeing in its old age where the cellar hole may still be seen. On this homestead he reared his family. It seems that he retained the farm after relinquishing his pastorate in Barnard and in due time it was bought by his son, Isaac Danforth Davis.

After leaving the Barnard pastorate he was for two years a missionary of his church in Vermont traveling over the state in the interests of the denomination, during which time his family quite likely lived on the Barnard farm. In 1824 he accepted the pastorate of the church in Williamstown, Vt., where he remained for ten years. In 1837 he became pastor in Washington, N. H., where he remained for five years to again become a missionary in Vermont for the remainder of his days. He may have returned to Barnard but quite likely spent his last days with his daughter in Berlin. Both he and his wife and the youngest child of the family are buried in the Barnard village cemetery across the road from their home.

Mr. Davis was a strong and able man and wrought well for the Barnard church. The history of Washington, N. H., where he was for five years, prepared while his memory was still fresh in that parish, says of him, "He was affable and social in his manner, acceptable in his pulpit and esteemed as a citizen."

While Mr. Davis ministered in Barnard he occupied the pulpit in what was later called the "Old Yellow Meetinghouse" which stood on the south end of the common and whose foundations are still visible in the new cemetery. But when he came to town it was not an old yellow meetinghouse for it had been completed only four years and was doubtless up-to-date as a place of worship for the time.

All the members of this family have been highly respected in the several places of their abode and those remaining in Barnard are deeply interested in the Methodist church and in all that pertains to the welfare of the town.

DEAN FAMILY

Walter Dean of Chard, County Somerset, Eng., came to New England in 1630 and was in Dorchester in 1636 and four years later at Taunton married Eleanor, daughter of Richard Strong of Taunton. For three generations Taunton, Mass., was the home of the family. Walter Dean was a tanner. He was deputy or representative in 1640 and a selectman from 1679 to 1686. He and his wife were both living in 1693, affording an example of that longevity which distinguished so many of their descendants.

Paul[4] Dean lived in Taunton and Hardwick. Three of his sons, Seth, Robert and Nathaniel, and three of his daughters, Rosilla, Phebe and Molly or Polly, came to Barnard.

Seth, a soldier of the Revolution was the first to come. He bought land near the Barnard gulf, the old Dean farm, consisting of lot No. 98 and the northerly half of No. 97, April 22, 1777. He was at the time unmarried but came to town that year and began his clearing and made his log house. This farm remained in the possession of his descendants until the death of his grandson, Paul D. Dean. Seth Dean was one of the early Universalists in town and the family remained firm in that faith.

Robert Dean bought his land June 2, 1788, on the road, now long discontinued, running from the schoolhouse in the Newton neighborhood on the creek to the Methodist cemetery. The farm was occupied by his son, Robert. The buildings burned a number of years ago.

Nathaniel Dean took his land on the west side of the hills west of Barnard village and east of the creek. Here he raised his illustrious family of whom Amos and Nathaniel were conspicuous. This farm has long been unoccupied and the buildings gone.

DEXTER FAMILY

This family came to Barnard by the way of Hardwick. Capt. Ichabod Dexter (Samuel[4], Benjamin[3], William[2], Thomas[1]), born Hardwick, 1736; baptized Rochester, September 6, 1740; died February 13, 1797; married Abigail ———; died April 7, 1797, aged 54 years, 8 months and 16 days. In the settlement of his estate seven children are mentioned of whom Clark Dexter, the Barnard pioneer, was the eldest, the father and the rest of the children, so far as known, not coming to Barnard. The various members of the family saw abundant military service. Capt. Ichabod and his brother, Capt. Samuel, were also deeply involved in Shay's Rebellion.

1. Clark Dexter, b. Hdwk., abt. 1775; d. Gouverneur, N. Y., Aug. 24, 1830; m. Hdwk., Aug., 1796, Alice, dau. Ezra and Rosamond (Spooner) Winslow, b. Hdwk., bapt. Hdwk., Nov. 16, 1777; d. Rensselaer Falls, N. Y., Feb. 20, 1862. The m. date is given in the History of Hardwick as having occurred Oct. 16, 1796. Clark was a blacksmith and lived in Hdwk., Bd., and Gouverneur, N. Y., in which latter place he was drowned while attempting to cross a stream with his horse.

Children:

I. Lorinda, b. Bd., abt. 1797; d. Bd., July 28, 1806.
II. Ezra Winslow, b. Bd.; d. Gouverneur, N. Y.

X. George Wilkes, b. Bd.

DIMOCH FAMILY

The name was variously spelled, as above in the town record, and elsewhere as Dimock, Dimick and Dimmoch. There were traces of families of this name in Woodstock and Bridgewater, as well as in Barnard. In 1800 the family of Joseph was in the center school district, probably in the south part of the district.

A Mr. Dimoch, given name unknown, lived in the vicinity of South Barnard and was engaged to be married to Rosamond, daughter of Ezra and Rosamond (Spooner) Winslow, born Hardwick, about 1785; died Hardwick, September 13, 1803. She was living in Barnard with her mother who had married Richard Ransom as her second husband. "Rosamond was long reputed the most beautiful and amiable young woman who had ever lived in Barnard. Shortly before the time set for her marriage she went with her fiance to visit her friends in Hardwick and was there taken sick and died of scarlet fever. Her friends in Barnard did not know of this until Mr. Dimoch arrived in the settlement one evening leading Rosamond's horse with its empty saddle."

1. Joseph Dimoch, m. Fannie ———.
Children:

I. Penfield, b. Wood., Jan. 15, 1793.
II. Dexter, b. Bd., Aug. 24, 1794.
III. Joseph, b. Bd., June 8, 1796; m. Bd., Feb. 2, 1823, Susan Winslow of Bd. He was given as of Pierpoint, N. Y., in the return of the m. and the writer knows not whose dau. was Susan. She could not have been the Susan who was an older sister of Rosamond for that Susan m. Abel Babbitt and d. in 1816 and is buried in the So. Bd. cemetery.
IV. Lyman, b. Bd., May 10, 1798.

The place of birth of the children would seem to fix the time of arrival of the family in town between 1793 and 1794. It is possible the family went to New York state as did several others after the opening of the century.

DUNHAM FAMILY

This family did not permanently locate in Barnard but owned the farm next north of Asa Paige in the town of Royalton, the first farm over the line on the north road. Their interests were closely related to Barnard and they worshipped in the old Methodist meetinghouse on the north road.

February 20, 1788, Jesse Dunham, the pioneer, bought land in Barnard between the creek and the north road and adjoining the Newton and Chamberlin acres. It is not thought that this was ever his homestead. Martin Kellogg who lived in Bethel wrote that he tended the carding machine for Jesse Dunham in Barnard in the early years of the century and as there is reputed to have been a carding machine on the brook which flows through this land, rising back of the Methodist cemetery, it is likely that there was the place of the carding machine owned by Dunham.

Norman Dunham, son Jesse and Ruth (Hatch) Dunham of Roy., b. Roy., Nov. 3, 1809; d. prob. Ware, Mass.; m. Bd., Nov. 8, 1832, Emily Ayres of Bd. They bought the hotel in Bd. village, conducted it for a few months in company with Mr. Ayres and lost all their savings. Then they went to Ware, Mass.

EASTMAN FAMILY

Roger and Sarah (Keen) Eastman came from England and in 1640 settled in Salisbury, Mass. After three generations the Barnard branch of the family moved to New Hampshire.

About 1813-15 Benjamin Eastman and his family came to Barnard, having lived a short time in Rochester. He was a tanner by trade and followed that occupation in Concord, N. H. and in Barnard, having his son associated with him in the latter place. Their tannery was on back street in Barnard village, just below the low stone dam where a blacksmith shop now stands. The writer well remembers the old deserted building with the vats and tan bark and has often played there.

Benjamin C. Eastman went to Fryeburgh, Me., where he married and where his first child was born, but soon joined his father in Barnard.

In Barnard the family was first associated with the Congregational church but in the great revival of 1823 which visited this region Benjamin C. Eastman was converted and joined the Methodist church in which he at once became a prominent member. He became a minister and joined the conference in 1825 and continued until 1844 as a minister among the Methodists, withdrawing from the connection on account of the slavery question, he being a strong abolitionist. His son, William Henry Eastman, born in Barnard, was a Methodist preacher for a time but later was associated with the Adventists. Edward Gamage Eastman, a son of W. H. Eastman, became a prominent lawyer and was Attorney General of New Hampshire.

On his stone is "one of the first settlers of this Town and was in Bunker hill battle." On her stone is "They lived together 65 yrs." This would have made their m. abt. 1767. They lived in the so. part of the town where he was constable and collector of taxes in 1779. He bought lot No. 80 consisting of one hundred acres of land, May 1, 1777, and sold the same to Ebenezer Richmond, Aug. 18, 1790. In the census of 1790 he had a son under sixteen, a wife and three girls. No list of his ch. has been found but from various sources it seems proper to credit to them Polly and Timothy, Jr., the latter being called Jr. in the record of his m. Timothy, Sr., was in the No. 2 school district in 1800 and prob. continued there until his d. In Mch. 17, 1783, by vote of the town, Timothy Eastman and Abel Pains were excused from paying the ministerial rate which would seem to imply merely that they did not agree with the Congregationalist church but claimed affiliation with some other body. A Timothy Eastman, d. Windsor, July 3, 1804, ae. 88 yrs. May have been father of Timothy, b. 1743.

(a) Elaine French, b. Wood., June 14, 1907; living unm., Wood., 1927.

EATON FAMILY

This family probably came into Barnard by way of Bridgewater and the family of Adna Eaton lived in the south part of Barnard. There is some question concerning the children of Zebina Eaton, as to whether Gov. Horace Eaton is his son and as to whether there were other children we do not now know. With the exception of the family of Adna Eaton the arrangement here given is provisional. The burial place of the family in Barnard is in the South Barnard cemetery. Zebina Eaton represented Barnard in the General Assembly of 1820 and 1821.

1. Zebina Eaton, d. Feb. 17, 1852, ae. 88 yrs.; m. Huldah ———; d. Jan. 30, 1852, ae. 85 yrs.

2. I. Adna, b. Bridg.
II. Horace, b. Bd., 1804; d. Middlebury, July 4, 1855. His home had been in Enosburgh, where the inscription on his monument is as follows: "Hon. Horace Eaton, M. D. For many years Representative and Senator in the state legislature, and afterwards Lieut. Governor and Governor of the state. Enlightened, learned and conscientious, he discharged the duties of every station with eminent ability. Born at Barnard, Vt., 1804. Died at Middlebury, July 4, 1855, in the 52nd year of his age."
III. Thomas S., d. Dec. 12, 1812, ae. 6-7-0.

2. Adna[2] Eaton (Zebina[1]), b. Bridg.; d. Sept. 14, 1881, ae. 90-5-0; m. (1), Demis ———, d. Feb. 12, 1857, ae. 64-10-0; m. (2), Bd., Apr. 7, 1857, Lucy A., dau. Samuel and Lovey Hutchinson, b. Pom.; d. Feb. 14, 188(4), ae. 63 yrs. Stone broken and part of date gone.

Children:

I. Francese C., d. Sept. 28, 1854. (Stone broken and date gone.)
II. Edwin W., d. May 2, 1853, ae. 32 yrs.
III. Francese L., dau., b. Bd., Feb. 1, 1858.
IV. William Zebina, b. Bd., Dec. 18, 1859.
V. Elvira E., b. abt. 1860; d. Nov. 28, 1913; m. Charles P. Preston.

Quite likely there were other children not here recorded as born to Adna Eaton. While he was born in that part of Bridgewater near South Barnard, he lived and died in the south part of Barnard, and presumably all his children were born in Barnard, as we know some of them were.

EGERY FAMILY

This family was in Barnard for a comparatively brief time. Capt. Daniel Egery was of Dartmouth, Mass., and removed to Hardwick about 1777 with his family. He had a Revolutionary War record and was a follower of Shay in 1787. While he was a resident of Hardwick he bought two hundred acres of land in Barnard, lots No. 115 and No. 165, on June 18, 1779. He probably did not come to Barnard to live at that time. However, he was in Barnard in 1790 when he sold one of his lots, No. 115, to Dr. Isaac Danforth on May 28th of that year, and was given in the deed as a resident of the town. Yet this was likely only a temporary residence as his name does not appear as a resident of the town in the census of that year. On April 5, 1793, he bought again lot No. 115 which had come into the possession of Prince Haskell, and also bought lot No. 211 from Aaron Barlow. The family did not remain long in town, save in the case of Sarah who married Samuel Steward.

1. Capt. Daniel Egery of Dartmouth, Mass., bapt., Cohasset, Sept. 27, 1741; d. Hardwick, Oct. 22-3, 1801, ae. 67-1-2; m. (1), Deborah Delano, b. May 22, 1739; d. Dartmouth, May 17, 1770; m. ELLIS FAMILY

There were several Ellis families early in Barnard. John Ellis was located on Pond Brook north of the village, Moses and Joseph Ellis families were in the east part of the town, Paul Ellis on Mount Hunger, while the Stephen Ellis family was to the west and south of the village.

1. JOHN ELLIS was a Rev. soldier with term of service extending from June, 1776 to Sept., 1781. His land was east of the Townsend farm on the brook, a road leading up to this house which is not now used, the farm being owned by Mr. DuBois and made a pasture for his stock. It is currently reported by the family that William Blackmer, the father of Sarah (Blackmer) Ellis, m. an Indian woman. Ellis was not the last Rev. soldier. D. F. Bakeman, d. Freedom, N. Y., Apr. 5, 1869, ae. 109 yrs. The last widow was Esther Damon who d. Plymouth, Vt., Nov. 11, 1906, age 92 yrs. The inscription on his tombstone in the center yard in Bd. is as follows: "John Ellis. Died Sept. 15, 1858, AE 100 y'rs. He lived to see the last respects paid to his associates, in the revolution." He was actually only 98-11-17 old, having been b. Middlebury, Mass., Oct. 3, 1759; d. John Ellis, Jr., lived at the junction of Pond Brook with Locus Creek and built the brick house. He was a miser who hoarded his gold at the time of the Civil War and was commonly called a "copperhead." He was a money lender in the town.

Carlos Ellis committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor, going out of the house in the night to a place near the bridge across the creek west of his house. His family continued to live on the place.

Adrian C. Ellis continued to live on the old Ellis place after his marriage but later moved to the John Abbott place south of the Ellis place on the brook.

In 1785 Joseph and Moses Ellis, sons of Joseph Ellis of Walpole, Mass., came to Barnard and settled near the East Barnard village. Joseph bought his land June 20, 1788, and settled on the Elwin Morse farm. Moses settled on the farm now owned by Ozro C. Ellis. This latter farm has never been out of the Ellis family. A little later another son of Joseph Ellis of Walpole came to town in the person of Paul Ellis who likely settled in the east part of the town.

1. Joseph Ellis, b. Walpole, abt. 1759; d. Bd., May 2, 1844; m. (1), Philene Boyden, b. abt. 1762; d. Bd., May 6, 1821; m. (2), Sarah or Susannah Smith, b. abt. 1759; d. Bd., Feb. 12, 1852.

Children:

*I. Susannah E., b. Walpole, Oct. 29, 1785; m. Ichabod Davis.
II. Sarah, m. John Waldron, who was in Bd. in 1790.

Moses Ellis was a deacon in the Christian church which had a small following in this section in the early days. The following is a quotation from Zions Herald of November 1, 1826: "About the year 1801, when the Methodist persuasion first visited the neighborhood, she (Catharine Ellis) became seriously convinced of sin in heart and life. After mourning for sin many weeks, one day, while engaged in her domestic employments, the burden was removed and her soul was made to rejoice with exceeding joy. From that time her face was set toward heaven. For more than ten years her husband was rather opposed to experimental religion." "Experimental religion" has become a habit with the descendants of this woman to the present generation.

EMERSON FAMILY

The family were in Barnard from about 1781 to 1800 for in the former year Asa Emerson married in Barnard, Eunice Foster. May 21, 1782, they bought a farm of 270 acres near father Foster's and on May 7, 1785, bought more land near Asa Chedel's in the same neighborhood, having sold 222 acres to Joseph Foster on January 24, 1784. This land was in the South Barnard school district between South Barnard and the head of the lake. The family joined the migration to the west and settled in Roxbury, Morgan Co., Ohio, where Mr. Emerson died. His wife lingered less than three months after his death. In 1777 Asa Emerson was in Capt. Seth Hodge's Co. of militia from Pomfret. He lived near Pomfret line.

FAIRBANKS FAMILY

Two Fairbanks brothers came to town in the last decade of the century in which the town was settling up. They were Calvin and Capt. Luther Fairbanks, sons of Deacon Joshua Fairbanks of Swansea, Mass. They or their descendants were in the town until about 1840.

The Fairbanks men seem to have been handy with tools and are spoken of as carpenters and millwrights as well as farmers. This characteristic is seen in those who migrated to the Central West. As early as 1790 Lieut. Calvin Fairbanks was associated with David Belding in developing the water power on the creek at the place first known as Belding's mills and in more recent times called Newcombsville. Here the first grist and saw mill was built in that part of the town. Calvin's farm was nearby.

Another characteristic of the Fairbanks family in Barnard, and one which followed them to the West, was their interest in matters of religion. They lived in the very center of the Old Barnard Circuit, noted far and wide for its religious fervor, and only a short distance from the first meetinghouse of the denomination on the hill in Barnard within the bounds of the old Methodist cemetery.

The father of the late vice-president, Charles Warren Fairbanks, was born in Barnard in 1824 and brought up on the Luther Fairbanks farm on the north road. The vice-president's father was Loriston Monroe Fairbanks who went with his father to Ware, Mass., in 1835.

Capt. Luther Fairbanks was the first of the name to come to town. He bought lot No. 69 consisting of one hundred acres of land in Barnard, July 31, 1777. At that time he was of Lancaster, Mass., where his first child was born the following May. He evidently did not come to town immediately but moved to Swansea, N. H., where his next two children were born. He probably came to Barnard to make his home about 1781 or 1782. He sold out his land in 1790 but did not leave town at once. He made a brief sojourn in Royalton where possibly one child was born, then moved on to Pittsfield where his two youngest children were born but returned to Barnard where he died in 1836. The writer surmises he came back to the old homestead and died in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Simeon Gates, and is buried in the Bethel cemetery on the north road, but without stone. He was a Revolutionary soldier and while scaling the fortifications with Arnold at Quebec was taken prisoner. He was discharged from service in 1778 and pensioned in 1818 with the rank of Captain. He was the great-grandfather of the late Vice-President of the United States, Charles Warren Fairbanks.

Calvin Fairbanks first appeared in Barnard about 1790 or 1791. About the former date he is part owner of the mill privilege on the creek in the Newton neighborhood. On March 12, 1792, he bought one hundred acres of land near the mill, long known as the Fairbanks-Kenney farm, a sightly location overlooking the creek valley and bordering on the Royalton town line. For this farm he paid £140. The site of the old house is in the old orchard lot southeast of the present buildings where the cellar hole is still plainly visible. Calvin had been a short time in Old Hardwick where he was married but about 1780 moved to Swansea and from there came to Barnard. His son, Lieut. Calvin Fairbanks, succeeded his father in possession of the farm and tilled it until 1836 when the family moved to Ohio. Calvin Fairbanks, the Barnard pioneer, was a soldier of the Revolution, buried in Bethel cemetery on north road, but without stone.

FAY FAMILY

In the early days the name of Fay was pretty widely scattered over the state of Vermont. The immediate seat of the family before coming to Vermont had been Old Hardwick, from which place a numerous company went to Bennington and vicinity where Dr. Jonas Fay made a mark for himself as Secretary of the Committee of Safety, being associated with the Allens and made immortal in the story of "The Green Mountain Boys."

A considerable company also came up on the east side of the mountains and settled in Barnard, Royalton, Bethel, Stockbridge and Randolph and whose children pushed still further north to Bakersfield and that section of the state.

The Fays in Old Hardwick belonged to the "Separate Church" as far back as the grandfather of those who settled in Barnard. That means that the later generations became Universalists and three of the brothers who settled in Barnard, Aaron, Moses and Eliakim, on September 4, 1795, united in declaring themselves members of the "Liberal Cartholick Society of Woodstock." These three remained for a longer time in Barnard, but their brothers, David and Joseph and their sister Polly, were here for a shorter time. This family was descended from Daniel[4], Dea. James[3], John[2], John[1] Fay who was born in England about 1648 and came to New England in the "Speedwell," June 27, 1656.

Jonas and Jonathan Fay, two cousins of the Barnard Fays, lived a short time in Barnard and then moved a little way over the town line into Royalton. They were children of Reuben[4], Dea. James[3], etc.

Mrs. Ebenezer Cox, mother of Mrs. Eliakim Fay, came to Barnard as a widow and died here.

Aaron Fay seems to have been the Barnard pioneer first to come. He bought his land of Lot Whitcomb, March 9, 1784. It was a lot of 100 acres, No. 123, for which he paid £10. It was on the side of Mt. Hunger west of Fort Defiance—probably the Walker-Paige places.

Moses Fay bought his land of Asaph Price, the original right of Thales Greenwold of which lots No. 116, No. 117 and No. 123 were already laid out. The date of his deed was February 14, 1788. On February 10, 1789, he sold 100 acres, lot No. 187, to Charles Spooner of Hardwick. It is evident by the description of this land that it adjoined the land of his brother Aaron. Moses Fay lived in the village in a house now long gone. It was a long, low, one-story house plastered on the outside and stood in what is now the yard of the Willis R. Paige place near the outlet of the lake. The writer dimly remembers the house covered with woodbine. The house was destroyed by fire. This was about the first hotel in town, used as such before Luther Chaney built the Farmers Hotel. Moses Fay's land extended to the north side of the town common as is evidenced by a vote of the town which located the town pound next the stone wall of Moses Fay. This pound was on the north end of the common.

Eliakim Fay bought his land on the side of Mount Hunger, on the road leading from the old Haskell farm. His house was the third house up this road and was plastered on the outside. He was a mason and most of the big fireplaces and chimneys in town were built by him.

1. Daniel Fay (Dea. James[3], John[2], John[1]), b. Westboro, Mass., Oct. 21, 1728; d. Hdwk., Feb. 28, 1815; m. (1), May 4, 1749, Elizabeth, dau. Dea. FISH FAMILY

Tobias Fish of Wenham was one of the original grantees of Barnard. He did not settle in town but sold his right to Joseph Fairfield, June 1, 1788. There are evidences, however, of two families of the name here, and possibly a third, early. One was the family of John Fish, Jr., who married a Tupper and settled in Aikens' neighborhood near her people. He was from Sandwich, Mass., and on June 4, 1789, bought one-half of lot No. 26 near Shiverick Crowell. He probably came to town about this time. He was married and had three children. Some of his children remained in town and grandchildren were born here.

Jonathan Fish and his wife Polly were in town about the same time and had five of their children recorded on the town book. Polly must have died in town for Jonathan, then called a Captain, married in Barnard, May 12, 1811, Betsey McGuire of Barnard.

Whether Seth and Bathsheba Fish were in town for a short time is uncertain but their daughter was married in Barnard. She may have been here with relatives. The marriage has not been found recorded in Barnard but is taken from another source.

FOSTER FAMILY

There was more than one strain of Foster blood in Barnard in early days. There was John, son of James Foster, who came here with his family from Athol, Mass., and after residing in town for a time moved on. Samuel and Abigail (Groce) Foster were here a brief time but all we know of them is the record of their children. The family of Joseph Foster was the one that made the great impression on the town. Deacon Joseph was born in Stowe, Mass., but moved to Ware from which place they came to Barnard. They probably came about 1779 for in the purchase of land in January of that year Joseph is given as of Ware. The family became extensive land owners buying on the hills between the head of the pond and South Barnard and one of the best farms in that section is still known as the General Foster place.

Some of the numerous land transactions of Deacon Joseph Foster are the following: His first purchase, while a resident of Ware, was of lot No. 2 consisting of one hundred acres, February 2, 1778. This he bought of Josiah Clark of Barnard. January 14, 1779, he was still of Ware and bought of Lot Whitcomb five hundred acres. He came to town that year for he bought two parcels of land and was given of Barnard. The first of these two was one whole share bought September 25, 1779, and the second was one-half of lot No. 9 and five acres adjoining bought November 29, 1779. He bought two hundred twenty-two acres January 24, 1784. He bought for taxes the original right of two hundred acres of Peter Curtis, February 8, 1788. Apparently the last purchase the Deacon made was of the William Wilcox farm bought of Elijah Paine, September 23, 1791. From these parcels he sold to his son, John Foster, two hundred fifty acres, May 2, 1780, and February 3, 1783, he sold 250 acres to his son Joseph. To Asa Cheedle, Jr., lot No. 118, April 1, 1785. To Asa Emerson, May 7, 1785. To Joseph Foster, Jr., lot No. 2 and other land, September 19, 1785. To Paul Wood, lot No. 195, November 16, 1787. To David Wight, lot No. 241, July 11, 1788. To Reuben Smith, one hundred twenty acres, October 7, 1782. Additional purchase by Joseph Foster from Thomas Minor of Hanover, N. H., Aug. 23, 1782, of lots No. 107, No. 108, No. 118 and No. 119.

Joseph Foster, Jr., added to the original holding he had from his father, lots No. 209 and No. 210 from Dr. Reuben Smith on September 23, 1791. Joseph, Jr., sold land to his brother Peter, November 22, 1787, and to John Atwood he sold sixty-six acres on September 12, 1792.

John Foster sold lot No. 142 to Simeon Howard, November 13, 1784. Asa Foster sold to Asa Cheedle, Jr., lots No. 107 and No. 108 on October 18, 1790. Peter Foster sold to Timothy Barlow, July 18, 1793.

The above are some of the land transactions of the early time, enough to show the family large land owners.

Deacon Joseph Foster was prominent in his day in both church and state. He was a delegate from Ware, Mass., to the Provincial Congress in 1774 and 1775. He was Captain of the Ware Company of Minute Men and responded to the Lexington Alarm. In Barnard he was a prominent citizen holding town office and the family being prominent in the Congregational church from their arrival in town.

FRANCIS FAMILY

Very little concerning this family can be secured except the record of children of Thomas H. and Mary T. Francis and the record of one death and one marriage.

Mercy, wife of Apollos Francis, born about 1773; died Barnard, Dec. 15, 1842. She is buried in the center yard. She may have been the mother of Thomas H. Francis and living with him.

Dexter Francis of Barnard and Elizabeth Stevens of Barnard were married in Barnard, April 25, 1841.

FREEMAN FAMILY

To this family belongs the honor of being the first family to settle permanently in Barnard and the first family to spend the winter in town. It is quite probable that John Newton, who came to town with Thomas and William, was also here that memorable winter of 1775.

In March, 1775, Thomas Freeman, 1st, accompanied by his son, William, a lad of eighteen years, and with John Newton, a young unmarried man, destined to later marry a daughter of Freeman, came to Barnard where Thomas Freeman had bought four hundred fifty acres of wild land, lots No. 61, No. 62, No. 58, No. 59, to which he took deed on the fourteenth of May, 1776, paying 60 cents per acre, and here in the early spring he commenced the clearing of his land and the building of his log cabin. The remainder of his family arrived in town June 15, 1775. This family were undoubtedly the first to make a clearing in town. They gathered the first hay from the beaver meadow near their land on the turnpike road.

The land of this first purchase was at the very headwaters of Broad Brook on the easterly slope of the hills toward East Barnard. The farm now, or recently, owned by Delos Jones was a part of the original purchase. Out of this land Thomas sold one hundred acres to his son William on August 17, 1778—lot No. 62 for which he received £12. Lot No. 58, also consisting of one hundred acres, was sold to his son Thomas, 2d, on July 2, 1783, for £60. One-half of all his real estate was sold to his son Elisha, on December 4, 1787, for £200, he having previously sold fifty acres to Lemuel Swift, near Benjamin Cox's, December 10, 1782, and having bought another lot of Luther Fairbanks on October 4, 1785.

The family were in town during the battle of Bunker Hill and heard the firing as they kneeled to drink at the large spring on their land, on what was later known as the Jonas Bowman farm. It is thought that some members of the family went back to Old Hardwick to spend the winter but Thomas Freeman 2d and John Newton wintered in Barnard in 1775-6. On the tombstone of Thomas Freeman, Jr., in the Methodist cemetery is the following inscription, "He was one of the first that endured the inclemencies of winter in this town."

The original Freeman homestead remained for three generations in the Freeman name—Thomas 1st, Thomas 2d, Lucius. These families, and the others of the Freeman name, were among the most substantial of the town, holding important offices in church and state from the first and being highly regarded by their townsmen. This was their heritage for they were descended from the finest of the old Puritan stock.

In Barnard, Lieut. Thomas Freeman, the Barnard pioneer, occupied important positions from the first. He was on the Committee of Safety in 1777-1778. In the first town meeting in 1778 he was chosen moderator, selectman and treasurer. The next year he was one of the committee of three to lay out the north road. In 1780 he headed the committee of five to build the new town meetinghouse. In 1781 he was tythingman and the next year he was the first selectman. The family was at first prominently identified with the Congregational church, but when the Methodists sent preachers into this section most of the members of the family cast in their lot with that church and were prominent in its affairs for three generations. It was at the home of Thomas Freeman that Bishop Francis Asbury preached the first time he came to town, his journal under Wednesday, June 18, 1806, reading, "We reached Barnard. I preached at Thomas Freeman's, on Acts 26: 17, 18. Here is a lively, large society. We had a full house at a short warning." Thomas Freeman 2d was an early class leader, his daughter married a Methodist minister, and his son, Lucius, was class leader, trustee and steward to the time of his removal to Wisconsin. Stephen Freeman, the youngest son of Lieut. Thomas, though living just over the line in the town of Royalton, was a very prominent Methodist, supporting the work at the meetinghouse on the north road and holding important offices among the Methodists and being prominent in Royalton in civic affairs.

For much valuable information, especially regarding Elisha[6] and his descendants, the writer is indebted to W. N. Freeman of Boston and Miss Gertrude B. Spaulding of Washington, D. C.

FRENCH FAMILY

Roger French bought lot No. 194 in the south part of Barnard on April 13, 1791. This was a hundred acre farm adjoining the land of Moses and Eleazar Lurvey. January 13, 1792, he bought an additional hundred acres, lot No. 12, from his father-in-law, Samuel Tobey of Berkley. The land is near the South Barnard school.

Samuel Tobey, Jr., of Berkley, Mass., bought the original right of John Box, Jr., May 12, 1779, and eight days later sold one-fourth of the right to Abel Babbitt of Berkley. Tobey sold two lots from this right to Ebenezer Richmond, May 1 and May 31, 1779, and one lot to Amaziah Richmond, May 31, 1779. This was in addition to his sale of lot No. 12 to Roger French. There is no reason for thinking that Tobey ever lived in Barnard.

Charles French, brother of Roger, born Barnard, August 22, 1844, aged 77 yrs, buried center cemetery.

Bd., July 29, 1829; d. Bd., Sept. 2, 1896. He shipped on a three years' cruise on a whaling vessel in the Pacific at the age of twenty-five. The boat ran short of water and all they had to drink was rain water caught in newly painted boats. The crew were poisoned with the lead and some died. He was put ashore on a south sea island. Afterward he was sent to a hospital in Chile. Getting a little better he was put aboard a homeward bound vessel but getting worse he was again put ashore to die in a foreign land. He later came home but was always incapacitated for hard work. He kept a store at the outlet of the lake, still standing on the northeast side. Here he was postmaster for forty years from 1857 and town clerk from 1870 to 1892.

GALE FAMILY

The Gale family was of Scotch Highlander descent. The immigrant ancestor of the Barnard Gales was Richard Gale of Watertown, Mass., 1640. The Barnard pioneers were Capt. John Gale and Amos Gale (Amos[5], Josiah[4], Abraham[3], Abraham[2], Richard[1]) sons, of Amos and Hannah (Maynard) Gale. The family had lived in Sutton, Alstead, Grafton and Princeton, N. H.

The Gales were a robust people, farmers for the most part, and interested in religion. After the Methodists came into New England many of the name were identified with that church and this was the case with the Barnard family.

One of the families lived near the head of the lake between the Gifford farm and the Aikens place, the place was later owned by the town as a town farm. It would appear that the other family lived in the south part of the town.

1. Amos Gale, m. Hannah Maynard. Probably it was Amos Gale who lived at the head of the lake and that his son, Gilman, lived there until the place was taken over by the town for a town farm.

Children:

2. I. John, b. Alstead, N. H., Oct. 4, 1773.
II. Deliverance, b. Alstead, Sept. 7, 1785.

GATES FAMILY

The Gates family came to Barnard from Preston, Conn., by the way of Royalton. Robert Gates was living in Plainfield, Conn., at the time he bought forty acres of land on September 26, 1788, on Royalton hill not far from the Barnard town line. The next year he bought more land in the same section.

Jemima Dean, sister of Robert and daughter of Simeon[5] Gates, died Barnard, July 17, 1876, aged 68-3, having married Hosea Dean who died before her.

1. Robert[6] Gates (Simeon[5], Robert[4], Thomas[3], Stephen[2], Stephen[1]), b. Preston, Conn.; d. May 6, 1790; m. 1774, Rosamond, dau. Simeon and Ruth (Harris) Cady, b. July 9, 1751. Rosamond, m. (2), Joseph Chamberlin. Lived on the Roy. hills not far from the Bd. Gates home on the north road.

VII. SIMEON, b. Bd., July 13, 1859; living in Ware, Mass., 1922. Two girls.

The Simeon Gates farm in Barnard, occupied by two generations of that name, was a most sightly and productive farm on the north road about two miles north of Barnard village. The family joined the migration to Ware and none of the blood are now in the town.

The Gates Genealogy, which gives us little assistance so far as the Barnard branch of the family is concerned, says, "The Gates blood seems to have been of decided tropical nature. The daughter, Mary, very boldly contradicted the minister in the public assembly. Stephen Gates quarrelled with his neighbors, the Whitcombes, was deprived of his constable's staff, and moved away from Lancaster after less than three years' residence. He died at Cambridge in 1662, and his sons attempted, without success, to break his will, alleging that their father was not of disposing mind." By the time the family reached Barnard the "tropical blood" had cooled off some and the family was highly respected, sober and industrious and supporters of the Methodist church in Barnard village.

Col. Forrest Gates migrated to Ware from Barnard.

GEORGE FAMILY

1. Christopher George, b. Pittsfield, May 1, 1844; d. June 18, 1905; m. Jennie Spooner, b. Bd., Oct. 15, 1862; d. Apr. 10, 1910.

GIBBS FAMILY

This family did not come early to town but were found in Stockbridge and Bethel before coming to Barnard. It has not been possible to get a full account of the family on account of the incomplete records.

Lemuel and Hannah Gibbs lived in Bethel and among their children were Lemuel, Jr., and Daniel, both of whom died in Barnard. Daniel Gibbs, b. Be.; d. Bd., Dec. 2, 1858, ae. 49-3-13. Nothing more is known of him.

1. Lemuel[2] Gibbs (Lemuel[1]), m. Joanna C. ———. Lived in Bd.

III. Alzina, m. ——— Kidder. Left a widow and with her daughter, Josie, lived with her father in the house north of the Newton farm on the creek.

The estate of Daniel Gibbs was appraised December 15, 1858. Mrs. Taggart writes that Alonzo and Della Gibbs attended the school on the creek and "lived on the hill back of the schoolhouse" —presumably the second farm west of the Newton farm. Perhaps they were children of Charles Gibbs.

GIFFORD FAMILY

Samuel Gifford, the Barnard pioneer, was descended from John Gifford, one of the early settlers of Sandwich, Mass. Samuel bought one thousand acres of land in Barnard, January 2, 1783, in the east part of the town near Cox and Tupper. In his deed he is given as coming from Sandwich. Probably his first child was born in Sandwich although the name is given in the list as recorded in the Barnard town book. It is quite likely the family came to town in the spring of 1783.

1. Samuel Gifford (Josiah[5], Josiah[4], Samuel[3], Samuel[2], John[1]), son Josiah and Elisa (Nye) Gifford, b. Sandwich, Mass., Mch. 30, 1751; m. Anna, dau. Silas and Hannah (Freeman) Tupper, b. Sandwich, Apr. 9, 1758. There is no record of the d. of either in Bd. and they may have gone out of town in their age to live with one of their ch.

GLOVER FAMILY

It would appear from the birth of the children recorded in the town book that this family lived in Plymouth and Putney before coming to town between 1818 and 1825. After the death of the father the widow caused the recording of the birth of each of the children.

1. Peter S. Glover, d. Bd., Dec. 24, 1837, ae. 40-8; m. Mary Robinson, d. Bd., Jan. 18, 1858, ae. 59-3.

GOFF FAMILY

The Goff family came to Pomfret probably soon after 1795 from Rehoboth, Mass., and settled just south of East Barnard village on the brook. The family spread out into Barnard and Royalton, still keeping close to Broad Brook. It was Oliver and Thankful Goff who came to the new country. It is said they had ten children but the writer has not been able to get a complete list of them. There is reason for feeling that the seven children given below were of this family. While many of the name of Goff lived either in Pomfret or Royalton they were all closely identified with the East Barnard interests and consequently are here given.

1. Oliver Goff, m. Thankful ——— and lived near E. Bd.

GRAVES FAMILY

This was one of the early New England families. The emigrant ancestor was Thomas Graves who with his wife and four sons and a daughter, all grown up, came to New England and settled first in Hartford as early as 1645. From this place the family went to Weathersfield and to Hatfield and then to Swanzey, N. H., from which place the family came to Vermont.

Note.—In the early generations and much in the children of Abner Graves I have followed the Genealogy of the Graves Family in America, by John Card Graves, M. A. But in reference to the children of Abner and the families in Royalton and Barnard I have discovered inaccuracies in dates which have been corrected and have supplied many omissions from reliable sources.

1. Abner Graves (Abraham[4], Samuel[3], John[2], Thomas[1]), b. Swansey, N. H., abt. 1734; d. Stratton, Feb. 2, 1787; m. Dorcas, dau. David and Thankful Belding of Winchester, N. H., b. May 28, 1737; d. Bd., Apr. 14, 1812, ae. 74 yrs.

Children:

*I. SARAH, b. Swansey, Nov. 3, 1765; m. Peter Wheelock.
II. JOHN, b. Swansey, June 20, 1771; d. prob. Watertown, N. Y.; m. (1), Roy., Oct. 8, 1797, Sarah, dau. James and Hannah Huntington, b. abt. 1777; d. Roy., Mch. 6, 1813, ae. 36 yrs.; m. (2), Watertown, widow Hannah (Winslow) Ayres whose husband had d. a prisoner in Quebec, War of 1812. His first wife and six ch. are buried in Howe Cem. in Roy.
III. ABRAM, b. Swansey, June 14, 1773; d. prob. Watertown, N. Y., Mch. 27, 1854; m. Roy., June 9, 1797, Mehitable, dau. Theodore and Lydia Howe; b. prob. Swanzey, N. H., Feb. 29, 1780; d. prob. Watertown, N. Y., May 29, 1861. He bought land in Roy. in 1794 but left town in 1809. In 1816 he was in N. Y. but at some time he lived in Bd. His wife was a sister of his brother Isaac's wife. He was Ensign in the militia in Watertown and was stationed at Sackett's Harbor, May 28, 1813, and in the fight was captured and held a prisoner for a little over a year, when he was released. Prob. his living in Bd. was after that and both he and his wife may have d. in this vicinity. Ten ch. of whom the first six are said to have been b. in Roy.
2. IV. ISAAC, b. Swansey, Apr. 13, 1775.
*V. GRATIS, m. James Aikens.
VI. DORCAS, b. Swansey, June 9, 1778; d. Watertown, N. Y., June 9, 1852; m. Elisha Scott of Stratton, who d. Apr. 9, 1807.

All the children, with the possible exception of Dorcas, lived near each other on the Royalton and Barnard hills and Isaac and Gratis were residents of Barnard through their married life and Sarah was here a brief time and Abram spent some part of his life in Barnard.

2. ISAAC[6] GRAVES (Abner[5], Abraham[4], Samuel[3], John[2], Thomas[1]), b. Swanzey, N. H., Apr. 13, 1775; d. Bd., Mch. 10, 1858; m. Prudence, dau. Theodore and Lydia Howe, b. Apr. 7, 1778; d. Bd., Jan. 14, 1849. Lived in Roy. two yrs., then settled in Bd. at the place at the fork of the road from E. Bd. village to Wood., a productive farm remaining in the family three generations. Isaac was a long time class leader and local preacher among the Methodists, worshipping at the old church on the north road and was one of the trustees who built the house.

GRAY FAMILY

There were three families of this name here. Thomas and Samuel Gray were here as early as 1790. The former lived in the Mount Hunger section and the latter in the central school district in 1800, being an unmarried householder in 1790. In 1790 Thomas Gray had a daughter in the family, according to the census, of whom we know not the name. At a much later time Joseph Gray was in town. He lived on the hill between the head of the lake and south Barnard.

1. THOMAS GRAY, "m. in Vt.," Thankful, dau. Samuel and Martha (Goodspeed) Winslow of So. Pom., b. Chesterfield, N. H., Jan. 10, 1769; d. Tecumseh, Mich. Lived in Bd., Houndsfield, N. Y., and in Michigan.

Their ch. were: Daughter; Elliot, d. Bd., Aug. 9, 1795; Joseph, Horace, Jesse and Alexander.

1. SAMUEL GRAY was in Bd. in 1790 and m. there, June 12, 1792, Lydia Curtis of Bd. No record of his ch. has been found and it is thought he went West some time after m.

1. DR. JOSEPH GRAY, prob. the son of Matthew and Jean Gray, b. Pelham, Mass., June 4, 1758 (claimed by some to have been b. in Providence, R. I., 1751); d. Mason, N. H., 1812; m. 1780, Lucy, dau. Samuel Bancroft, d. Mason, N. H., 1815. Moved to Mason, N. H., 1790. Nine ch. of whom the fourth was Dr. Joseph Gray, b. Feb. 9, 1788; d. Taftsville, Feb. 9, 1879; m. Cavendish, July 11, 1811, Eunice Russell, d. Taftsville, June 9, 1859. Taftsville is in the town of Wood. The Dr. lived in Bd. on the farm from the head of the lake to the south part of the town but moved to Wood. His son, Joseph, had the homestead.

GREEN FAMILY

Several representatives of the Green family were in town early but the records of the family are very imperfect. Lieut. Beriah Green lived in Barnard and died in Pomfret. He was in Captain Cox's company, in Fort Defiance in 1780. His first purchase of land was in the northwesterly part of the town where he bought two hundred sixty-seven acres on May 5, 1783, this land having been sold for taxes. It is doubtful if he ever lived on the side of the Delectable Mts. where this land was. The original right of Francis Bernard, Jr., was sold for taxes July 10, 1790, and Green bid that off. September 18, 1790, he bought lot No. 69, south of the lake and not far from his father-in-law, Solomon Aikens, and this became his homestead, August 22, 1791, he bought at vendue Anderson's and Wendell's original rights and then bought a farm near William Cheedle's land which was not far from his lot No. 69. On October 31, 1791, he sold a farm to Sarah Wight in the east part of the town and on December 13, 1792, sold lot No. 12 to Frederick Green, who may have been his brother.

Among other names of the family are noted as householders in the census of 1790 Charles, Beriah and Frederick Green. Arba Green was in town as early as 1791 and Elijah Green is head of a family in town in 1800.

The families were related to the Tupper and Aikens families and it would seem from the marriages in town and from other reasons that Beriah, Mary, Frederick and Arba were of one family and of the same generation. But this has not yet been definitely determined.

1. Capt. Beriah Green, d. Pom.; m. Bd., Dec. 26, 1781, Anne dau. Solomon and Dorcas (Whitcomb) Aikens of Bd., b. Hdwk. Mch. 13, 1754; d. prob. Pom. Dr. Cox is authority for the statement that Beriah Green had eight ch., of whom seven are buried in the cemetery in Bd. village.

II. Marshal, d. Bd., Oct. 14, 1801.
III. Anna, b. Bd., Nov. 30, 1786.
IV. Erepta, b. Bd., Sept. 7, 1788.
V. Charles, b. Bd., Nov. 1, 1790; d. Bd., July 25, 1793.

1. Frederick Green, perhaps a bro. of Beriah, d. Bd., Jan. 29, 1801, ae. 38 yrs.; m. Levina, dau. Solomon and Dorcas (Whitcomb) Aikens of Bd., b. Aug. 25, 1769; d. Bd., May 1, 1820. On the stone at his grave is "I left my wife and children dear for to take my lodging here." So far record of only one son has been found in addition to the posthumous son b. about six months after the d. of Frederick and in the record called the "son of widow Vina Green." Tradition has it that Frederick Green was the first man drowned in Silver Lake. He was out in a log canoe with Benjamin and Timothy Eastman and a dog, rocked the boat to scare his companions, the boat capsized, the boys were towed to shore by clinging to the dog's tail and Green was drowned. If the tradition is correct then Green's d. could not have happened the 29th of January as boating is not very good on the lake at that time when there is usually two feet of ice. Jan. 29 may have been June 29 and so the tradition be true and the mistake due to a copyist.

Children:

2. I. Calvin, b. Bd.
II. Frederick (posthumous son), b. Bd., July 14, 1801.

The following is quoted without marks from an old paper which reads like the writing of Doctor Cox. Calvin Green was a staunch Whig. He was a prominent business man of the town, was wounded quite severely in the hand and arm in the War of 1812. He took an active part in the election of "Tippecanoe and Tyler too" in 1840. A great mass meeting was held at the old Chaney tavern in the village, many adjoining towns uniting in the celebration. A large log cabin was erected and placed on wheels. There was a table beside the cabin, with beans and bread, and alongside the table was a barrel of hard cider. The occupants of the typical farmer's home were Calvin Green and his wife. The outfit was drawn by six white horses through the streets of Barnard, amidst wildest enthusiasm. Speeches were made, flags waved, cheers given, the old cannon seem to be glad to belch out its sharp roar in anticipation of the coming election. Tables were set on the lawn in front of the tavern and hundreds sat down to dinner. The "menu" consisted of baked beans, corn bread and hard cider. This was to show how the working people of the country lived in comparison with the then Van Buren administration, whose representatives, it was alleged, ate with gold spoons. It is said preparations were made for five thousand people, and even at that, they ran short. The empty cider barrels denoting a perfect deluge of this, then popular, farmers' beverage. The dinner held late, many preferring not to go home until after dark. The next morning the roads leading out of the village were decorated for miles with the contents of the stomachs of those Whigs. No accidents and not much sickness after a few days. Calvin Green became an ardent Republican, lived to a good old age, and died well respected by all in Barnard.

2. CALVIN[2] GREEN (Frederick[1]), b. Bd.; d. Bd., June 3, 1877, ae. 84-2-15; m. Bd., Dec. 3, 1815, Nancy, dau. Ellis and Eunice (Ellis) Tupper of Bd.; d. Bd., Sept. 13, 1890, ae. 93 yrs. Greatly indebted to Mrs. W. F. Davis for information concerning Calvin Green's descendants. The home was on the turnpike road below the Asa Perry place.

HAMMOND FAMILY

This family did not come into Barnard among the earliest settlers but was related to the Bicknell family who were here early. Three generations of the family lived on the old Fort Defiance farm on the creek and were a credit to the town.

George C. Hammond (Jabez[4], Jabez[3], John[2], Benjamin[1]) could trace his ancestry back to William Hammond of England who married Elizabeth Penn, sister of Admiral Penn and aunt of William Penn. The family in New England had lived in New Bedford, Mass., and came to Woodstock in the person of Jabez Hammond, Jr., who married Priscilla Delano, descendant of a noted French Huguenot family—De La Nois—and there reared his family, several of the children becoming somewhat famous. Among the number was Jabez D. Hammond, LL. D., a member of Congress from New York, Regent of the University of New York and author of the Political History of New York. Another of the children was Rebecca, born probably at Rochester or New Bedford, Mass.; died in Indiana; married in 1800, Samuel Laird, born in 1770; died in 1838. They lived at Warren, Vt., until after the birth of their children when in 1820 they moved to North Madison, Ind., where both parents died. In her western home she was a teacher of the classics. She published several volumes of poetry and was withall a superior woman. Her children born in Warren were Julia, Samuel, Horatio Nelson and Charles K. Rhoda Hammond, another daughter of Jabez, Jr., married Nathaniel Dean and lived in Barnard west of the village on the other side of the hill—the back side of the Wilderness—where they reared their family, of whom Amos became noted as a lawyer and educator in New York state and in Iowa.

1. GEORGE C. HAMMOND, 1ST., the remaining child of Jabez Hammond, b. So. Wood., 1783; d. Bd., Oct. 16, 1849; m. Wood. or Pom., Lucy Paine, b. 1777; d. Bd., Dec. 28, 1850. He was a noted school teacher, living in Wood., Pom. and Bd. He was thirty years in Pom., where his ch. were b. He bought the old Fort Defiance farm on the creek and came there with his son, George C. Hammond, 2d, who continued to own the farm as long as he lived and who passed it down to his son, George C. Hammond, 3d.

Children:

I. ALMIRA, b. Pom.; d. Bd., July 29, 1883, ae. 75-1-9; m. William Sterling of Wood.

II. MIRANDA, b. Pom., 1811.

(ii) DOROTHY, b. 1902.

(iii) DONALD, b. 1907.

(e) BERTHA, b. Bd., Oct. 25, 1863; living in Lexington, Mass., 1927; m. 1903, John Langdon Norris of Lexington, Mass., who d. 1920. No ch. She was a talented school teacher.

George C. Hammond, 3d, lived on the farm until after the death of his first daughter when he went to Massachusetts. In 1909 he went to Patterson, Cal., where he owned a ranch. He was a man of sterling character and successful in his work and was the last of the name to own the farm. He inherited the Hammond love of learning and was widely read and deeply interested in public affairs.

George C. Hammond, 2d, was never a very strong man or he would have chosen a literary or professional career. Like his father he was a school teacher. He was for a long time the correspondent for the local paper and wrote interestingly on a variety of timely topics. He was one of the main supporters of the Barnard Lyceum where with Dr. Ayres and Lucian Blackmer the town discussed and settled all the momentous questions of the day. Their debates were always worth listening to and were more than the forensic efforts of the store steps where "Walt" Clark presided. He was proud to recall the achievements of his uncle Jabez, his aunt Priscilla and his cousin Amos. It was not for lack of ability that his achievements were less notable than that of the group of talented persons who sprang as a bubbling fountain from the union of Jabez Hammond and Priscilla Delano. All the Barnard Hammonds were strict Methodists from choice and were able to defend their belief against all comers. It was a bad day and a hard road when the horse did not carry a load from the Hammond home to services in Barnard village.

The old Fort farm has changed hands many times since the last of the Hammonds owned it. Before that time from the days of wild land it had been owned but by families bearing two names.

HARDING FAMILY

Not much is known of this family. It appears to have been a Pomfret or Bridgewater family, one or two of whose representatives came into Barnard. The John W. Harding place was on the Royalton line back of the Lewis-Thayer farm, the first place on the road leading from the north road. The writer surmises that John W., Benjamin Franklin, Cephas, Emeline and Solomon P. Harding were all of one family and one generation of the Pomfret or Bridgewater Hardings.

1. John W. Harding, b. Pom., 1821; d. Bd., Sept. 23, 1891, ae. 70-7-25; m. Diantha A., dau. Joseph and Mary Newell, b. Stock., 1817; d. Bd., Oct. 9, 1892, ae. 75-11-27. Record is found of only one ch. There were likely others.

SOLOMON P. HARDING of Pom., b. abt. 1817 and Harriette M. Cheedle of Pom., b. abt. 1815; m. Bd., Nov. 8, 1865.

HARLOW FAMILY

There were several families of this name connected with the town in later days. They were probably all related but their relationship has not been traced. At least two of these families were basket makers and had a rake and basket shop either in the southeast part of the town or just over the town line in Pomfret. The fact that there were many of the children recorded in Barnard leads to the supposition that they were in Barnard.

HARPIN FAMILY

1. George L. Harpin, b. Canada; m. Mercy R., dau. Anson and Sophia Snow, b. Pom.; d. Bd., Oct. 3, 1884, ae. 56-10-20. The family lived in Barnard on the farm west of the old Congregational parsonage lot on the side hill overlooking the village. Some of the family went to Windsor where they were employed in the State Prison. There were sons in the family.

Child:

I. Dora J., b. Bd., Dec. 25, 1866.

HASKELL FAMILY

There are traces of two Haskell brothers who were land owners in Barnard in the early days and some reason to believe that a third brother was also here for a short time. They were from Old Hardwick, Mass.

They were of an old New England family descended from Roger Haskell, born in England in 1613; died Beverley, Mass., 1667; married Elizabeth Hardy and had eight children. He was a fisherman. His second son was Mark[2] Haskell who died at Rochester, Mass., May 17, 1699, having married March 20, 1677-8, Mary, daughter of John Smith. He was a carpenter and held the office of town clerk. His oldest child was Roger[3] Haskell, born October 17, 1680; married January 25, 1707-8, Joanna Swift of Sandwich. They lived in Rochester. Roger's oldest child was Mark[4] Haskell, born March 28, 1709; married December 21, 1730, Mary Spooner of Dartmouth, Mass., and lived in Rochester. Their oldest child was Nathaniel[5] Haskell, born February 26, 1731-2; died Old Hardwick, July 16, 1821; married (1) published April 3, 1757, Lydia, daughter of Deacon James Foster of Rochester; married (2), published May 25, 1790, Sarah Carter of Grantham who died September 15, 1809, aged 69 years. Nathaniel was a cordwainer and farmer and lived in Old Hardwick where all his children, save the first, were born and all were children of the first wife.

Prince Haskell was the Barnard pioneer, coming to town in 1779. He was a surveyor and many of the farms in town were laid out by his chain and compass. He was an intense patriot, had been in the Revolutionary Army and was with Captain Crawford as drummer at the battle of Saratoga before he was nineteen years old. He bought the Haskell-Putnam farm, lot No. 125 consisting of one hundred acres on the creek just below the outlet of Pond Brook, June 28, 1779 and as an unmarried man commenced his clearing and the building of his log house. It was while working on this land, August 9, 1780, that he was captured by Indians and carried to Canada where he was confined in the Montreal jail as a prisoner of war until exchanged on July 15, 1781. His military record was honorable. According to a statement on file in Washington he stated that he was a drummer in Captain Hazeltine's Regiment in 1775 for the period of eight months investing Boston. He reenlisted for another month on the expiration of the eight months mentioned. In 1776 he served four month under Captain Hamilton near Ticonderoga. In 1777 he volunteered in Captain Paige's Company on the Bennington alarm. On return from this alarm he enlisted in Captain Crawford's Company as mentioned above and witnessed the surrender of Burgoyne.

After his return from captivity he went down to Hingham, Mass., and married Leah Wilder, October 4, 1781 (bans published February, 1780 but the wedding interfered with by the Indians) and brought her to Barnard, riding on a pillion on a horse with himself and in very cold weather. Here they raised their family and lived until they went West in 1835.

Prince Haskell owned other land in Barnard in addition to the home farm. July 11, 1790, he bought at vendue the original right of Jonas Jonathan. December 5, 1792, he bought of Aaron Barlow lots No. 100, No. 103 and No. 115. On April 5, 1793, he sold lot No. 115 to his old townsman, Capt. Daniel Egery who was then in Barnard. The same day he bought the three lots of Aaron Barlow he sold him the original right of Jonas Jonathan. So after December, 1792, he owned in addition to his homestead lots No. 100 and No. 103.

Like others he was hard pressed to pay his debts after the war and was with his neighbors Whitcomb, Aikens and Bicknell under Benjamin Stebbings at the Windsor riot. But he seemed to have calmed down after that, yet he was ever a pugnacious fellow.

Nathaniel Haskell was probably in Barnard about 1781. He was given as of Hardwick on March 12, 1781, when he bought lots No. 169, No. 139 and No. 173 "in the south west part of the town" which locates him in Chateauguay on the side of the Delectable Mountains in the vicinity of the extra land own by his brother, Prince Haskell. He probably went from town to Brookfield, N. Y. But little is known of him in Barnard. In the census of 1790 his family consisted of himself and his wife only.

George Haskell and his wife Betsey were here for a short time. August 30, 1806, they buried their son, Artemas H. Haskell, in the cemetery in Barnard village. The little boy was aged one year, eleven months and twenty-five days. It has not been found that George Haskell was a land owner in town. He probably returned to Hardwick. Paige in his History of Hardwick says he inherited the homestead and died in Waldoboro, Maine, but has a headstone in the new cemetery in Old Hardwick. Paige, however, says he married Comfort Knowlton who was the mother of his children while the inscription on the stone in the Barnard cemetery is "son of George and Betcy." Perhaps he was twice married.

HATCH FAMILY

The first mention of the name of Hatch in town is when Noah Hatch bought ninety acres of land between the creek and the north road near Paige, Brigham, Newton, Wright, Dean and Chamberlin on August 24, 1784. This was not far from the home of his brother-in-law, Jesse Dunham. The writer questions whether any house was ever built on this land. He had been married the year before and evidently intended to make this his homestead but he soon left town and was in Westminster when he sold his holding on February 20, 1788. He had been a resident of Old Hardwick before coming to Barnard for his brief sojourn and was the son of Isaiah (Ezekiel[4], Samuel[3], Walter[2], Elder William[1]) Hatch, the family having first lived for three generations in Scituate, then sojourned a generation in Rochester and moved on to Hardwick. Noah, son of Isaiah Hatch was a Revolutionary soldier and in the roll was described as five feet, ten inches tall and of a ruddy complexion. He was born in Rochester or Hardwick, about 1760; died in Westminster, Vt., February, 1791; m. Hardwick, February 4, 1783, Jemima, daughter of Capt. Ebenezer and Elizabeth (Wight) Cox, born Wrentham or Hardwick, November 10, 1761.

The name of Hatch does not again appear in Barnard until between 1850 and 1860 when Horace Hatch, "of ruddy complexion," bought the old Judge Clapp farm on Mt. Hunger and lived there until the time of his death when the farm descended to his son, James W. Hatch, and is still occupied (1927) by a daughter of James W. Hatch.

1. Horace Hatch (Adrian[2], Adrian[1]), b. Sh., Feb. 8, 1824; d. Bd., Oct. 18, 1902; m. prob., Roy., Mrs. Lucy Maria Townsend, dau. James and Sally (Flagg) Wright, b. Bd., Aug. 19, 1818; d. Bd., Jan. 30, 1908. She had first m. Charles Amidon Townsend of Bd. by whom she had two ch. and then divorced him. This branch of the Hatch family lived in Norwich, Sh. and Roy. Adrian was a clothier and lived in So. Roy. the last of his life.

Children:

I. James Wright, b. Bd., Dec. 27, 1860; d. Bd., Aug. 3, 1909; m. Gaysville, May 31, 1883, Ida B., dau. William T. and Mary (Janes) Brink of Bd., b. Waterbury, Apr. 1, 1866.

HATHAWAY FAMILY

"The Hathaways were a wealthy and prominent family of Dartmouth. They were among the early settlers of that town and took a prominent part in the affairs of the town."

The Hathaways were Quakers and Ichabod Hathaway is so given in the town book on October 29, 1794, and there the statement is made that he came from Rochester, Mass., in 1791. He lived on the side of the Delectable Mountains in the Nye neighborhood in 1800 but not more is known of him.

1. ABIJAH HATHAWAY, b. July 17, 1716; m. May 26, 1748, Sarah, dau. Josiah and Sarah Talbot.

Children:

I. ISAAC, b. Oct. 23, 1749; m. Oct. 30, 1783, Elizabeth, dau. John Babbitt.

X. BENANUEL, b. Apr. 28, 1864; m. Rebecca Hathaway.

William Hathaway and wife, Asenath, had nine children whose names are recorded in the Barnard town book but the page is so badly mutilated most of the names are partly gone and supplied from another source. The burial place of the Hathaways is the South Barnard cemetery. Important information in what follows was gleaned from letters written in 1839 by Asenath (Nye) Hathaway.

2. WILLIAM[2] HATHAWAY (Abijah[1]), b. Sept. 10, 1759; living, 1839; m. (1), July 14, 1789, Bathsheba, dau. Capt. Abel and Elizabeth (Hathaway) Babbitt, b. Jan. 26, 1769; d. prob. 1792; m. HATHORN FAMILY

This family came to Barnard from Reading, Vt., and settled in lower Chateauguay, south of the Morgan Mills.

Laban Hathorn, son of Benjamin and Rhoda Hathorn, born Reading; died Barnard, December 30, 1877, aged 78-2-26. At the time of his death he had a widow living whose death is not recorded but she probably died in Barnard at a later date.

1. Curtis W., son Laban Hathorn, b. Reading, Jan. 20, 1830; d. Bd., May 25, 1905; m. Maria M. Fleming, b. Middlebury, Feb. 14, 1836; d. Bd., Aug. 2, 1909. The order of the birth of their ch. is somewhat uncertain.

HEMINWAY FAMILY

This family was in Barnard for a brief time only. Sidney S. Heminway, born Shoreham, 1803; died Hoboken, N. Y., buried Mt. Auburn, 1877; married (1), 1827, Miranda, daughter of Isaac and Mary (Smith) Pierce, born Royalton, January 17, 1803; died Rochester, 1831; married (2), 1833, Susan Pierce, a sister of Miranda, born Royalton, June 20, 1809; died 1847.

Sidney S. Heminway was a merchant and did business in Rochester, Barnard, Barton and in New York City. He represented the town of Barnard in the legislature in the session of 1834.

II. Ellen, b. Bd.; d. Bd., Jan. 25, 1867.

HERRADEN FAMILY

This name was later spelled Harraden and Haraden.

Apparently John Herraden, Sr., was in town for it is said he is buried in the Barnard center cemetery, without stone, as a soldier of the French and Indian War. In Captain Safford's Company, March 5, 1780, for 8 months and 25 days.

John Herraden, Jr., who was apparently an unmarried man at the time, bought forty-two acres of land in South Barnard near the Briggs farm on June 5, 1783. He bought eighty-three acres more in the same section from Joseph Byam, Mch 1, 1786. According to Clark he is buried in the South Barnard cemetery as a soldier of the War of 1812.

Quoting from the Bethel Herald: "George L. Haraden, b. Bd., Oct. 26, 1829; d. Rand., Oct., 1909; m. Elizabeth C., dau. John and Florilla Edson who survived him. They had only one child. a daughter who died in infancy. A few years after his birth his father moved from Barnard to between Bethel and Randolph. He had brothers, Philo, Charles and Henry L. and a sister who married Benjamin Abbott."

According to the census of 1790 the family of John Harraden consisted of himself, a son over sixteen (probably John, Jr.), his wife and a daughter.

HEWETT FAMILY

1. The Hewetts were numerous in Pomfret near East Barnard. Several of the name find burial in the East Barnard cemetery which is on the line between Pomfret and Barnard. Two children of Henry and Hannah Hewett are recorded in the Barnard town book. It is presumed they lived in the east part of the town.

III. Agnes Sadie, b. Bd., Sept. 25, 1876.

HODGES FAMILY

This family was identified with the town of Pomfret for many years and touched Barnard only lightly in the days of the first settlement of the town. Yet while the family was in town Captain Hodges was an important personage.

Edmund Hodges removed with his father from Norton to Hardwick from which town he came to Barnard with his wife and daughter Margaret, and probably with other children also. He had been in the French and Indian Wars at the age of fifteen, was a minute man at the Lexington Alarm, was at Bunker Hill during the siege of Boston and went to the defense of the Northern Army at Bennington in 1777 as captain of militia. He had been a lieutenant in the previous campaign. After settling in Vermont he was Captain of the Hartford militia in 1778, while still a resident of Barnard, doing scouting to the north in the vicinity of Corinth. In 1780 he was Captain of the company of men, mostly from Pomfret and Hartford, stationed at Fort Fortitude in Bethel. At the first town meeting in Barnard, April 9, 1778, he was elected one of the assessors of the town and the same year was elected the first representative of the town to the legislature. In 1779 he was a member of a committee appointed by the governor and council to adjust some land difficulties in Royalton. In 1780 or 1781 he removed to Pomfret, selling his Barnard land to Daniel Hodges of Norton, 150 acres, lot No. 39, and one-half of lot No. 38, November 15, 1781. Perhaps Daniel Hodges never lived in town for he sold this land to Jacob Lawton of Hardwick on November 7, 1786. Captain Hodges was selectman in Pomfret from 1782 to 1785. He sold out in Pomfret in 1787 and no more is known of him although his family continued to reside in Pomfret. Seth Hodges of Pomfret was a brother of Capt. Edmund Hodges.

1. Edmund Hodges, b. Norton, Mass., Aug. 17, 1744; m. (1), Rachel Godfrey; m. (2), Ruth (Fletcher) Paddock, widow of Robert Paddock, d. Wood., 1814. His ch. were all by the first wife.

Children:

I. Margaret, prob. b. Hdwk., 1765; m. her cousin Seth Hodges, Jr., of Pom.
II. Ebenezer.
III. Edmund.
IV. Eliphalet.
V. Richard, m. Rhoda, daughter of Job and Sarah Reed of Bd., b. Bd., Mch. 2, 1789.

Probably all these children came to Barnard with Capt. Edmund Hodges and with him moved on to Pomfret, where all took up their residence.

HOLDEN FAMILY

1. Alvin Holden of Stock.; m. Bd., Feb. 14, 1830, Mary Chamberlin of Bd.

Children:

I. Mary L., b. Bd., Dec. 6, 1843.
II. Alvin G., b. Bd., Apr. 25, 1844.

HOMES FAMILY

This name was more recently spelled Holmes but in the handwriting of Barzillar Homes, grandson of Gershom Homes of Plymouth, Mass., the name is spelled as above.

Among the effects of Mercy Clapp of Barnard was found a family record in the handwriting of Barzillar Homes and several letters from which the following record is compiled. Betsey and Joseph married and lived in Barnard.

HORTON FAMILY

Barnet Horton, with his wife and a family of at least five children, migrated from Rehoboth, Mass. to Pomfret. The family did not live far from the Barnard town line and his grandchildren lived in Barnard. Such facts as can be obtained are here given. Their burial place in Barnard is the East Barnard cemetery.

HOWARD FAMILY

On October 19, 1776, Simeon Howard of New Braintree, Mass., bought one hundred acres of land on the right of Isaac Butman for which he paid £30. In his next purchase of land on October 19, 1779, he is given as of Barnard which would indicate that he had already come to town. But if such was the case it was not a permanent residence for when in November 13, 1784, he bought lot No. 142 consisting of one hundred acres for which he paid £40 and was again of New Braintree. May 16, 1791 he bought of James Babcock the westerly half of lot No. 143 for which he paid £30. This land probably adjoined his former purchase on which he had settled between 1784 and 1791. In 1800 he was a resident of the first or village school district.

In 1780 Simeon Howard and Silas Howard saw service in the militia in Barnard. It is possible they were brothers but no further record of Silas is found in town.

1. Simeon Howard, m. Sept. 15, 1785, Polly Babcock of New Braintree, Mass.; b. abt. 1764; d. Bd., Nov. 23, 1834. No date of b. or d. of Simeon has been found but he doubtless d. in Bd. and is buried in the village cemetery without stone.

*IV. Mary, b. Bd., Sept. 2, 1818; m. William H. H. Wheat.
V. William, b. Bd.; m. Bd., Feb. 2, 1848, Emeline Harding of Wood. There is some question whether William belongs in this family but it is thought he does.

There may have been other children in Anson's home as no complete list is found in the records.

The Howard homestead was the farm on Pond Brook north of the village, long owned by the Wheelock clan.

Nelson Howard was the village chore boy by profession as long as he lived and by choice a fox hunter and in his younger days the boon companion of "Cull" Danforth and a horseman of no mean ability. In his later life he drove Danforth's team to freight goods from Bethel to the store in Barnard and lived with

Mrs. Trembly on the house at the northeast corner of the town square. He was a great talker and, being a practical joker and a great story, attended to the town in his old age.

According to tradition there was a Thomas Howard in town who was a war and a carpenter and who died in Providence, R. I. Of this the writer has no knowledge but he may have been a brother of Nelson.

There was another strain of Howard blood which likewise helped the town to grow large. This family came through Maine and settled on Kingston hill and the later generations finally made way to Hopkinton. The ancestry of Kingston was the second wife of Philip Howard was Betsey Brown but the existence of this marriage in the paper the maiden after is uncertain given the name as Betsey Brown.

HOWE FAMILY

The Howe family was founded here by Prudence in the person of the family of Ephraim Howe who have located in the region over the hill from Barnard to East Barnard and a little north of the main road at what was long known as the Lawton place. They were influential people of the town. There were several heads of the families of William Howe, Ephraim Howe and Isaiah Howe in the town but it is through the name of these branches of the family that was long known Artemus Howe of New Braintree, Mass., bought 72 acres of land near John Newton in the east part of the town on February 16, 1784. He bought an equal amount in addition in the same vicinity on November 4, 1790. He was a resident of New Braintree when he married Susanna, daughter of Major General Jonathan and Hannah (Mandell) Warner, February 16, 1786. He was styled Colonel. This land was either the same land as later occupied by Alpheus Howe and his son Albert Paige Howe or was near it. There has been nothing found to show he occupied the land.

HUNT FAMILY

Two children of this family are recorded in the town book. Beyond this nothing is now definitely known about them. There were people of this name who migrated to other places in Vermont from Hardwick, but it is not certain that the family of Jabez came from that section.

John and Joseph Hunt who were related by marriage to the Fays may have been in Barnard a short time but we are not certain of this. Joseph is said to have gone to Bennington. If they should prove to be brothers of Jabez it might seem likely the three of them may have been in Barnard for a short time.

1. JABEZ HUNT, m. Bd., Dec. 4, 1801, Esther Sabin.
Children:

I. ——NER BAKER, son, b. Bd., July 21, 1803. Mutilated town record.

HUNTOON FAMILY

1. HILTON HUNTOON, b. Unity, N. H.; d. Bd., June 26, 1867, ae. 82-7-15; m. Lydia Hathaway, dau. ——— and Lydia Dunbar, d. Bd., Oct. 26, 1886, ae. 80-8-23. Quite probably she was his second wife and was a widow at the time of this marriage. The family lived in the south part of the town near the Bridgewater line. No list of the children have been found but from various sources has been compiled the following information. The writer feels certain there was but one family of this name in town and these persons are of this branch. Order uncertain.

Children:

*I. Mary E. Huntoon, m. Norman Townsend.
II. Charles H. Huntoon, d. Bd., Dec. 24, 1850, ae. 26 yrs.

IX. Jane, b. Bd.; d. Bd., unm., June 16, 1835, ae. 19-9.

On the road from Barnard upper village to Chateauguay, in the woods far from a house and on the south side of the road is a marble slab on a knoll not far from a spring beside the road bearing the following inscription: "This monument is in memory of Amos Jaques, and erected by his wife. He was found dead near this spot on the morning of April 3, 1859, where he had lain all night, his horse by his side. The cause of his death unknown. His death is lamented by all." The place is on the west side of the height of land. His body is buried in the village cemetery with the rest of his family.

JEPHERSON FAMILY

Very little trace of this family is found in town. Dr. Gardner Cox says that Jedadiah Jepherson who married Jerusha, daughter of Capt. Benjamin Cox, b. Feb. 16, 1764, lived in the Polly Wood house on Pond Brook, about a mile north of the village and that he was in the Revolutionary Army about five years from 1776. The Doctor did not seem to be especially proud of this relative. The house in which they lived has been long gone, having been destroyed by fire. It stood on the rise of land beside the road not far from the little mill privilege and to the south of it.

Roswell J. Jepherson of Rochester and Cynthia Fish of Rochester were married at Barnard, December 22, 1810.

JONES FAMILY

The Jones family were prominent Quakers in Sandwich, Mass. John Jones, born 1733, came to Barnard with his family. He bought from his relatives, the Tuppers, fifty acres of land near Shiverick Crowell's on July 13, 1788. He was a Revolutionary soldier and is buried in the Barnard center cemetery without stone.

KEITH FAMILY

This was properly a Pomfret family but was so near the East Barnard village that their associations were mostly with Barnard folks and one branch of the family, of whom we know scarcely anything, did move into Barnard.

1. JOHN and POLLY KEITH lived in Pom. and raised a family of at least six ch.: Vergene, John who d. in Sh., Ira, Lucy who m. Ashley Goff Campbell, Thankful who m. Mr. Hamlin, and Polly who m. Benjamin Merritt. The burial place of the Keiths is the E. Bd. cemetery.

KENDALL FAMILY

Where the Kendall family came from or when they came to Barnard has not been ascertained but it is likely that Jeremiah Kendall and his wife, Lydia, were living on the place next west of the Timothy Newton farm as early as 1820. This is the place reached by the pent road through the Newton pasture. It may be of interest to note that this road which now (1927) serves only the two farms, on one of which the house is already gone, formerly extended to the Sherman farm and then on up the brook to the Bryant farm or beyond and that the road starting from near the site of the old mill dam and now serving these farms is a modern invention. It is not certain that the order of birth of the Kendall children is as here given.

1. Jeremiah Kendall, m. Lydia ———.

Children:

2. I. Allen Carlos, b. Windsor, Oct. 6, 1821.

II. Stratton, d. Ill.; m. Bd., Helen, dau. Robert G. and Rachel (Clark) Chamberlin, b. Bd., Feb. 4, 1828; d. Ill. While in Bd. they lived on the second farm to the west on the road from the old mill dam at Newcombsville, counting the Belding farm as the first from which the buildings have long been gone. This family with the others went to Rockford, Ill.

(a) AGNES, m. and lived in Chicago, having one ch. She was a school teacher before her m.

(b) FRANK, living in Byron, Ill., in 1894; m. and had Ward and Grace, who m. Mr. Chessman.

*III. CHARLOTTE, m. Samuel Bryant.

IV. ANN, d. Ill.; m. Bd., Anthony, son Moses Putnam and lived in Bd. on the Stratton Kendall farm after Stratton left there. The family joined the migration to the West.

V. MARY, d. Be.; m. Zeb French, Sr., and lived on Whitcomb Hill in Be. on the road leading from Lilliesville to Gaysville.

All the children of Jeremiah Kendall, with the exception of Mary, went to Illinois. Allen C. Kendall was the only one to return to Barnard, and this on account of the poor health of his wife.

All the Kendalls had musical talent. Stratton and his wife were especially gifted in music, both vocal and instrumental. They sang in the church in Barnard and in their western home and played for parties and for dances. Mrs. Wood tells of seeing Stratton's wife playing the accordion or the violin. The writer has heard Allen sing the popular songs of the day and delighted to hear him play the jew's harp.

After the first marriage of Allen C. Kendall he lived on the Sherman place between his sister Charlotte and brother Stratton and near his father and father-in-law. He lived here until about 1848 where his first three children were born and until he joined the migration to Rockford, Ill. Not only did his brothers and sisters, except Mary, go West, but his father also went. He remained in the West only about one year when he returned to Barnard and settled again on the Sherman farm where his twin girls Martha and Mary were born in 1849. From here he moved to the Atwood place where his next three children were born, the last in the summer of 1855. From here he moved to the upper waters of the Creek in Chateauguay just over the line in the town of Bridgewater where he was living in 1855. Then he moved back to the Sherman place where his son Frank was born and where Frank and Charlotte and their mother died. After this he moved back to the headwaters of the creek in Bridgewater, built a log house which stood until about 1920. Here he farmed on a small scale and became a famous shingle shaver. Later in life he moved down the creek a couple of miles into the town of Barnard and died at the Carlin place.

After the death of Allen's first wife the children scattered from home. The home of their grandfather Newton was a home for Albert, Monroe, Abbie and especially for Sarah Lillian who spent all her time there until after she was twenty-one years old and was as one of the family. Minerva Antoinette made her home with her aunt, Minerva Paige. Martha found a home with Mr. and Mrs. George Cox of Barnard until she went to Massachusetts to work in the mill.

Albert Kendall served through the Civil War and was a prisoner in Andersonville and Belle Isle. Monroe was a soldier with a more brief but equally honorable record.

KENNEY FAMILY

This family was early in town. Jesse Kenney was married in 1776 and came to Barnard soon after that time to make his home. He was in Captain Cox's Company in Barnard, August 9, 1780. He received a deed to lots No. 69 and No. 70 on October 11, 1783 but there is a deed on record in which he sold lot No. 69 to Capt. Luther Fairbanks on July 31, 1777. How these dates harmonize the writer does not know but it is evident he was in town early. This land was not far from the Methodist cemetery. The farm house directly back of the cemetery was the first frame house on the Kenney farm and was built in 1800. About 1850 the house was repaired and a new barn was built by Henry G. Cox. The last generation of the family lived on the Calvin Fairbanks place east of Newcombsville and on the Royalton town line. Here Zuri S. and Jesse spent their last days, the latter well known to the writer. In addition to being farmers they drove a peddle cart and took in exchange whatever the farmers had to barter. They dealt extensively in wool and hops and during Civil War days accumulated a large amount of these commodities which they held for a large profit and held them too long. Both wool and hops bought at top prices during the war were sold as late as 1885-90. Their house was full of useless and valueless plunder. The writer has seen as many as twenty guns of almost as many vintages, ranging from flint lock to Windsor rifle, in the attic, together with the old uniforms of the Barnard artillery and the Troop—bearskin caps and ostrich plumes for the latter headgear. Of Civil War regalia there must have been a cart load, moth eaten and mildewed. At the auction after Jesse's death the writer's father bought the peddle box to use as a grain box taking what was in it and paid a quarter of a dollar for it. When he investigated he found more than a bushel of old sulphur matches covered over with shoe pegs of various sizes. Everything was about in the same order. They seemed never to part with anything once in their possession.

Jesse Kenney, the pioneer, was a soldier of the Revolution. The family did not seem to take a prominent place in either the affairs of the town or the church. Asa White Kenney, grandson of the pioneer, secured a good education for his day, studied law and was admitted to the bar in Washington County, was State Librarian at Montpelier, engaged in business and banking, being connected with the old Royalton National Bank and died in Lakewood, N. J., a very aged man without issue. He disposed of upwards of $100,000 to charitable objects, mostly identified with the Congregational church. He was, so far as the writer knows, the only one of the family to attain any distinction. He did not live in Barnard after going away for his education. His brother, Jesse, when almost sixty-six years old married a sprightly miss of twenty-four summers who had lived several years in his home where her mother had been housekeeper.

So far as can be ascertained this branch of the Kenney family is now extinct.

She had been a teacher in the South during and following the Civil War and as such had her salary paid by her future husband. Lived in Roy. until 1893 when they moved to Lakewood. No ch.

KEYES FAMILY

Lieut. Elias Keyes bought 150 acres of land in the south part of the town on June 25, 1779, it being the southerly half of lot No. 94 and the whole of lot No. 95 and joined the Davis, Briggs and Paige farms.

Lieutenant Keyes was in military service in Barnard in 1780. There is no record of his family preserved in town. Probably went to Stockbridge, Vt.

KIDDER FAMILY

1. Francis R. Kidder, b. Rand.; m. Marcia C. Lazelle, b. Pom.

I. Willie E., b. Bd., Feb. 22, 1863.

II. Charlie F., b. Bd., July 31, 1865.

LAMB FAMILY

LARNED FAMILY

The name seems to have had various spellings. See also the Leonard family.

Ezekiel Larned, Ringe, N. H., bought the original right of Jonathan Loverwell and sold the same to Joseph Foster of Barnard, September 25, 1779. It is not understood he lived in town but the place of his residence may give a clew to the origin of the family.

Some of the name lived in the region between the north road and the east village and were in No. 6 school district.

1. Lewis Larned, parentage undetermined, m. Susanna ———. She may have been dau. of Capt. John and Experience (Gray) Foster, b. Bd., Feb. 6, 1790, but of this there is not absolute proof. They lived south of the Methodist cemetery in No. 6 school district, was here in 1848 when he subscribed toward the building of the tomb. Was said to have been the tallest man in town, save only his son Lewis, Jr.

LEAVITT FAMILY

Two brothers of the name of Leavitt, Nathaniel and Amos, settled in Royalton. They were sons of Nathaniel Leavitt. The older of the two came to Royalton in 1797 and settled on land on Broad Brook below East Barnard. Ten children in this family, of whom Polly and Lucinda married Methodist ministers, the former marrying Rev. James G. Smith and the latter marrying Rev. Russel Holly Spaulding. These families were identified with the Old Barnard Circuit of the Methodist church. The children of Amos Leavitt, Jr., of Royalton moved into Barnard with the possible exception of his eldest son, Enos, who joined many of his kinsmen in the migration to Maine.

LEONARD FAMILY

Solomon Leonard, the earliest settler in the country to bear the name of Leonard, the ancestor of what has long been known as the "Bridgewater Branch of the Leonard Family," must have been born about 1610 in Monmouthshire, or vicinity, in the southwest part of England. He seems to have gone from England first to Leyden in Holland and some time later came to New England. He was in Duxbury, Mass., as early as 1637 when the town was incorporated. He became one of the proprietors and first settlers of Bridgewater, probably as early as 1645. His wife was named Mary and they were married probably about 1640 and had a large family of children.

From Bridgewater, Mass., the family came to Pomfret and Barnard but even the Pomfret families were so near to the East Barnard village that their religious and social life was of the latter town more than of Pomfret. Moreover several of the name lived for a time within the confines of the town of Barnard.

1. Capt. Solomon[4] Leonard (Solomon[3], Jacob[2], Solomon[1]), son Solomon and Elizabeth, dau. David and Martha (Howard) Perkins Leonard, b. Bridg., Mass., Mch. 27, 1733-4; d. He had various service in the army and in 1780 was on the frontier when Royalton was destroyed. He remained in the service until the close of the war. He studied medicine and began his practice in Warwick, R. I. Then he was a time in Providence where he was engaged in the drug business, afterwards returning to Bridg. where he devoted himself to his profession. After that he lived in Westmoreland, N. H., and Bd. He eventually gave up the practice of medicine, saying it was "a humbug on the people." While he was in Bd. his father-in-law sent for him to come to Rehoboth, take his property, and take care of himself and wife. "He was a trader in farms and bought farms in various places." While in Bd. the family prob. lived in the east part of the town and was prob. here in the early years of the century as their son, Rev. Welcome Leonard, was b. here in 1804. The History of Roy. says his dau., Anne, b. 1792, was a native of Bd. This family came to Barnard in 1844-5 from Winchester, N. H. At that time there were two children in the family, a third having died in Winchester. They lived on the farm next west of the Fort Defiance farm, the place more recently known as the Bigelow or Charles Townsend farm. The children attended the creek school. About 1861 the family moved to Royalton from which place they returned to Winchester about 1876. The family was ardently devoted to the interests of the Methodist church while in town.

Sophie, daughter of Samuel and Hannah Lesure, born Warwick, Mass., died Barnard, October 3, 1880, aged 80 years and three months. She was aunt of John A. Lesure.

LEWIS FAMILY

This family appeared early in town and representatives are still living there but professing no accurate knowledge of their ancestors. The following information has been gathered from the town records which contain the list of children of George Lewis and a part of the children of David Lewis, the land deeds, the cemetery inscriptions and information furnished by Mrs. Julietta E. Culver of Randolph, a descendant of Ebenezer Lewis, Sr., who seems to have been the pioneer in buying land on the Royalton town line next to Asa Paige, June 29, 1793. He was given in the deed as coming from Rochester, Mass., but the family could not have been long there for the vital statistics of that town do not give us much assistance.

This family lived near the old Methodist meetinghouse in Barnard and were supporters of this body. They were thrifty farmers.

1. EBENEZER LEWIS, d. Bd., Jan. 22, 1814, ae. 71 yrs.; m., int., Roch., Mass., Apr. 19, 1767, Lucy, prob. dau. Thomas and Rebecca Swift, b. Roch., Feb. 14, 1743; d. Bd., July 21, 1814. There is reason to believe that the five ch. assigned to Ebenezer are Lucy (Swift) Lewis below were their ch. but it is quite prob. they had other ch. of whom we have no record.

They lived on the Harding place, the farm where his father settled, and adjoining the David Lewis-Thayer farm. Ebenezer and Polly d. within 48 hours of one another and were buried in one grave in the Methodist cemetery. No ch. They were identified with the Congregational church in town and he was on the committee to buy the Congregational parsonage in Bd., Apr. 19, 1834. It is said the family joined the migration to Ware, Mass., in the '30s but soon returned to town. W. C. Danforth, who knew the family well wrote of them, "Uncle Eben was a quiet, unassuming, honest man and was well informed on most of the every day topics and much respected by all the town. Aunt Polly was eccentric in some particulars. She wore the same bonnet, shawl and calfskin shoes to church for years. She was not a miser * * * but saving, careful and economical. Many times I have known her to return to the country store wrapping paper and string, saying that it could be used again for someone else. * * * She was always cheerful, meeting all with a smile." Having no ch. of their own they brought up a Newell girl, giving her a good home and she being to them as a dau. in their old age.

LILLIE FAMILY

This family came to town from Bethel between 1853 and 1855 and settled on Mount Hunger at the place still known as the Lillie farm next south of the schoolhouse which remained in the family until the death of Rush Lillie. Five boys and three girls were in the family as they came to town and one boy and two girls were born in the town. They were prosperous farmers. Daniel had been a school teacher in the town and in the creek school had won the sobriquet of "Tiger Lillie." When the war broke out he recruited Company I, 4th Vermont Volunteers and was made its captain. He died in the hospital at Washington, D. C., from wounds received at the Battle of the Wilderness. He was engaged to be married to Mariah Cox of Barnard. His funeral, said to have been the largest one ever held in town, was from the Universalist Church, Moses E. Cheney having composed an original hymn for the occasion. The Post of the G. A. R. at Bethel was named for him.

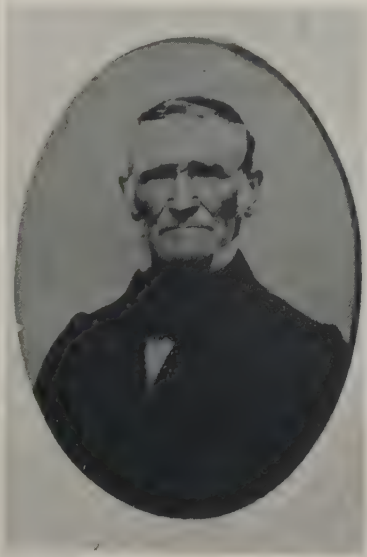
LURVEY FAMILY

"The name of Lurvey is a good transliteration of the German 'Loeve' which is a common name among German Jews; and there is a tradition in the Lurvey family that the first Lurvey who emigrated to Massachusetts in the 17th century was of Jewish descent and came from Archangel in Russia. It is noticeable that many of the Lurveys have old testament names such as



Jonathan Luce

Hiram Jonathan Luce
Louise (Paige) Cox

Reuben, Levi, Samuel, Isaac and Jacob, and that their noses tend to be aqueline." Quoted from Dr. W. A. Dewey who has rendered valuable assistance in tracing this family.

Eleazar Lurvey with several of his children, including his sons Moses and Peter and his daughters Hannah and Sarah, came to Barnard and settled in the south part of the town. Eleazar bought one hundred acres of land on January 20, 1778, and sold the same to his son Peter on January 12, 1784. On June 25, 1779, Moses Lurvey bought lot No. 193 consisting of one hundred acres in the same section of the town.

1. Eleazar Lurvey (Peter[2], Peter[1]) son Peter and Rachel (Elwell) Lurvey, b. Gloucester, Mass., July 12, 1717; d. Bd., June 8, 1790; m. (1), Gloucester, Mass., Nov. 11, 1742, Sarah Pool.

MACK FAMILY

This family seems to have lived near the Clapps and Bryants on Mount Hunger but possibly in the town of Stockbridge. Little is known of them save that they seem to have come to the region from Woodstock.

1. Hezekiah Mack, b. Jan. 21, 1776; m. Bd., June 15, 1807, Catharine Clapp of Bd., b. Dec. 3, 1776. Mack was of Wood. at the time of m. but the family prob. lived on Mount Hunger not far from the Bryants.

Children:

I. John Mack. Became a Methodist minister and d. in the West.
*II. Milanda S. Mack, m. Hiram Bryant.
*III. Elizabeth Mack, m. James Bryant.

McCORMICK FAMILY

1. Daniel McCormick, a Scotchman, came to this country with the British army and in 1790 was an unmarried man in No. 8 school district on the side of the Delectable Mountains in Barnard. He married Sarah Greenleaf. The following has been gathered from various sources and is thought to be correct, though very incomplete.

Children:

*I. Mary Paine, b. Bd., Oct. 15, 1806; m. Thomas Bowen.
*II. Betsey, b. Bd.; m. Foster Gates.
(a) Olive B. Gates, b. abt. 1827; d. June 18, 1843.

McINTOSH FAMILY

There is a tradition that one McIntosh, probably William, was the first settler on the Arvin Angell farm on the side of the Delectable Mountains at the headwaters of the Sam Wood Brook. The information concerning this family is very meager with the exception of the death of Mary, the wife of William, and the marriage of several children during the first part of the century which might have been children of William and Mary although this is only a surmise.

In the neighboring town of Bethel was a McIntosh family with a single representative living there in 1924. This family holds traditions to the following effect. John McIntosh, a native of Scotland, born near Edinburgh was impressed into the British military service when nineteen years of age and was sent to Canada and served during the French and Indian Wars and after settled in Bedford, N. H., where he died. He is called the only son of a widow. He had sons William, John, James, Samuel and Isaac, and daughters Isabelle and Mary. William, Samuel, Isaac and Mary settled in Bethel about 1810 and lived neighbors in Bethel Gilead, the northwest part of the town. The descendant above referred to claims he never heard of the William McIntosh who settled in Barnard. He does, however, say that at the same time John McIntosh was impressed into the service his cousin Donald was also impressed and that he served a time in Canada and then deserted and settled in a place then called "Matilda" in the Province of Ontario. The tradition then runs that a son of this Donald was the first settler of Vergennes, but in this respect there is more likelihood that it was Donald himself who moved from Canada to Vergennes and became the first settler there in 1766 as Thompson states. Whether the Barnard William McIntosh was related to either of them is merely a conjecture. It may prove that the Barnard William was William, Sr., son of John in spite of the lack of knowledge of that fact on the part of the Bethel clan or it may prove he was the son of Donald of Vergennes, though migrations from the west part of the state toward the east have not been common.

Mary, wife of William McIntosh, died Barnard, September 2, 1814, in her 64th year, which would make her born in 1750.

1. The following are here given as possible ch. of WILLIAM and MARY MCINTOSH, their m. having been recorded in Bd.

Children:

*I. REBECCA MCINTOSH of Bd., m. Ebenezer Foster.
II. EBENEZER MCINTOSH of Bd. and Silvia Swift of Bd., m. Bd., Dec. 5, 1805.

MARSH FAMILY

The name of Marsh is written large in the land records of the town. Joseph Marsh, Sr., of Hartford together with Abel Marsh and Asa Whitcomb bought large interests in the town in the early days. They had the original right of Moses Little and probably other land. It would seem that Joseph and Abel had the larger holding of the Marshes. Probably Joseph Marsh, Sr., never lived in town but Joseph, Jr., and Abel were here as the deeds show and they were also in military service in the town in 1780. A little later Roger Marsh was a resident of the town. Most of the land mentioned seemed to have been to the south or east of the village. The land which Joseph Marsh, Jr., owned and probably lived on was in what later was called the upper village and the town common was laid out in the northeast corner of this farm. Joseph Marsh, Jr., gave this land, about four and one-quarter acres. The following is from the deed recorded in the town book. "For and in consideration of the love and respect I have for the town of Barnard do give, grant, aline, convey and confirm unto Asa Paige of said Barnard and county and state aforesaid, Yeoman (who is one of the committee chosen to purchase land for the use of the town to set a meetinghouse on and also for a church yard and common) a certain piece of land near the middle of the town about four acres and a quarter, be the same more or less, and is bounded as follows (viz.) beginning at the north side of Joseph Marsh's land at a stake and stones in the westerly side of the road leading from said Marsh's to the center of the town thence running southerly on said road 28 rods to a stake and stones thence turning westerly on a right angle and running 24 rods to a stake and stones thence running northerly 28 rods parallel with the first line to the northerly line of said Marsh's land thence easterly 24 rods on said line to the first mentioned bound." The deed was dated May 5, 1783. This same piece of land had been sold to the town on June 30, 1782 by Benjamin Stebbings but evidently the town did not consider the conveyance valid and secured the deed from Marsh. There is no deed of record showing that Stebbings ever owned the land he sold the town and how the deal ever went through is a mystery.

It is not possible in every instance to separate the sale of land made by Joseph Marsh and his son of the same name but it is thought Joseph Marsh individually sold upwards of 3,100 acres of land in the town and in addition to that there is record of over 1,200 more acres together with his interest in two rights which he held in common with Whitcomb and another Marsh and which he sold between 1776 and 1793.

The writer finds no vital statistics recorded in the town concerning this family which seems to have left town early.

MARTIN FAMILY

1. John E. Martin, b. Jericho; m. Helen A. ———, b. Hawley, Mass.

Children:

I. Son, b. Bd., Dec. 31, 1880.
II. Rollin, b. Bd., Aug. 19, 1883.

Anna Martin, b. Bd., June 29, 1870, dau. Albert, b. Canada, and Anna, b. Ireland.

Charles H. Martin, son George H. and Lydia, b. Hancock; d. Bd., unm., June 3, 1889, ae. 25-9-1.

MARTINDALE FAMILY

Little except the marriage records of some of this family has been found. The family was in this section during the first fifth of the last century and it is surmised from the residences of those they married that they lived in the west part of the town, somewhere on the Delectable Mountains.

Polly Martindale of Barnard and Abel Stanwood of Hanover, N. H., m. Bd., Dec. 16, 1804.

Fanny Martindale of Bd. and Samuel Taft of Wood., m. Bd., Mch. 25, 1810.

Dolla Martindale of Bd. and Abel Stanwood of Roch., m. Bd., Sept. 7, 1817.

Patience Martindale of Bd. and Lyman, son Charles and Charity (Curtis) Spooner of Bd., b. Bd., Aug. 31, 1797; d. Bd., Dec., 1865; m. Bd., Jan. 24, 1819.

Stephen Martindale of Bd. and Eliza Angell of Bd., m. Bd., Aug. 19, 1819.

Alpheus Martindale of Bd. and Eliza Angell of Bd., m. Bd., Aug. 19, 1819. Both the m. of Stephen and Alpheus are to the same woman and on the same day but recorded in separate places in the town book. Perhaps the one first recorded was an error as to the man and the second was intended to correct the mistake but there is nothing to indicate this or to indicate which was the first recorded.

Ebenezer Martindale, Jr. and Jerusha Angell of Bd., m. Bd., Sept. 10, 1819.

MASON FAMILY

Clement Mason was living in No. 6 school district on the north road. The only thing we have obtained concerning him was regarding the death of his first wife and his second marriage.

Clement Mason, m. (1), Silence ———, d. Bd., Dec. 24, 1790; m. (2), Bd., Aug. 28, 1792, Sarah McGuire.

It may be quite probable children were born to him in Barnard but there is no record concerning them.

1. Josiah B. Mason, b. Meredith, N. H.; m. Matilda L. ———, b. Lebanon, N. H.

Children:

I. Dau., b. Bd., Aug. 7, 1857.
II. Jennie, b. Bd., 1859.

MAXHAM FAMILY

There is evidence of the Maxham family having been in Bridgewater, Pomfret and Barnard but very little is known of the family. What has been gleaned from the various sources is here given.

ELKANAH, son Jabez and Susan Maxham, b. Carver, Mass.; d. Bd., Mch. 6, 1888, ae. 63-9-22. A widower.

LYDIA, dau. Isaac and Ruth Maxham, b. Bridg.; d. Bd., Jan. 13, 1867, ae. 60-7-15; m. Mr. Shurtliff.

PRISCILLA MAXHAM of Bd. and Cephas Blanchard of Bd., m. Bd., Sept. 7, 1828.

MARY A. MAXHAM of Bd. and Aaron Blanchard of Bd., m. Bd., June 3, 1833.

CAROLINE S. MAXHAM, b. Sept. 18, 1838; m. George W. Huntoon, b. July 25, 1841; d. Feb. 26, 1903. Lived near south part of Bd.

C. H. MAXHAM of Bd. and Eliza A. Clement of Bd., m. Bd., Aug. 25, 1845.

MAYNARD FAMILY

Stephen Maynard bought two hundred acres of land in Barnard, April 4, 1787, "lying about a half mile north of the Meeting-house * * * and bounded southerly on land of Mr. Stebbings." On the twenty-fifth of the following July he bought two hundred acres more and on May 27, 1790, sold one hundred acres to Isaac Danforth.

According to the census of 1790 Stephen Maynard was head of a house in Barnard in which there were two other males over sixteen years of age but no females in the family. His wife was named Martha, probably married after 1790, or did she die before that time? There is no record of his children.

1. BENJAMIN GOTT MAYNARD owned land adjoining the land of Stephen Maynard in school district number one. He is not given as a householder in town according to the census of 1790. He may have been one of the two males over sixteen years old in the home of Stephen referred to above. His wife, prob. m. after 1790, was Hannah.

MOORE FAMILY

In the earliest records of this family in town the name was spelled Moores and the family was buried in the Moore Family cemetery near East Barnard in the pasture of the Boyden place. The family had lived in Putney, Vt., before coming here and whether Gardner Moores came to town is unknown but his wife Abigail is buried in the Moore cemetery having died November 21, 1838, aged 83 years. She may have made her home with her son, Capt. Jonathan, who with his wife finds burial in the same cemetery.

1. Gardner Moores, m. Abigail ———.

Wesson Newcomb, after his marriage, lived a short time in Windsor where he was employed as a mechanic. He then came to Barnard and lived near the north end of the common in the village in the house now owned by Henry Watts and was extensively engaged in installing lead pipe, being about the first person to do this in town. Later he bought of Elder Cummings the starch factory and saw mill on the creek in the hamlet later destined to bear his name and the farm now owned (1927) by George E. Gilson and engaged in farming and lumbering on a large scale, having many men employed in the chair shop, saw mill and on the farm. The family were members of the Methodist church at Barnard village and he was recording steward for some time.

NEWTON FAMILY

The immigrant ancestor of the Barnard Newtons was Richard Newton of an old English family who came to New England and whose wife was Hannah (Loker?). He was in Sudbury, Mass., as early as 1638-9. In course of time the family wended its way to Marlborough and Westborough and finally to Old Hardwick, from which place the family came to Barnard. For an account of the early generations and for some of the later generations not connected with Barnard the reader is referred to "Richard Newton of Sudbury, Mass., 1638-9," etc., published by the writer in 1912.

Between 1775 and 1784 five children of Timothy Newton, Sr., and his wife Sarah Merrick, migrated to Barnard from Old Hardwick. The first to come was the eldest son, John Newton, Sr., who as a young man of twenty-two came to Barnard in March, 1775, in company with Thomas Freeman and his son William Freeman and thus became one of the very first settlers of the town and was one of the two first white men to winter in town in the winter of 1775-6 in company with Thomas Freeman. John took deed to his land on May 10, 1776, and in the deed was given as of Barnard. His land was in the Cox neighborhood, adjoining the farm of Thomas Freeman and is the first farm on the road over the hill from Barnard village to East Barnard, at the very headwaters of Broad Brook. John probably worked for Freeman the first year he was here and worked on his own land in 1776 until his enlistment in Captain Waite's Company, September 11, 1776. This enlistment was followed by one in Captain Harrington's Company of Southborough, December 20, 1776. He was in the service in 1777. In 1778 he came back to Barnard and was married. He served in Captain Cox's Company in Barnard for two days at the time of the Indian raid and was Sergeant at that time. October 11, 1780, he was in Captain Cox's Company again for three days and had ten days under Captain Wallis the same month. March 9, 1781, he was under Captain Cox again for three days. His final service was on a scout under Captain Hines for three days commencing December, 1781. He was elected one of the four surveyors of highways at the second town meeting held in Barnard, March 29, 1779. John, with some members of the family, is buried in the cemetery in Barnard village.

Four of the remaining children of Timothy Newton, Sr., came to Barnard and settled on adjoining farms on Locus Creek on the very edge of the frontier with nobody between them and Canada. Of this group the first to locate in the region was Timothy Newton, Jr., who bought two lots of land, No. 75 and No. 76, April 30, 1777. He retained lot No. 76 for his homestead and it was occupied by his descendants until 1913. He had a worthy military history which is recorded under the Revolutionary History of the town, rendering most of the service in the Massachusetts line but having seventeen days' service in the militia in Pomfret and Barnard before his capture by Indians on August 9, 1780, which event is fully related elsewhere. He was at the battle of Bunker Hill, responding to the Lexington alarm.

Following Timothy Newton to Barnard came Thomas Martin Wright who had married in Hardwick, Elizabeth Newton, sister of Timothy. They settled on the farm south of Timothy's, which land remained in possession of his descendants until about the commencement of the present century. Wright had a Revolutionary War record before coming to Vermont and was one of the men captured by Indians in their raid on the settlement.

In the spring of 1783 Timothy Newton sold one of his lots of land, No. 75, to his brother-in-law Capt. Asa Brigham, who had married in Hardwick, Sally Newton. This land was north of the Timothy Newton homestead and remained in the Brigham family for three generations. Captain Brigham came of a long and distinguished line of fighting stock with abundant Revolutionary War records in Massachusetts.

October 21, 1784, Gideon Newton bought of Seth Hudson land pitched by Amos Bicknell, one-half of one whole right in the town. This was two hundred acres adjoining Captain Brigham on the north and extending to the Royalton town line, embracing the water privilege on the creek known at various times as Belding's Mills, Freeman's Mills, Steward's Mills, and Newcomb's Mills. Gideon sold the water privilege and also sold to Calvin Fairbanks one hundred acres of his land. The old Gideon Newton homestead still remains in possession of his descendants, although not occupied by them.

These families were all a credit to the town and all had good properties within a few years. John and his brother-in-law Wright were adherents of the Congregational church in town and signed the articles of incorporation of that body in 1802 when the society was reorganized according to the new law. The other families all cast their lots with the Methodists when they came to this region and were among the first converts to that faith when John Langdon came to these regions preaching as early as 1800. Timothy Newton was one of the first class leaders on the Old Barnard Circuit and probably the first one in the town of Barnard while he and Captain Brigham were trustees of the first Methodist meetinghouse on the circuit, erected in the front part of the Methodist cemetery on the north road in Barnard as early as 1806. Timothy Newton was elected one of the Collectors of Rates for the town at the town meeting of March 29, 1779, the second meeting held in town and was permanently in Barnard as early as the spring of 1778.

After the death of John Newton, Sr., in Barnard in 1833, his son John, Jr., with wife and three daughters started in 1835 for the West, which in that case was Napoli, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y.

A part of the journey was made on the Erie Canal on the boat "Washington" and in the company were David Jefferson with wife and son; Jacob Jefferson; Ezekiel Foster; and Clarissa Clark and daughter, all of Rochester, Vt., and Edwin Walker and Polly Allen of Cornwall. These persons probably scattered as they reached the end of the canal journey. There is reason to suppose David Jefferson went to Florence, Huron Co., Ohio, from a paper in the possession of Mrs. Nellie Gerig. The oldest child of John Newton, Jr., to make the journey was Mary Ann, a girl of fifteen when she left her Barnard home to die in her western home at the age of nineteen. Two items concerning her are worth recording. Mrs. Gerig has her sampler, which she made in Barnard when she was nine years old, worked with painstaking care. It gives us a glimpse of childhood life and religious training in the home in those days. Following is what she "wrought."

"Jesus permit thy gracious name to stand
And while her fingers o'er this canvas move
Engage her tender heart to seek thy love
And write thy name thyself upon her heart.

Wrought July 1829 under the instruction of Orinda Leonard, Barnard, Vt."

The other item concerning Mary Ann was a note she wrote while living at Napoli addressing her mother in somewhat different form than young misses of the present are accustomed to use.

"Miss Newton's compliments to her Dear Mother with a respectful request to spend the next evening at Mr. Goodrick's.

By your dutiful daughter,

Mary Ann."

All the children of Timothy Newton were born on the Newton farm in Barnard with the exception of Ann who was born in Hardwick where her mother had gone after the Indian raid.

Earle Newton resided on the homestead and died there. He was in the expedition which marched from Barnard to Plattsburgh in the War of 1812. He was Captain of the Artillery Company in Barnard, his commission dated June 14, 1822, and signed by Richard Skinner, Governor. "Barnard's ancient and honorable artillery company was organized soon after the war with England in 1812. It was composed largely of the first men in town, who were not only members, but contributed one half the expense. The state furnished the gun, carriage, harnesses and equipment for one half the original cost. Everything was new and of the very best material. * * The men were uniformed in dark blue, trimmed with red, wore low caps and short pompons, were armed with pistols and swords. There was an escort or mounted guard called the troop, consisting of twenty men, on the best horses in town. Their caps were high with a strip of bear skin running over the top from front to rear and a red feather in the visor. The troopers were armed with two heavy single barrelled pistols, with flint locks. They carried long swords. When Gen. Lafayette made his tour through Vermont the artillery company made a showing and were highly complimented by the General and his suite. Some time in the thirties they disbanded and the property went to decay."

Earle Newton was a small, active man who had a considerable reputation as a lightweight wrestler in his day and defended his title on many a town meeting and June Training day. For many years he was the acknowledged champion of the region. Those days being particular about titles, he was always addressed as "Cap'n Earle." He was a pillar of the Methodist church in Barnard, as his father had been before him, and one of the worth while citizens of the town.

The log house on the Timothy Newton farm was near the pent road going through the pasture toward the west. The well was filled up by the writer when a boy and was about a rod north of the stone wall in the old orchard and about four rods west of the present highway. The place where Timothy was captured by Indians was to the east of his log house and in the mowing east of the present road and has been marked by the writer by a marble slab set upright in the ground not far from the highway.

Before Timothy died they had built a substantial frame house on the site of the present brick house to the north of the little brook. Here is also seen the bank wall beside the brook where there was a "lazy mill" for sawing wood and running a farm shop. In course of time a brick addition was made in the rear of this wood house which stood until after Spaulding came onto the place. During the latter part of Earle's days and before Solon D. Newton was married the frame house was pulled down and the present brick house built which was one of the most thoroughly constructed dwellings ever erected in town. Good barns and other outbuildings were always in evidence on the farm.

All the children of Timothy Newton gave a good account of themselves. No one brought discredit on the name.

Gideon Newton's log house was probably east of the road in the little hamlet of Newcombsville not far from the farm barn with the high stone wall about the barn yard. His first frame house was the colonial cottage still standing, the second house north of the iron bridge in Newcombsville, now occupied by Mr. Adams. His third house was the frame house still standing and still owned by his descendants, long occupied by his son Silas and grandson Albert S. Newton.

Silas Newton succeeded to the Gideon Newton acres and died on the farm. In addition to his work as a farmer he drove a peddle cart. He was a good citizen and deeply interested in the Methodist church in Barnard and for many years he was the leader of the Creek class. His sister Lydia made her home on the farm and had housekeeping rooms in the end of the shed toward the north. His children were all born in the last house on the farm.

Gideon's children, with the exception of Silas, all went West where they gave a good account of themselves. Lydia returned to Barnard and spent her last days on the farm.

NOTT FAMILY

Three distinct families of this name, probably all closely related, came into Barnard rather early. They were Thaddeus, Thomas and John. Thaddeus Nott came from Charlestown, N. H., and bought one whole right in the town, October 29, 1792. This land was probably in the Chateauguay section of the town. Thaddeus Nott was a deacon in the Congregational church in Barnard and was on the committee to buy the Congregational parsonage, April 9, 1834. He had some disagreement with his brethren and withdrew and joined the Congregational church in Stockbridge. He was a man of small stature and was called "'Nubby" Nott. After he transferred his allegiance to the Stockbridge church a Barnard wag immortalized Thaddeus by composing the following:

"Old Nubby Nott, he has forgot
To Stockbridge he goes with his stub nose
To electioneer for God."

1. The burial place of the wife of Thaddeus Nott and two of his ch. is the Nye cemetery on the side of the Delectable Mountains, which is also prob. his burial place without stone, not far from their home. No list of his ch. is preserved but it is thought that Willard and Asahel Washburn Nott were his sons and they are so credited. Chloe was the wife of Thaddeus. She d. in Bd., Sept. 12, 1844, ae. 76 yrs.

NYE FAMILY

The Nye blood has been in the town from the very early days to 1923 and the Nye name has persisted almost as long.

Lot Whitcomb who married Lydia Nye was the agent of the proprietors of the town and sold to Jonathan Nye of New Braintree, Mass., lot No. 104 for £60, May 25, 1777. On the following July he bought lots No. 159, No. 166, No. 167 for £60. On August 17, 1779, Whitcomb sold him eleven hundred acres of land in the new town, lots No. 161, No. 145, No. 146, No. 158, No. 170, No. 171, No. 157, No. 101, No. 120, No. 168 and No. 149.

Joseph Nye of Ware, Mass., also bought of Lot Whitcomb lot No. 140 for £20 on September 16, 1783.

November 26, 1791, Joshua Nye of Barnard bought from Aaron Barlow lot No. 169. This land was a part of the original right of Gov. Benning Wentworth. If we mistake not this Joshua Nye was the son of Joshua and Lydia (Jenkins) Nye, born Hardwick, Mass., January 26, 1770, and had sisters Abigail Freeman and Lydia Chamberlin in Barnard. At the time of the purchase of his land he had just attained his majority and had probably been with his relatives in Barnard long enough to gain his residence in the town. His brother Elisha, born in Sandwich, 1761, settled in Woodstock but about 1821 removed to Barnard and died there, November 5, 1848. He married in 1790, Druzilla Thomas and went to Hardwick, Woodstock and Barnard. He had a family of ten children, none of whom were probably born in Barnard.

The Barnard Nyes were located in the Chateauguay section of the town on the side of the Delectable Mountains on the west side of the creek and in the region still known as the Nye neighborhood. The family burial lot, still called the Nye cemetery, has become a public cemetery, having been given to the town by one of the name.

The immigrant ancestor of the Nyes of Barnard was Benjamin Nye, born in Bridleton, Kent, England, May 4, 1620, and came to New England in the ship Abigail in 1635. His son, Jonathan, and grandson, Ichabod, had their farms in Sandwich, Mass., but the fourth generation found their place in Middleboro, where Ichabod had his home. Sargent Jonathan Nye, the succeeding generation, had his home in Rochester, Mass. He bought land in Barnard but probably did not permanently live here.

PAIGE FAMILY

The Paige family was numerous in Barnard and Royalton in the early days, being among the first settlers in town, and having an honorable record. Two of the number were deacons in the old Congregational church of Barnard and all were interested in the religious welfare of the community. One of the number living in the south part of the town early cast in his lot with the Universalists.

The family is descended from Nathaniel Paige who with his wife and three children came from England to New England as early as 1685. The family early found settlement in Old Hardwick from which place they migrated to Barnard. Nathaniel, Asa and George were the three pioneer brothers coming to town. The first two came to town in 1775. Probably George came with his brothers or very soon after. On December 4, 1776, Nathaniel Paige took deed to lots No. 43 and No. 52, near the headwaters of Broad Brook in the Cox neighborhood. Nathaniel rose to high rank in military command and is styled Colonel. On May 20, 1777, Asa Paige took deed to lots No. 73 and No. 74, lying on the Royalton town line on the north road. This farm remained in the family until his grandson, Willis R. Paige, sold it. Asa obtained preferment in the church and was an early deacon of the church in Barnard. George Paige, given as a resident of Hardwick, bought lots No. 96, the southerly half of No. 97 and the northerly half of No. 195 on April 22, 1777. This land is below the foot of the gulf on the gulf road through South Barnard and remained in the family until the time of his grandson, Joseph. Nathan and Pierce Paige, brothers of the Barnard pioneers, settled not far away on the Royalton hills.

PARKHURST FAMILY

It has been very difficult to get information concerning this family but the following has been gathered from various sources and is the best which can be done at the present time. There seems to have been representatives of two families here but not very early. There was the family of Lemuel and Daniel L. and the larger family of Elias and Walter.

1. Lemuel, son of Noah Parkhurst, b. Pom.; d. Bd., Feb. 7, 1867, ae. 67 yrs.; prob. m. Anna Wheeler. Nothing has been learned concerning his wife, whether she d. in town or elsewhere. Whether he came here to spend his last days in the home of his son is unknown. He d. on the side of the Delectable Mountains in the Smith neighborhood. It is thought Daniel L., given below, is his son but no list of his ch. can be found.
Child:

I. Daniel L., b. Sh., Feb. 9, 1837; d. Roy., near E. Bd., Aug. 25, 1894; m. Bd., Feb. 14, 1864, Mary Jane, dau. Phineas Waite and Mary Ann (Sherburne) Nye, b. Bd., July 27, 1846; d. Bd., Nov. 19, 1873. She secured a divorce and m. Augustus W. Bigelow of Bd. Moved from Bd. to Roy. abt. 1880.
(a) Minnie Etta, b. Bd., June 21, 1866; m. Jacob Yardy and lived in Klamath Falls, Ore., but was unknown there in 1924. Graduated from Rand. Normal School and at the age of twenty years went to Dakota as a teacher.

1. Elias Parkhurst, m. Mary, dau. Walter and Elizabeth Buckland, b. Ellington, Conn.; d. Bd., Feb. 9, 1875, ae. 82-11. The stone says "Formerly of Barnston, C. E." She d. in the No. 6 school district on the north road. We have no account of the d. of Elias Parkhurst. We have no complete record of the family. It is thought Walter Parkhurst, whose record follows, was one of his ch. Presumably there were other ch.

PARMENTER FAMILY

Mr. L. E. Tupper of Colchester, Conn., is authority for the statement that Israel Parmenter was the Barnard pioneer and that he had a son, Israel, who married Polly and disappeared, it being thought he went to South America and never came back.

On March 12, 1781, Nathaniel Parmenter, then an unmarried man of Barnard, bought lot No. 63 which consisted of one hundred acres in the town of Barnard. The family left town, probably after 1811, perhaps going to Brandon, Vt., where the oldest daughter was living at the time of her marriage in 1819 to a resident of Barnard which would seem to imply that she had not been long gone from the town at the time of her marriage. Nathaniel is styled Captain—probably getting his title from service in the militia.

PERKINS FAMILY

Traces of several families bearing this name are found in town. With the exception of the Abner Perkins family it has not been possible to give much more than to record what is found in the scattered records as the relation between the various families is not clear.

Abner Perkins bought his farm in the east part of the town, the Ellis Davis farm, March 3, 1785, which time probably approximately determines the time of his arrival in town. He had been a resident of Old Hardwick for a time and there on January 21, 1783, (sic) had married Polly, daughter of Capt. Daniel Shay, of Shay's Rebellion fame, and sister of Mrs. Margaret Barnes who also lived in Barnard. Their children are all recorded in one place in the town record and were probably all born in Barnard unless the first had been born before their arrival in town, which is uncertain.

This family were not identified with the Congregational church but first cast in their lot with the "Chh of the Baptized Brethren" which had a rather feeble organization in this region. October 26, 1792, the records show that "The Chh of the Baptized Brethren met at the home of Abner Perkins in Barnard." In February, 1792, the church passed the following: "that Brother Abner Perkins be desired to improve the gift that God had given him, that the church might know what his gift was, and might be benefitted thereby." He was found among these people as late as June 4, 1801, when he is attending an ordination service at East Bethel. Before the latter date the Methodists had established their work in town and Abner Perkins early cast in his lot with them and became a very useful member. He became a local preacher and by the time Bishop Asbury visited Barnard, May 15, 1807, had become so thoroughly identified with this movement and gave such promise of permanent usefulness that Asbury ordained him on that date. His name appears in the records of the circuit as class leader as late as 1819 and he continued to exercise his office as long as he lived, preaching as strength and opportunity afforded. Several of his children went to Potsdam, N. Y., where he is reputed to have gone in his old age. However, an Abner Perkins, Sr. or Jr., was living in East Barnard as late as 1855.

1. Abner Perkins, m. Hdwk., Jan. 21, 1783, Polly, dau. Capt. Daniel and Margaret Shay.

PERRY FAMILY

On August 18, 1791, Joshua Perry, then of Barnard, bought of Jonathan Fay of Barnard one hundred acres of land, the southerly half of lot No. 195 and the northerly half of lot No. 260, near the land of George Paige in South Barnard. Nothing more is known of his family.

John Perry of Middleboro, Mass., probably born in that town, settled somewhere in Vermont.

Asa, son of John Perry, born Middleboro, Mass., 1797; died in Pomfret, Vt., October 29, 1839; m. Alice, dau. Uriah Dunham, died Apr. 24, 1877. They came to Pomfret, Vt., in 1838 with their children and Asa died the next year, leaving his widow with twelve children, the youngest a baby of two years.

Asa[3] Perry assisted his widowed mother in the care of her family and after his marriage lived in Pomfret for about five years. He then moved to Barnard, buying the farm on the stage or turnpike road about two miles south of Barnard village, still known as the Perry place, and here five of his seven children were born and here he and his wife died. His son, Dr. Clarence C. Perry, writes: "In the home where they lived seven children called them father and mother for over half a century, and the love they had for them was enhanced by a reverence and respect that will dwell in their hearts beyond today. In early life he became connected with the church, and during all the years of his life his faith was unshaken. He was accounted an excellent judge of cattle, was active in public affairs, having filled all the important offices in the gift of the town and represented the town in the legislature of 1882. In the performance of these duties none could say he ever acted from selfish motives. Principle and not policy was his guide."

September 27, 1901, twenty members of the family gathered with the parents at the old homestead for a reunion. The first annual Perry reunion was held with Elbridge Perry in Pomfret, August 1, 1907, attended by forty-one of the clan. Since then the descendants meet annually on August 16th, the birthday of Asa Perry.

PIERCE FAMILY

In the winter of 1796-7 Deacon David Pierce with his family, consisting of his wife, four boys and three girls, came to Barnard and settled in what later became the No. 6 or north road school district. In his latter days he went to Woodstock where perhaps he lived with his son, Deacon Dana Pierce. The family was of early New England stock, Deacon David being the sixth in descent from the immigrant Thomas. The father of the Barnard pioneer had lived in Sutton and Millbury, Mass., while David after his marriage had lived in Southboro, Mass., and Lancaster, N. H. The family was one of the strongest in the town and were among the mainstays of the Congregational church. Both David and his son Dana were Deacons of the Barnard church. Nathan, the oldest child in the family, was a Deacon in the Congregational church of Brandon and after his removal to Whitehall, N. Y., was for more than twenty-five years an Elder in the Presbyterian church of that place. Dr. Aaron Pierce, the third child of the family, had fitted himself for college with the intention of entering the ministry but failing health turned him to the study of medicine which profession he practiced for the remainder of his days yet he frequently preached in the absence of the pastor. David Pierce, Jr., graduated from Dartmouth, 1811, and was a noted lawyer in the West. Nathan, Dana and Edmund raised families in town but their last days were spent elsewhere. The family of Edmund was probably the last of the name in town. He was on the committee to buy the Congregational parsonage, April 19, 1834, and his name appears as a subscriber toward building the tomb in 1848, soon after which time he likely went West with his children and died in Kansas. The pioneer, Dea. David, and his wife with others of the name find sepulcher in the village cemetery.

1. DAVID PIERCE (Ebenezer[5], Ebenezer[4], John[3], Thomas[2], Thomas[1]), b. perhaps Sutton or Millbury, Mass., Aug. 16, 1760; d. prob. Wood., buried Bd., Sept. 12, 1816; m. 1783, Sarah Bridges, b. Apr. 1, 1760; d. Aug. 31, 1820.

Children:

2. I. NATHAN, b. Southboro, Mass., Nov. 24, 1784.

II. DAVID, b. Southboro, Mass., Mch. 26, 1786; d. Wood., Aug. 17, 1872; m. (1), Oct. 5, 1819, Ruth Downer, b. Jan. 8, 1797; d. June 28, 1833; m. (2), Dec. 17, 1834, Mary S. Gardner, b. Jan. 11, 1804; d. May 24, 1871. Graduated from Dartmouth, 1811, taught in Roy. Academy, 1811-12, read law with Hon. Chas. Marsh of Wood. and began practice there in 1816. After some yrs. he left the practice of law and devoted himself to scientific pursuits. He was auditor of state accounts for twenty-three yrs. from 1823 and was Judge of Windsor Co. court from 1846 to 1856.

III. AARON, b. Nov. 23, 1787; d. Barton, June 1, 1860; m. (1), Cornish, N. H., Dec. 28, 1819, Sarah, dau. Thomas and Sarah Hough of Lebanon, N. H., b. Lebanon, Mch. 21, 1797; d. Barton, Oct. 3, 1842; m. (2), July 9, 1844, Mary Billing, b. Lebanon, N. H., Feb. 8, 1799; d. Barton, Feb. 13, 1879. "He lived in Bd. until he was twenty-two yrs. old, then fitted for college intending to enter Middlebury College and later study for the ministry. Lung disease developed and he changed his plans and began the study of medicine under Dr. Danforth of Bd. Attended lectures at Dartmouth Medical College and began practice in Cornish, N. H. He was eleven yrs. in practice in Weathersfield. In 1842 he moved to Barton and practiced in Barton and Irasburgh. He was a little more than six feet in height and well proportioned, always dignified in his bearing. His convictions were strong, and, if he thought occasion required it, they were apt to be expressed with more regard for the truth than for the opinion of others. He was sometimes abrupt to a degree approaching harshness. * * In his profession he was skillful and successful. His counsel was often sought and highly valued. * * More than thirty sermons were found among his possessions after his death. These were written during his residence in Irasburgh, and most, if not all, were read by him on the Sabbath, at intervals, when the church was without a pastor. * * His mind was of a high order. * * A true child of the Puritans, he gave to his generation the service of a good citizen, a trusted physician and a spiritually minded man."

Another Pierce family, in no way related to the family of Deacon David, came into town during the first half of the last century and located in the east part. This was the family of Israel and Hannah (Cole) Pierce (Squier[6], Azrikin[5], Samuel[4] Azrikin[3], Ephriam[2], Michael[1]). This family had its seat in Rehoboth, Mass., where Israel resided before he and his family of children came to Barnard.

The family of Isaac Pierce was well known to the writer, they occupying the second farm to the west of the Timothy Newton farm which they rented from Alfred W. Richmond. They were living there as long ago as the writer can remember. The three youngest daughters attended school on the creek. The wife of the family was a spiritualist medium, coming from the Buckman-Perkins stock in Turkey Hollow who were noted in their day for their table tipping and other manifestations. She was a most excellent practical nurse and in great demand where sickness was. The record of the family is incomplete.

PIKE FAMILY

The Pikes were not among the earliest residents of Barnard but appear in town after their marriage into the Paige family and made their home in this vicinity, and mostly, in Barnard, after that time. The youngest daughter of Nelson Pike is still (1927) living in Barnard. The record of the Nelson Pike family is largely from the Bible of M. H. Billings of Barnard. William H. Pike lived for a time on the farm west of the Fort Defiance farm and then moved down into the fort place on the south of the brook now (1927) owned by Mr. Adams. Cyrus P. and Charles J. Pike were farmers and carpenters. For several years they lived on the old Brigham farm on the creek, later moved to the little house on the turnpike road at the head of the lake. During this time their sister, Alma, was their housekeeper and probably their father and mother lived with them in their declining years. The Pikes built the big barn on the Newcomb place and did most of the carpentering in this vicinity for many years.

The family is descended from Samuel and Mehitable Pike of Brookfield, Mass., who probably came by the way of Windsor, Vt., and Cornish, N. H., to Waitsfield about 1791 and died there in 1814. They had ten children born in Brookfield, Mass. The sixth child was Joshua Pike, the father of the brothers who came to Barnard.

PUTNAM FAMILY

The Putnam family of Barnard were descended from John Putnam, the emigrant and his wife Priscilla Deacon, who were at Scituate, Mass., in 1640. It is claimed the ancestry can be traced back six generations in England. Ebenezer and Joshua Putnam, father and son, settled in Barre, Vt., where Hiram Putnam, the ancestor of the Barnard Putnams, was born.

Ebenezer Putnam, born Sutton, Mass., September 7, 1738; died Bethel, May 4, 1808; m. January 17, 1766, Hannah Dyke, died Barre, Vt., 1832.

Joshua Putnam, born Sutton, November 2, 1769; died probably Barre, Vt., September 13, 1856; married Hannah Lathrop. Among his children were Ahial Putnam who lived long near the old church on the road from Bethel to Randolph and Hiram Putnam who finally settled in Barnard.

REED FAMILY

Job Reed bought 65 acres of land in South Barnard, April 1, 1788. They were neighbors of the Richmonds and Davises and were substantial citizens of the town. According to the census of 1790 there was one boy under sixteen and two girls in the family. In the list of children recorded in the town book there is only one daughter, Rhoda, there recorded. We know that Sally died in 1792. Thus the girls are accounted for. The writer thinks the son may possibly have been Amaziah who married Betsey Richmond of that neighborhood in 1818 and has so given it below without documentary proof further than the fact of marriage recorded in the town. In 1800 Job Reed was in school district No. 5, the Cox neighborhood.

RICHMOND FAMILY

For much which follows we are indebted to the excellent genealogy of the family.

The Richmond family name was prominent in Barnard for three or four generations. They were all descended from John Richmond of Taunton, Mass., born England, 1594, probably came to New England about 1635 and was one of the purchasers of Taunton in 1637. He was doubtless married when he came to Taunton but nothing is known of his wife.

Probably the first of the name to come to town was Amaziah[6] Richmond, son of Lemuel, who came about 1777 with several of his children. Then Ebenezer[4] Richmond, son of Ebenezer, came about 1799 with all his living children. These early families all settled in the south part of the town and along the brook to which they gave the Richmond name and near the Bridgewater line.

In 1795 Nathaniel Richmond (Josiah[5], Josiah[4], Edward[3], John[2], John[1]) came to Barnard from Taunton, bringing with him his three small children.

In 1792 Josiah Richmond (Josiah[5], Josiah[4], Edward[3], John[2], John[1]) came to Barnard from Middlebury, Conn., with seven children. They did not make a long stay in Barnard, going to Salina (Syracuse), N. Y., about 1810.

Walker Richmond (Josiah[5], Josiah[4], Edward[3], John[2], John[1]) with probably three of four grown children came to Barnard in 1803. He was also a brother of Nathaniel.

Abner Richmond (Josiah[5], Josiah[4], Edward[3], John[2], John[1]), with a family of three or four small children came to Barnard in 1804. He was a brother of Nathaniel.

Lemuel Richmond (Josiah[4], Edward[3], John[2], John[1]), b. Middleboro, 1733; d. Apr. 2, 1802; m. Widow Molly (Richmond) Lincoln, daughter of Ebenezer and Mary (Walker) Richmond, born 1713, died Barnard, April 9, 1820. Lemuel came to Barnard. He died in Barnard and his widow died here. His six children all came to Barnard. Amaziah, his eldest child, was here in 1787.

The Richmonds were always good farmers. They had large bodies and excelled in strength. They were good citizens and some of them were prominent in affairs of the town and in the militia.

The Major Lemuel Richmond place is the house, now falling down, in Barnard upper village opposite the Gale brick house. Nearly opposite this house in the meadow may be seen the foundations of the hat factory belonging to Major Lemuel Richmond.

On the side of the Delectable Mountains at the headwaters of the Sam Wood brook was another Richmond stronghold where Nathaniel Richmond lived whose daughter married Eben Tucker.

1. Ebenezer[4] Richmond (Ebenezer[3], John[2], John[1]), b. Middleboro, Mass., Mch. 31, 1701; d. Bd., Mch. 6, 1793; m. Apr. 28, 1730, widow Mary (Walker) Walker, b. Aug. 16, 1704; d. Dean Richmond, born Barnard, 1804, went to Syracuse where he married and engaged in the salt industry. He lived in various places in New York and had varied business interests and died very rich. The Albany Argus said of him: "He made for himself a national reputation, and became one of the most marked and influential men of his time. He infused life and energy into every project within his grasp, and became the master of every enterprise in which he engaged. His presence never failed to be inspiring. As a business man Mr. Richmond ranked among the most successful in the country. For years he was a director of the Buffalo and Rochester Railroad, and at the consolidation of the line from Albany west was elected vice-president of the New York Central Railroad, the Hon. Erastus Corning being president. On the resignation of Mr. Corning, Mr. Richmond was chosen to succeed him. He was also president of the State Line Railroad. His business connections with the West were of an important and widespread character. His control over the commerce of the lakes was almost unlimited, and he was almost as well known in the West as in the cities of his own state. The great business enterprises with which his name was connected will feel the want of his energy and organization, which was equal to any emergency. Hundreds of young men who have been aided in business through his friendship and advice will long cherish his memory; while the poor, who have profited so largely by his unpretending yet princely generosity, will mourn his loss as irreparable."

Amaziah Richmond of Berkley, Mass., seems to have been the pioneer in town. He had pitched his land before May 1, 1779, and took deed to the same on May 31, 1779, the same day that Ebenezer Richmond, joiner, of Deighton, Mass., took deed to his land. Amaziah bought additional land on December 15, 1788, and Ebenezer also bought an additional farm on August 18, 1790. Nathaniel Richmond bought his hundred acre lot on September 5, 1792, and on the following October 10, Josiah Richmond bought a farm of similar size. Their farms were all in the south part of the town, where they raised large families and occupied important positions in the town. The name was represented there until recent days. As in the case of most of the early families the children left town for the newer section of the country and several became more than locally famous. One of the clan settled in Woodstock and was for a long time sheriff of Windsor County. Dean Richmond was prominent in politics in New York state and the right-hand man for Commodore Vanderbilt in the building of his railroad. Paul Richmond became a well-known Methodist preacher and Presiding Elder. Several of the family were prominent in the militia and in the affairs of the town.

The following concerning Thomas Richmond's long and eventful life is gleaned from an article he wrote when 93 years old. The first twenty-one years of his life was spent mostly on his father's farm in Barnard. During the war of 1812 his father was an enlisted man and he, although only 15 years of age and being too young to enlist saw service as a servant to an officer and in his old age drew a persion for this service.

In the fall of 1815 in company with Zadoc Thompson, who was two years his senior, he started on foot for the West intending to teach school as they heard there was a scarcity of teachers there. At Salt Point, N. Y., now a part of Syracuse, he abandoned his idea of becoming a teacher and found employment at $25 a month at work on a boat. The price seemed enormous as he had been accustomed to work for $10 a month. He followed this work until the following April when he returned to Barnard on foot, carrying to his father every dollar he had earned. He helped on the farm during the busy season and the following fall returned to the same work, returning to Barnard the following April. He thus traveled over the route on foot four times, 240 miles each time, doing it in six days.

Now being 21 years of age and his own man he returned to Salt Point determined to get rich and remained there in successful business for fifteen years. From there he went to Cleveland,

O., and engaged in commercial ventures and traffic on Lake Erie. Here he also spent fifteen years and then moved to Chicago and continued at that place in business for thirty years. Here he was prominent in business, being one of the signers for the call for the meeting of the first Board of Trade. At one time Richmond and Walker handled all the grain which came to Chicago. He equipped the first boat loaded with his grain and sent it to Liverpool under the direction of his son. This venture was moderately successful but the boat was too small to be continued in so long a voyage. He accumulated a large property but lost the most of it in the great fire and after the death of his first wife returned to Barnard and then moved down near Woodstock where he died.

Speaking of his younger days he says he "was under the strictest religious discipline, after the type of New England orthodoxy, which laid the foundation of my future life, making me a happy man, successful in business, and lengthening out my years. I was never the worse for liquor. I helped get up in Syracuse the first temperance society I ever heard of, taking a total abstinence pledge that I have never broken. I was never sued or brought into court as defendant. I have never made a debt I did not pay, and I owe no man living a dollar. I was never in a theater in my life, never in a gambling saloon, never at a horse race or in a house of ill fame, never earned or lost a dollar at any game of chance. Have always been a healthy, well-to-do man, successful in business; always contented and happy, and am now as happy a man as there is living." This was written when he was 95 years old, only a little more than four months before his death, written with his own hand although he confessed he could not see a word he had written.

A lengthy article appeared in the Chicago paper after his death, from which we abstract the following: "Mr. Richmond may justly be described as one of the honorable pioneer merchants of Chicago. From 1847 until incapacitated by age he was one of the most enterprising early Chicago merchants. Nor did he confine himself to the purely practical phase of commercial affairs, for he wrote well and even profoundly on the financial and politico-economic topics of the period. * * * His first venture as a young man was boiling salt on shares, earning 122 barrels the first winter and taking it to York (now Toronto, Canada) by boat; subsequently he traded salt for a drove of cattle going as far west as Cleveland to make the exchange; he drove the cattle 350 miles on the way on foot; in 1832 he founded the town of Richmond, O., which was some thirty miles from Cleveland; in 1840 he moved to Cleveland where in company with Captain Southwick he fitted out in 1845 the first vessel for the Lake Superior trade; this vessel was in charge of his son, Charles Y. Richmond, who helped convey it over the portage into the lake. * * * He served in the Ohio legislature as a Whig and later in the legislature of Illinois as a Republican. * * * I knew I might hear of his departure to the spiritual world at any time, in the existence and nearness of which he as firmly believed as he did in his own. * * * He was firm believer in the fact that this was a divinely appointed universe; in the further fact that it is governed by eternal laws ordained of God, the maker thereof; that in conforming to these laws, though there doth not always lie victory and felicity here, that such do await the righteous and true man hereafter; while in departing from them lies, and forever must lie, sorrow and defeat for each and all of us, if not always here, still always hereafter; and furthermore the high and honorable nature of this man ever lead him to swear eternal fealty to the good and true and to dare not, even with the whole world at his back, deflect therefrom."

ROYCE FAMILY

Philip Royce, Jr., came from Mansfield, Conn., to Woodstock about 1794. From Woodstock he moved to Royalton, near East Barnard about 1807 and here he and his wife died. His son, Philip, 3d, married and located on a part of his father's farm but about 1829 moved further up the brook and into the town of Barnard to the place still known as the Royce place. This was a very influential family in the Methodist church at East Barnard. In the church records at East Barnard opposite the name of Philip Royce, 3d, is the suggestive entry made at the time of his death. "A good man full of faith and the Holy Ghost." One of his twin boys was named Abraham Merrill after the circuit preacher of the previous year and the other was called John Bliss for the assistant preacher of that year. The writer was well acquainted with Philip Royce, 4th, when he was a steward of the Methodist church at Brownsville and later at Woodstock. He well preserved the best traditions of the family and was greatly revered and trusted by the people where he lived.

SABIN FAMILY

1. Ebenezer Sabin of Plainfield, N. H., bought land in South Barnard, June 4, 1781, from which he later gave to the town the South Barnard cemetery, which by good rights, should be called Sabin Cemetery. We have no account of his death but know his wife was Anna who married for her second husband in Barnard, December 14, 1820, Jacob Lawton of Barnard. Ebenezer Sabin was tything man and sealer of weights and measures and otherwise prominent in town. He had three of his children recorded in the town book but the record concerning the daughter first recorded is mutilated. It would appear that Luther H. Sabin was another son of the family and is so credited.

Children:

*I. (Polly?), dau., b. Bd., Dec. 21, 17(79); m. Christopher J. Lawton.
II. Susan A., b. Bd., abt. 1784.
III. Orrin, b. Bd., abt. 1786; d. Bd., Aug. 17, 1796.

on the committee to buy the Congregational parsonage in Apr. 19, 1834. In the census of 1790 Ebenezer Sabin should have had another son whose name did not appear in the town book. Luther had lived in Waitsfield at the time of his m. Perhaps his father d. there and the mother returned to Bd. with Luther H.

(a) Ebenezer, b. Bd., Feb. 24, 1823; m. Bd., May, 1845, Martha E., dau. Alpheus and Salvina (Paige) Howe of Bd., b. Bd., Dec. 29, 1820; d. Bd., Apr. 25, 1850. Lived in Bd. on the hill above the Geo. Brown place.

(c) Luther, b. Bd., Aug. 27, 1827.

On February 8, 1788, Seth Sabin bought two hundred acres of land in Barnard from the original right of Tobias Fish, the same being sold for taxes. On May 1, 1793, he bought the remainder of the right from Joseph Bowman, Jr. Whether he lived on this land or not is unknown and nothing of his family has been learned.

SHARP FAMILY

Sergant Daniel Sharp was from Connecticut. He came first to Pomfret and finally settled and died in Barnard. He was a blacksmith but like all others of his time was also a farmer. His land was in the south part of the town and his son Daniel had the place at the last and the father died in the son's home. His first purchase of land in Barnard was on October 7, 1778, when he bought a farm of one hundred acres, at that time being a resident of Pomfret. May 4, 1779, he added forty acres to his farm and was then a resident of Barnard which shows his arrival in town as a resident was between those two dates. Dec. 18, 1789, he bought the original right of Josiah Fairfield, selling one-half of it to Samuel Crafts on Aug. 13, 1791, and the remainder to Lemuel Ingalls on August 20, 1792. In 1800 he was in number two or South Barnard school district. He had a revolutionary war record.

SMITH FAMILY

This family was numerous in Barnard and adjoining towns and it has been somewhat difficult to place several of the name. The descendants of Richard[1] Smith, related to the Cox family, were carefully traced by the late Dr. Gardner Cox to whose labors we are indebted for this branch of the family. This branch of the family seems to have had several members of rather unusual mental ability but lacking in that poise which made their ability count. Some of this family were prominent in the organization of the Christian church, organizing a number of societies of this name in the region around Barnard. Two of the name seem largely responsible for the organization of the Christian church in Woodstock. Several of the societies they organized had short life. Comments on various members of this branch of the family will be given in Dr. Cox's words.

1. RICHARD[1] SMITH, b. Eng., abt. 1625; d. Lyme, Conn., 1701; m. (1), presumably in Eng.; m. (2), Boston, Aug. 2, 1654, widow Johanna Quarles, d. Lyme, Conn., after 1706. She was related to Francis Quarles, the English poet. The family came to Lancaster, Mass., and from there went to Lyme, Conn., where they remained four generations and where their descendants were numerous when Dr. Cox prepared his sketch of the family.

"Elias, Uriah and Richard Ransom Smith, sons of Stephen and Irene (Ransom) Smith were all noted for their phenomenal memories, they could practically repeat the New Testament by heart. There was no subject upon which they could not quote, off hand, columns of scriptures to prove either side of a question. Richard was ordained a Baptist minister at Conway, N. H., about 1793. He ascended the scale to Universalism and canvassed the country for the denomination. After he was convinced that every one else was convinced he settled in South Woodstock, Vt., as a goldsmith. He tramped to Canada to see a quack doctor and he was well so he studied medicine under Dr. Drew of Woodstock and took an amateur's degree, which was the custom in those days, practiced in South Woodstock a short time and moved to Boston where he was quite celebrated.

"When Elias was eighteen years old he taught the South Woodstock village school for $1.00 a week and boarded around. He could enumerate three figures and was nearly as proficient in a few of the classics. When he was nineteen he taught in a corner of the town that joined Reading and Hartland. There was no schoolhouse but he taught in a new house that had neither clapboards, plaster, windows, sheathing nor cellar. Loose boards over head and under foot, paper greased with hog's lard for window glass, a vigorous smoke at one end warmed them and the teacher wore green goggles. Elias was the noisy one of the family, there were few men of his day better known. He had extraordinary talent, which if it had been well directed, would have made his name immortal, but he saw visions and dreamed dreams and committed everything to memory. Whole theological works and the New Testament he practically retained in his memory until he was seventy years of age. He tramped the country from Maine to Virginia preaching and explaining. To his mind there was no such thing as a Baptist church. The only possible one for him was the Christian and no ten men did more to establish that denomination than he and Uriah. They baptized continually and established the present Christian church in Woodstock. He had a printing establishment which he moved about through New Hampshire, Maine, Philadelphia and back again. He was ordained in 1792 and settled in Lee and Woburn, Mass., and Portsmouth, besides other places. He wrote several works, besides several pamphlets and papers. He wrote rapidly and was seldom without a pencil. Sept. 1, 1806, at Exeter, N. H., he issued the Herald of Gospel Liberty and published it nine years. This was one of the first religious newspapers in this region. The people loved him but the clergy feared him as a biblical controvertialist as he could repeat by heart what they had to hunt for. The clergy said that Dr. Sheperd, Elias Smith and the devil were calculated to do more harm than any three criminals out of jail owing to their liberal interpretation of the Bible. He wrote his autobiography. He married Mary Burleigh, be being 23 and she 19. They lived together 21 years and saw very little of each other. She died in 1814 while he was away preaching and he married within a year Rachel Thurber of Providence. He settled in Boston and had about the first hospital there. He also ran a drug store and manufactured his botanical cure-alls. His store was on Hanover St. He also continued to preach after selling his store and lived in Providence and Lynn, where he died.

"Uriah Smith was less erratic than this two brothers and made many friends. He was a much loved pastor and a beautiful reader and singer so that hymns had a new interpretation. He was ingenious with tools and left many household souvenirs of his skill. He preached in three states and nineteen towns and remained long in a place and let Elias do the running. He was in New Hampshire where he buried his first wife, married his second and buried his third. The second wife is buried in the South Barnard cemetery near where she lived and died. She was one of the first buried there and for sixty years she had no stone, when one was finally erected by her youngest daughter, Susan. He went as far north as Bangor, N. Y., was settled over the church in Woodstock as late as 1825. Jan. 30, 1812, he wrote that he had been in Woodstock seven years and that when he came there was not a church in all Vermont by the name of Christian. He had baptized more than 200, started two churches in the town and one or more in almost every town around here, one in English Mills in 1806. With his brother Elias he established the Christian church in Woodstock in 1806 with about thirty-six members and Uriah baptized sixty-seven members the first year.

"Matthew Hale Smith, son of Elias, born in 1810, was the son of his sire with all the laws of heredity thrown in. He began where his father left off and preached Universalism, Presbyterianism, Episcopalianism and then Baptism. The 'isms' being exhausted he wrote books giving his reasons for changing. He was a preacher, lawyer, editor, politician and man of business. He wrote the 'Sunshine and Shadows of New York' which had an extensive sale. For twenty years or more he was the New York correspondent of the Boston Journal and wrote under the nom de plume of 'Burleigh,' his mother's maiden name."

Another Smith family is found in town rather early. How they might have been related to the Richard Smith line is at present unknown. The family lived on Smith Hill in the west part of the town and the older members are buried in the Nye cemetery near their home.

Christopher Smith, died Barnard, December 21, 1824, aged 88 years, and is buried in the Nye cemetery. Perhaps he was the father of the Elias following, who lived in that vicinity and gave the name to a peak in the Delectable Mountains.

SNOW FAMILY

This family seems to have been located in Royalton, Pomfret and Barnard, with traces of the name in Bridgewater. Abraham Snow probably lived in the south part of Barnard and his wife is buried in South Barnard cemetery. Clark says John Snow, a soldier of the War of 1812, is buried in the same place but if so it is without stone. Snow's store was in East Barnard in the 50s and the family of Arunah lived on Broad Brook below the east village, in Royalton and later came to Barnard where he died. Mrs. C. L. Alden gathered data for a genealogy of the family but the unindexed material was deposited after her death in the N. E. Historical Genealogical Society. With the exception of the family of Arunah what is here given is fragmentary.

1. Arunah, son of ——— and Mary (Spear) Snow, b. Apr. 20, 1801; d. Bd., Aug. 5, 1880; m. Betsey, dau. Timothy and Bethia Cheedle, b. Aug. 25, 1800; d. Roy., Feb. 2, 1860. This family was prominent in the Methodist church at E. Bd.

IV. Martha E., b. Dec. 13, 1840; d. Roy., June 2, 1864.

SOUTHGATE FAMILY

Richard Southgate came from Combs, England, in 1715 with his wife and five children and three years later settled in Leicester, Mass. He had a son, Stewart, who married Elizabeth Scott and lived in Leicester where the Barnard pioneer was born.

Stewart Southgate, Jr., lived a few years in Old Hardwick but followed his kinsmen to Barnard where he bought lot No. 13 consisting of one hundred acres from Lot Whitcomb on July 6, 1779. He sold fifty acres of the land to Shiverick Crowell on July 13, 1788, and on Aug. 10, 1790, he bought at vendue the original right of Joseph Stoneham. The homestead was the old town farm at the head of the lake and near the Aikens Stand. Mrs. Southgate was a sister of Mrs. Asa Whitcomb and of Mrs. William Paige who died in Barnard, January 23, 1795, while on a visit to her sisters.

Stewart Southgate served in the Revolution as a sergeant in Capt. Samuel Billings' Company, responding to the Lexington Alarm in May, 1775. He came from Leicester to Old Hardwick. His wife died in Barnard but it is not known whether he died there or followed some one of his children to their permanent home outside the town. While the family was in Barnard a great affliction overtook them. Five of their children died of canker rash in 1795 within the space of less than three weeks.

1. Stewart Southgate (Stewart[2], Richard[1]), b. Leicester, Mass., Sept. 10, 1748; m. Hdwk., July 22, 1773, Deborah, dau. Benjamin and Mercy Raymond, b. abt. 1754; d. Bd., Feb. 28, 1813. In 1800 they were in the Aikens' school district. At first Stewart Southgate was a Congregationalist but later a Friend. It was one of the substantial families of the early days.

SPAULDING FAMILY

This family was very numerous through this section of the state. Representatives of several branches of the family touched the town and many individuals can not be traced.

William Bela (always called Bela) Spaulding (Ezra[6], Abel[5], Jonathan[4], John[3], John[2], Edward[1]) was one of a family of at least four sons and two daughters of Ezra and Lydia (Fitch) Spaulding. Abel lived in Plainfield, Conn., and with his children moved to Cornish, N. H., where the family of Ezra was born. Ezra followed the family of his son Bela to Barnard and died there, his other children living in Westminster, Hartland, Burlington, Vt., and in Rockford, Ill.

Ezra Spaulding, born Plainfield, Conn., December 11, 1751; died Barnard, September, 1840; m. Lydia Fitch. He was a soldier of the Revolution.

1. William Bela (called Bela), son of Ezra and Lydia (Fitch) Spaulding, b. Cornish, N. H., Jan. 16, 1784; d. Bd., Sept. 22, 1868; m. (1), Atlanta Dickens; m. (2), Hannah Young; m. (3) Mary or Polly Morgan. The authority for the first m. is the Spaulding Genealogy, for the second m. the Hist. of Roy., and for the third the Bd. m. record of his dau., Ellen M., who is there called the dau. of Bela and Mary. Polly Spaulding, d. Bd., Mch. 8, 1865, ae. 91-4-9 and was given as the dau. of Benjamin and Sarah (Park) Morgan, b. Preston, Conn. If our supposition is correct then she had been first the wife of Joseph Parkhurst of Roy., who d. Sept. 4, 1830, and she m. second June 21, 1831, Bela Spaulding. The Hist. of Roy. is prob. wrong in supposing she m. Dea. Reuben Spaulding. Neither the computed age of Bela or Polly as given in the town records tallies with the b. dates.

Children:

I. William Diggins, b. Claremont, N. H., Sept. 29, 1816; m. and lived in Claremont.

*II. Marcia A., dau. Hannah, b. Cornish, N. H., Aug. 17, 1818; m. Enoch Ellis.

III. Ellen M., dau. Mary, b. Cornish, N. H., June 8, 1835; d. Roy., Aug. 1, 1869; m. Mch. 10, 1861, Anthony Colby, son of Caleb and Sarah G. (Sewall) Ray of Roy., b. New London, N. H., Aug. 19, 1833. Her people were living in Bd. at the time of her m. and she and her husband continued to live with them for a year and a half until he enlisted in Co. G, 16th Vt. Vol. and served full nine months, credited to Bd.

1. Another Spaulding family which touching Bd. somewhat through m. and otherwise, lived on the Roy. hills near the east part of the town was the family of Reuben Spaulding (Asahel[6], Reuben[5], Ephriam[4], Edward[3], Benjamin[2], Edward[1]), m. Apr. 2, 1800, Abigail Davis.

Children:

*I. ALICE, b. Sh., Oct. 12, 1800; m. Amasa Royce.
II. RUSSEL HOLLY, b. Roy., Apr. 25, 1804; d. Pitts., Oct. 23, 1860; m. Roy., Feb. 25, 1824, Lucinda, dau. Nehimiah and Polly (Sleeper) Leavitt, b. Roy., Sept. 25, 1806; d. East Cambridge, Mass., May 6, 1880. Russell H. Spaulding was a Methodist preacher and continued until failing health compelled his retirement. These families lived near the town line in Roy. and were prominently identified with the Methodist church in the old circuit.
2. III. JOHN L.
3. IV. CHARLES, d. Sh., abt. 1863.
V. NANCY, m. John Bennett. Lived on Broad Brook, Roy.
VI. REUBEN C., b. Roy., Aug. 30, 1816; d. Be., Aug. 27, 1898; m. at Broad Brook schoolhouse, Roy., Mch. 17, 1838, Hannah, dau. Ruel and Hannah (Gardner) Manning, b. Bedford, N. H., Nov. 27, 1817; d. E. Be., Apr. 23, 1911.

SPEAR FAMILY

1. There appears to have been two families of the name of Spear in the town at about the same time. Of the family of Joseph and Hannah Spear the writer only knows the record of the birth of their two children. The family probably remained here but a short time.

Children:

I. Hannah Minerva, b. Bd., Sept. 24, 1827.
II. Joseph Cullen, b. Bd., May 27, 1832.

1. Rev. Elijah Spear, b. Hartford, Sept. 26, 1795; d. in Bd., Dec. 27, 1863; m. abt. 1826, Azuba Bartholemew of Hartford or Norwich, b. Feb. 29, 1804; d. Bd., Dec. 30, 1863.

Children:

I. Olive Wells, b. Bd., Jan. 2, 1828; d. Pleasantville, Pa., July 31, 1905; m. Bd., Mch. 26, 1850, William R., son Elias and Patty (Farnham) Lyman, b. Roy., Apr. 5, 1818; d. Albany, N. Y., Mch. 12, 1890. Four ch. Lived in Bd., Roy., White River Junc., and Albany, N. Y.
II. Laura F., b. Bd., Aug. 6, 1829.
III. Azuba Jane, b. Bd., Jan. 7, 1833; d. unm., Bd., June 13, 1910.
IV. Abba J., b. Bd., Nov. 17, 1839; d. Wood., 1915; m. Jan. 16, 1877, Judah L. Mack of Wood.

Rev. Elijah Spear began to preach under the Presiding Elder in Cabot, Vt., in 1814 when he was only nineteen years old. He continued as a supply until he joined the New England Conference on probation in 1819. He filled various appointments in Maine and Vermont and was one of the charter members of the Vermont Conference when it was organized in 1844. He appears to have remained unmarried during his ministerial work, as the custom of many was in those days, until his appointment as supernumerary preacher on Norwich Circuit in 1826. Here he married his wife from one of the leading Methodist families of that region. He received appointment to Barnard as supernumerary preacher in 1828-30 and was doubtless a resident of the town as early as the latter part of 1827, as his eldest daughter was born in town on the second day of January, 1828. In 1831 he became a superannuated preacher and so remained until his death in 1863, but rendering much service to the church in this region. He lived in the east part of the town not far from the Pomfret line. The burial place of the family, with the exception of the eldest and youngest daughters, is in the East Barnard cemetery. He was town clerk of Barnard.

SPOONER FAMILY

There were three Spooner families in Barnard about the same time but they were only distantly related. They were originally from Dartmouth, Mass., but came to Barnard by the way of Hardwick. They were descended from William Spooner who was in New England as early as 1637.

Amaziah Spooner, the direct ancestor of one of the Barnard families, was born in Dartmouth, Mch. 9, 1726; died at Hardwick, July 8, 1798; married at Hardwick, February 22, 1749-1750, Lydia, dau. James and Lydia (Child) Fay, born Westboro, Mass., 1730; died Hardwick, August 10, 1817. They did not come to Barnard but one of their sons and a daughter came and here reared families.

Charles Spooner of Hardwick bought one hundred acres of land, lot No. 187, of Moses Fay on February 10, 1789. He came to town 1790. It is said he soon went to Stockbridge and lived a short time, as did many of the early Barnard settlers, but he later returned to Barnard where all of his children, save one, were born. In 1800 he was in No. 8, Mt. Hunger, school district, and was still a resident of Barnard in 1840 as a pensioner of the Revolution. Although he sold the land mentioned above to his brother, Samuel, September 18, 1791, when he probably went to Stockbridge, he was soon back in Barnard. His sister Betsey had married Gideon Newton and preceded him to Barnard about three years.

Jeduthan Spooner (Thomas[4], John[3], John[2], William[1]), born May 12, 1755; died Hardwick, May 16, 1817; married Hardwick, April 27, 1781, Hannah, daughter of Joshua and Mary (Shiverick) Crowell, born July 14, 1755; died Hardwick, December 16, 1807. Jeduthan came to Hardwick before his marriage and was a much respected citizen there where he spent all the remainder of his days. His wife was insane, killed her mother and later committed suicide. Several of their children became prominent citizens of Vermont and Wisconsin.

Another family in Barnard was the Lemuel Spooner family which, if the writer mistakes not, lived not far from the Turkey Hollow schoolhouse where in 1855 he was living in the house next north of the school. He was the son of Gardner and Deborah (Shaw) Spooner who came from Dartmouth to Woodstock, Vt., in 1782 and where Gardner died.

STEBBINGS FAMILY

Benjamin Stebbings was the Barnard pioneer. He was born in Leicester, Mass. Leicester included Spencer until the latter became an organized town in 1753. He came to Old Hardwick where he married a daughter of Solomon Aikens and joined the migration of Hardwick people to the Barnard hills. He was in town as early as 1780. His first purchase of land was on March 10, 1780, when he bought lots No. 88, No. 89, No. 92, No. 93, easterly of William Chedle's and near the pond. The same day he bought two rights in the town and on the 10th of July ten years later added to his holdings the original right of I. Longfellow which had been sold for taxes. September 2, 1782, he bought forty acres of Jabez Wight near the outlet of the pond and this was where he lived on the west side of the street in what is now the village. From his holdings came the land for the village cemetery and the Davis farm across the road from it. His land lay about the outlet of the pond and very properly the beautiful sheet of water was for many years known as Stebbings' Pond.

Stebbings was, in a way, an important man in town. He represented the town in the legislature of 1782 and was closely associated with Lot Whitcomb in dealing with the proprietors of the town and the proprietors' meetings were held in Stebbings' house. After the town ceased to hold the town meetings at Chedel's they were held for two years at the home of Stebbings and then transferred to the meetinghouse. But in spite of the fact that Stebbings was much in the public eye he does not seem to have been so substantial a man as most of the early settlers and soon fades out of the picture altogether.

The General Assembly of Vermont in 1803 passed an act granting one hundred acres of land in Barnard to Jesse Williams, Judge of Probate for the District of Hartford, to hold in trust for Mercy Stebbings to occupy and improve during her life time, giving her the power to deed the land to any of her children, the deed to take effect at her decease, and in case she made no deed, the property to descend to her heirs like any other. For what reason this was done seems to remain a mystery. For some time it was thought she was a widow and that her husband's title to the property had, for some reason, become clouded in his land dealings. But it has later been found she was not a widow at this time.

Stebbings built a dam across the neck of the pond some six rods above the present dam and was instrumental in building the first sawmill and gristmill in the town which probably stood on the site of the mill below the present dam where a mill was burned many years ago. It is understood that his son Charles conducted the mill for a time after the father left town.

Stebbings was a large land owner and probably heavily in debt and the conditions following the war made it hard for him as it did for many others. Revolutionary yeast was in his make up and he was of that class of debtors who made Shay's Rebellion a matter of history. Stebbings was a leader of the malcontents in the town and a sort of lieutenant to Robert Morrison, the Hartland blacksmith, who lead the revolt in this section. The Court of Common Pleas attempted to sit at Windsor on Tuesday, October 31, 1786, and Morrison and Stebbings, with some thirty others, among the number Amos Bicknell, John Whitcomb and Solomon Aikens of Barnard, denied the court the courtesy of sitting anywhere on the Vermont hills. Benjamin Wait, Sheriff, and Stephen Jacob, States Attorney, met the mob, read the riot act and dispersed the gathering. Stebbings was later indicted by the grand jury for his part in the affair but what disposition was made of his case has not been determined.

The town common of about four and a half acres was deeded to the town by Stebbings. There seemed to have been some question as to the title and later Joseph Marsh of Hartford deeded the same land by an instrument of similar tenor and mentions "his love and good will to the town." One may gather from a careful reading of the town meeting records that Stebbings was a sort of stormy petrel of the early days of the town's business.

What became of the family after leaving Barnard remained for a long time a mystery until in 1927 the writer came in touch with Mrs. Charles A. Pratt of Chicago, Ill., a great-grandaughter of the pioneer, who has courteously furnished information concerning her branch of the family. It is from this source we learn that Benjamin and his wife went to Westford, Vt., after leaving Barnard, where they made their home and where they are probably buried, although they died within a few days of each other in Bakersfield, Vt., presumably at the home of their daughter.

STETSON FAMILY

This family was probably originally from Scituate, Mass., but Benjamin Stetson came to Barnard from Hardwick, Mass. He bought land in town on June 24, 1779. Paige in his History of Hardwick says the family settled in Sangersfield, N. Y., but does not mention their being in Barnard. Quite likely they left Barnard not long after the birth of their twins in 1798 and migrated to New York as did many of the others of the old town. The Barnard records of this family are mutilated but are here given as they at present appear.

1. BENJAMIN, son Ezra and Sarah (Rider) Stetson, b. Hdwk.; d. prob., N. Y.; m. Hdwk., Mary Johnson.

STEVENS FAMILY

The Stevens family were prominent in Barnard for four generations. Andrew Stevens, 1st, a soldier of the Revolution, with his wife, Marcy (Collins) Stevens, and with their son, Andrew, 2d, and perhaps other children came from Rochester, Mass., and bought lot No. 81 consisting of one hundred acres paying Thomas Swift £15 for it on July 11, 1777. As Stevens is given in this deed as of Rochester the above date pretty nearly determines the time the family came to town. Swift was also of Rochester and had bought several parcels of land of Asa Whitcomb who dickered much in Barnard land and was agent for the proprietors. The place is the Stevens-DuBois farm adjoining the Methodist cemetery on the north road. It is one of the most sightly places in the entire town, having an extended view of the mountains toward Rochester and Randolph and Camel's Hump being visible from the meadow. The drive by the house is a choice one and much appreciated by the lovers of Vermont scenery. Andrew Stevens was given in the deed as a cordwainer, i. e., a worker in leather or shoemaker, but like all the artisans of his time he was also a farmer. The burial place of the oldest generation is in the village cemetery but the succeeding generations are buried in the Methodist cemetery near their home.

Very early this family cast in its lot with the Methodists. Andrew Stevens, 2d, was ordained by Bishop Asbury in 1811 as a deacon as a local preacher in the old meetinghouse near his home, having held the office of local preacher for at least ten years before that time. To the end of his days he continued to exercise his gifts, not only in Barnard but in all the surrounding towns, and was esteemed a very useful man among the Methodists of his time. At his home Bishops Asbury and McKendree, with their traveling companions, were entertained during the week of the meeting of the New England Annual Conference in 1811 at the meeting in the old church near the Stevens home. Elias P. Stevens, son of Rev. Andrew Stevens, became a member of conference in the traveling connection and so continued until failing health compelled him to give up the work and retire to his farm in Royalton, near East Barnard village from which place he went out as a preacher occasionally as long as his health permitted.

The Stevens family was one of several families in Barnard noted for musical ability. Lizzie Stevens, great-granddaughter of Rev. Andrew Stevens, "possessed one of the rarest contralto voices ever heard in Windsor Co." Several others were prominent in the county musical conventions of the early days. Collins R. Stevens, a brother of Lizzie, was a manufacturer of parlor and church organs in Marietta, O.

Rev. Andrew Stevens succeeded his father on the ancestral acres and after him his son, Nathaniel, who married Elizabeth Chamberlin, a near neighbor, occupied the farm and built the present set of excellent farm buildings. The building operations were on so extensive a scale as to financially embarrass him. The first frame house stood on the opposite side of the road from the present buildings, was long unoccupied and was taken down in 1922. The farm was next owned by Solon D. Putnam who married Nancie M. Stevens, a daughter of Nathaniel.

Andrew Stevens, 3d, went to Lowell, Mass., where he died, his wife passing away at Concord, N. H., but both of them are buried in the Methodist cemetery near the old home. There is no stone there to mark the grave of his mother and she may have spent her last days out of town with some one of the children and found burial elsewhere.

The writer has personally known the later generations of this family and from what he has heard of the others esteems them as among the best citizens of the old town which now holds no one of the name.

1. TIMOTHY STEVENS and Mary, dau. John and Sarah (Smith) Clark were married in Rochester, Mass., Mch. 21, 1716-17. Lived in Roch.

X. PRINCE, b. Roch., May 2, 1736; m. Roch., Jan. 19, 1764, Reliance Hinckley.

After careful investigation it would seem reasonably certain that Andrew Stevens, 1st, the Barnard pioneer, was the son of Timothy and Mary (Clark) Stevens of Rochester, Mass., born in Rochester, June 24, 1731. The Rochester Vital Statistics give the death of Andrew Stevens, son of Timothy and Mary Stevens, as occurring on April 26, 1733, no age being given. But we know that Andrew Stevens of Barnard died in that town, April 14, 1808, aged 76 years according to the gravestone and otherwise given as aged 76-9-20, which would have made his birth on June 24, 1731, the date assigned in the Rochester Vital Statistics for the birth of Andrew, son of Timothy and Mary Stevens. The supposition is that the Andrew whose death is recorded in Rochester was an unrecorded earlier son of Timothy and Mary Stevens, born say in 1727-8, whose name was later given to the son who came to Barnard who would have been one year and ten months old at the time the other Andrew died.

Relative to Meriba Swift the wife of Nathaniel Stevens the following note is made concerning her second marriage to William Chamberlin of Barnard. It would appear that Nathaniel Stevens left Rochester soon after his marriage as no child of his is recorded there. But the place he went and the place and time of his death have not been recorded. There is no evidence at present that he came to Barnard with his father and brother though this might have been the case and he have been buried in town in the village cemetery without stone to mark his grave. The Barnard town records carry the marriage of William Chamberlin to Meriba Stevens, October 24, 1790. The record is silent, as is often the case, as to whether she was a maiden or a widow. But no other Meriba Stevens of marriageable age can be found, either in Barnard or elsewhere. If she had been an unmarried woman at the time she became the wife of William Chamberlin she would have been over forty-six years old at the time of her marriage, rather unusual in those times. She died in Barnard, March 13, 1813 "in her 59th year" which would have made her birth fall in 1754. The birth of Meriba Swift, the wife of Nathaniel Stevens occurred in Rochester, August 8, 175— (record incomplete) which would coincide with the birth date of Meriba Stevens Chamberlin, 1754, according to the stone. Moreover, Meriba Swift had a sister named Lucy and their mother was Rebecca Clark. Meriba named her first daughter Lucy and her only son she named Clark. To all this it may be added that the Stevens and Chamberlin farms in Barnard were near each other and that both families were very closely associated, especially in their church affiliations, and it seems quite probable that the third wife of William Chamberlin was "widow" Meriba (Swift) Stevens.

2. Andrew[2] Stevens (Timothy[1]), b. Roch., June 24, 1731; d. Bd., Apr. 14, 1808; m., int., Roch., Aug. 7, 1754, Marcy Collins, d. Bd., June 1, 1804, ae. 70-8-24.
   Children:

   I. Nathaniel, b. Roch., Mass., Nov. 11, 1754; d. prob. before 1790 and perhaps, Bd.; m. Roch., int., Feb. 21, 1778, Meriba, dau. Thomas and Rebecca (Clark) Swift, b. Roch., Aug. 8, 1754; d. Bd., Mch. 3, 1813, "in her 59th yr." She became the third wife of William Chamberlin of Bd.

3. II. Rev. Andrew, b. Rochester.

4. III. Lemuel.

   IV. Oliver, m. Lucy Hayward. Came to Bd. from Hartland and bought one hundred acres of land of Stephen Pool in Bd., Dec. 27, 1787. They were parents of Oliver Stevens who settled in Roy. next the Bd. line near the Fairbanks-Kenney farm.

The two first children given above are known to have been the sons of Andrew and Marcy Stevens and the two others are supposed to be.

3. Rev. Andrew[3] Stevens (Andrew[2], Timothy[1]), b. Roch., Mass.; d. Bd., Oct. 12, 1840, ae. 75 yrs.; m. Roch., Dec.

STEWARD FAMILY

This was one of the numerous families coming to Barnard from Old Hardwick. Just what time they arrived in town is uncertain. Paige in his History of Hardwick says Elkanah came to Barnard, 1779, but he did not take deeds to lots No. 71 and No. 72 until May 20, 1782 and he was not in Captain Cox's Company of militia at the time of the Indian Raid although his homestead was in the neighborhood from which the other men mustered, being at the Methodist cemetery.

After the death of Elkanah the farm passed to his son, Samuel, who sold lot No. 71, "northerly of Jesse Kenney's" to Gideon Billings on August 18, 1788. Samuel also sold William Switzer an acre and a half of land on July 4, 1790, and in 1807 sold to the Methodist society about two acres of land on which they built their meetinghouse and which they used for a cemetery. This latter sale amounted practically to a gift as Samuel received only $25 for two acres of the best part of his farm. In 1811 the remainder of the farm was sold and Samuel bought the mill on the creek in the Newton neighborhood and the place below the mill. Here he died two years later and the mill and other property passed to the possession of his son, Lyman, who carried on the work and kept a hotel in the two small houses just south of the Silas Newton house.

This family was identified with the Methodist church from the first. John Steward declared himself on September 6, 1798, a member of the third society of Royalton. Moses Steward was a class leader on the Barnard circuit in 1808-11 and Lyman Steward, Jr., held a local preacher's license for a time in his young manhood.

The last descendant of Lyman Steward, Sr., passed from the scenes of earth when his son, Azro B. Steward, died in Barnard in 1907.

Samuel Steward and his father-in-law, Captain Egery, were in Shay's rebellion.

1. Daniel, son James Steward, b. Roch., Mass., July 22, 1697; m. Prudence ——— and removed to Hdwk., Mass. Abt. the time his son, Elkanah, came to Bd. he disappeared from Hdwk. and Paige in his Hist. of Hdwk. thinks he came to Bd. with Elkanah. If that is so he prob. d. in Bd. and was buried on the farm in an unmarked grave in the present Methodist cemetery.

There are many unmarked graves there of the early residents of that vicinity.

Children:

2. I. ELKANAH, b. Hdwk., Mass., Aug. 12, 1737.
II. SAMUEL, b. Hdwk., Oct. 12, 1739. He was a member of Capt. Samuel Robinson's Co. in the French and Indian War and d. in the service in the campaign of 1756.

She was called his cousin but how that was is unknown to the writer. Their last days were on their farm in So. Bd.—the Perkins farm, off the gulf road. Azro conducted various town farms in Windsor Co. before retiring to his own farm. He is said to have owned the farm, stock and tools and have had a couple of thousand dollars in the bank at the time of his death. As he left no issue and was the last of the Steward line the property went to the family living with him in his last days.

V. Mary P., b. Bd.; d. unm., Bd., at the home of her brother, Azro, abt. 1903. Was very eccentric but "smart as a whip." She became a Doweite, lived in Zion City for a time but was later, in her feebleness, sent away by the authorities of the organization and appeared at the home of her bro., unannounced, where she d. of a self-imposed fast which continued for some thirty or forty days. Buried in the Methodist cemetery.

VI. Gardner E., b. Bd., Aug. 20, 1843; d. unm., Madison, Wis., Aug. 20, 1866. He was a dentist.

Mention has been made that the Stewards kept a hotel on the creek. At one time or another there were at least five hotels on the creek road between Barnard and Bethel villages, not counting the places in either village. The Stewards owned the two cottage houses between the Gideon and Silas Newton homes in the little settlement. One of these houses has been made into a barn. The old farm barn stood in the lot to the east of the road surrounded by a high stone wall. The hotel barn was an ample building standing on the bank of the creek, with large open floor onto which the teams might be driven and with ample stall room. The barn has long been gone but the high foundation wall may still be seen.

SWEETSER FAMILY

William Sweetser bought on April 10, 1788, from Benjamin Stebbings the original rights of Richard Emery and William Story. The next year he sold a lot to John Fish. It appears he became the agent of the proprietors of the town looking after their interests and was a resident of the town from abt. the first mentioned date. Several deeds are on record during the years following his arrival in town in which he was given in the signature as "Proprietors clerk." Several of his children were born during these years and were no doubt born in the town although he did not take pains to have their births recorded here. Just how long the family remained in town is uncertain but a stone in the center cemetery records the death of one of the name in 1801. Possibly the family went to Woodstock.

1. WILLIAM, son William and Lydia Sweetser, b. Apr. 9, 1759; d. June 23, 1847; m. 1782, Lucy, dau. Joshua and Keziah (Reed) Danforth, b. Feb. 23, 1759; d. June 14, 1853. William had brothers Benjamin, Oliver and Ephriam Sweetser and sisters Lydia Danforth, Hannah Tuttle, Betsey Hawk, Sally Raddin and Mary Breed who joined in a quitclaim deed in 1816. It is not known that any of the name, save William, came to Barnard. Children:

Miss Mary Sweetser, died Barnard, August 29, 1801, aged 84 years. She is the only one of the name buried in Barnard with probable exception of Henry who has no stone.

The William Sweetser farm was north of Stebbings' and east of William Blackmer's land and probably was the present Fred Allen farm.

SWIFT FAMILY

Few names appeared more frequently on the land records of Barnard up to, say 1792, than the name of Swift. Lemuel Swift of New Braintree, Mass., seems to have been the pioneer but probably did not live here. December 7, 1778, he bought three hundred twenty-four acres in the east part of the town near the Freeman, Cox and Aikens farms. He bought twenty acres on the pond from Jabez Wight, November 7, 1789, and was then given as living in Ware. Without undertaking to trace all his dealings in detail it may be noted that he sold the following farms, having bought other land in addition to that mentioned above. In 1780 he sold one hundred ten acres to James Byram; to Jonas Stevens of New Braintree he sold one hundred acres, August 30, 1783, having sold thirty-five and one-fourth acres to Joseph Bowman, land speculator of Barnard, the previous July; February 16, 1784, he sold seventy-two acres to Mr. Howe and then on various days of May of the same year he sold seventy-five acres to Lemuel Ashley, eighty-four acres to Levi Swift of Barnard, eighty-one acres to Joseph Swift of Barnard; May 15, 1788, he sold to Jabez Wight one hundred acres.

Whitefield Swift was given as of Barnard when he bought one hundred acres, lot No. 136, on October 3, 1780. He bought other land on May 14, 1783. He sold one hundred acres January 17, 1780; four hundred acres, Mch. 10, 1783; a farm to Joshua Crowell of Hardwick next the farm of Shiverick Crowell, October 27, 1783; also seventy-two acres near John Newton's, February 16, 1784; also one hundred fifty acres, January 20, 1780; seventy-five acres to Lemuel Ashley, May 15, 1784; to Levi Swift of Barnard, eighty-four acres, May, 1784; and eighty-one acres to Joseph Swift of Barnard, May 2, 1784.

Thomas Swift of Rochester, Mass., bought two hundred fifty acres, lots No. 81, No. 85 and the one-half of No. 84, in the east part of the town May 6, 1777. He bought lot No. 83, in the same neighborhood, March 1, 1782, and was then given as of Barnard. This pretty nearly fixes the time of his arrival in town. In 1789 he bought lot No. 84. From these various purchases he sold fifty acres to Israel Ball, May 6, 1784; fifty acres to Joseph Swift, Dec. 16, 1788; one acre, and a little over, to Lemuel Ashley, July 6, 1791; and lot No. 81 to Andrew Stevens, July 11, 1777. This was Thomas Swift, Jr., who being of Plymouth had married Rebecca Clark of Plymouth in her home town, October 21, 1746.

THACHER FAMILY

Deacon John O., son of Samuel and Sarah Thacher, married December 14, 1784, Lucy, daughter of John Richmond. They came with their five children to Pomfret and made that their home. Two more children were born to them after their arrival in Pomfret. Their children were John, Zelotes, Cyrus, Moses Gill, Thomas H., Enoch and Amos.

Moses Gill Thacher lived in both Pomfret and Barnard and his children were born in both towns. He was in Barnard in 1848, a subscriber to the building of the village tomb. At least two of his children died in town. There were probably other children in the family not here recorded.

TOPLIFF FAMILY

This family was descended from Clement Topliff who settled in Dorchester, Mass., about 1639. From him and his wife Sarah descended the family who settled in Barnard. From Massachusetts the family drifted to Connecticut. Then James Topliff was an early settler of Hartford, Vt., and from there went to Bridgewater, Vt., and died in 1845 at the age of 85 years.

Samuel Topliff was the Barnard pioneer and lived in the village where the descendants remained for another two generations. Samuel was the son of Calvin and Jerusha (Bicknell) Topliff.

The early members of the Townsend family seem to have been connected with the Congregational church, but in a revival held by the Methodists in town in 1823 the whole family were swept into the Methodist church. It was at a camp meeting that year on the George Cox farm on Broad Brook that Paul Townsend,

Jr., was converted. Although less than seventeen years of age he rested not until the members of his family were brought into the church as well as many of his companions. He was given an exhorter's license the following year and was serving as a class leader. In 1826 he was given a local preacher's license and in 1827 joined the New England Conference and as junior preacher was stationed at Weston, Vt., thus beginning his long and useful career. He was three times Presiding Elder, a delegate to the General Conference in 1844 and 1866. He was a very useful man.

TUCKER FAMILY

Robert Tucker, the Barnard pioneer, bought lot No. 141 on the westerly side of the creek, August 15, 1782. This land was on the side of the Delectable Mountains in the Nye neighborhood.

April 28, 1792, Joshua Tucker bought lot No. 147 which adjoined No. 141. He may have been a brother of Robert but nothing more is known of him.

1. Robert Tucker, m. (1), Bd., Sept. 10, 1789, Anna, dau. Dea. Joseph and Susanna (Roberts) Foster of Bd., d. Bd., Feb. 25, 1808, ae. 42 yrs.; m. (2), Bd., Aug. 3, 1810, Sarah, dau. John and Experience (Gray) Foster of Bd., b. Bd., Apr. 18, 1787. The ch. of Robert Tucker are recorded in two groups in the town book and there is nothing to show whether Sarah Foster m. Robert Tucker, Sr. or Jr. The stronger supposition is that she m. Robert Tucker, Sr., and she is so given here. If this was the case then she was nineteen yrs. younger than her husband, although she was twenty-three when she m. If she m. Robert, Jr., then she would have been five yrs. the senior of her husband. If she m. Robert, Sr., then he was the father of sixteen ch. and past sixty yrs. old when the youngest was b. As to the date of Anna's d. and his second m. there is no conflict. No record of the d. of Robert and Sarah have been found.

Children:

I. Oliver, b. Bd., Dec. 29, 1789; m. Bd., Mch. 14, 1815, Nancy, dau. John and Lydia (Freeman) Newton of Bd., b. Bd., July 5, 1788. It is thought this family went West as no further record can be found after diligent search.

XIV. Emily, b. Bd., Dec. 14, 1821.
XV. Aurora, b. Bd., May 8, 1824.
XVI. Seth Morton, b. Bd., Sept. 6, 1829. He went West and in the Civil War, enlisted as 1st Lieut., Co. B, 10th Kansas Vol. Infantry, July 17, 1861; commissioned Major, 14th Kansas Cavalry, Feb. 8, 1864; mustered out Aug. 19, 1864.

The town records of the birth of Robert's ch. are mutilated and three of the names are entirely gone but the dates of b. are given. In another place the d. of Seth is recorded as son of Robert and Anna Tucker and as he apparently d. unm. he is assigned the last blank space, which would make him just attaining his majority at the time of his d. This would leave Joel, b. 1794 or 1796. Tentatively he is assigned to the former date.

2. John[2] Tucker (Robert[1]), b. Bd., Sept. 3, 1798; d. Bd., May 7, 1874; m. Bd., Betsey H., dau. Ebenezer and Betsey Atwood of Bridg., b. Bridg., Jan. 21, 1800; d. Bd., Nov. 22, 1863. Lived in So. Bd.

TUPPER FAMILY

For much of the following material the writer is indebted to a manuscript history of the family prepared by Mr. Herbert G. Tupper, Springfield, Vt. Mr. Tupper is a lineal descendant of one of the Barnard pioneers and at present a practicing attorney in Springfield. Also much valuable assistance has come from L. E. Tupper, Hiawatha, Kan.

Four Tupper families were early in Barnard. They were Silas, Israel and Jabez, sons of Samuel, and Ellis, son of Prince.

Silas with all his family, married and unmarried, came to Barnard probably about 1784. He was known as "Schoolmaster Tupper." He held various town offices in Sandwich before coming to Barnard. After his arrival in Barnard he became one of the leading citizens of the town and held many town offices. He was town clerk, town treasurer and selectman at various times. He settled on what is now a part of the Silas Tupper farm on the road leading from the old Aikens stand to East Barnard—a place owned recently by J. T. Learie. Portions of the farm were owned by different members of the Tupper family and were in possession of the family until sold in 1869. Silas and his wife, Hannah, are both buried in the Barnard village cemetery. Silas bought 69 acres of Solomon Aikens, June 1, 1784, and with Silas, Jr., 100 acres, No. 25, June 4, 1789.

1. Silas[5] Tupper (Samuel[4], Israel[3], Thomas[2], Thomas[1]), b. Aug. 9, 1727; d. Bd., Mch. 28, 1801; m. June 2, 1757, Hannah, dau. William and Mary (Bodfish) Freeman, b. Sandwich, Mass., Sept. 13, 1728; d. Bd., June 4, 1796. A Rev. soldier, buried in center cemetery.

Children:

Silas Tupper, the Barnard immigrant, had nine brothers and sisters, one of whom was Israel Tupper who brought eight children to Barnard when he came with other members of the family about 1789. According to the census of 1790 he had one son over sixteen, three sons under sixteen and four females in the family. August 3, 1789, William Sweetser conveyed to Israel Tupper of Sandwich the westerly half of lot No. 272 of 50 acres. November 30, 1796, he bought the easterly half of the same lot from the heirs of Jabez Tupper of Sandwich, his brothers, who had bought October 19, 1789. Israel owned this land until shortly before his death when he conveyed it to his son, Edmund. It afterwards became the property of Silas Tupper. There is an old cellar hole on this farm which probably marks the site of Israel's house.

WALCOTT FAMILY

November 12, 1788, William Walcott, Jr., bought twenty-five acres of land in the extreme east part of the town near the east village. This family proved one of the most substantial of the town. On May 19, 1794, William, Jr., was recorded as a member of the Universalist Society of Woodstock but the children and grandchildren of William, if indeed not William himself, became ardent Methodists and a tower of strength for that denomination at East Barnard and at Barnard village. James was an exhorter among the Methodists and his brother, Oliver, left a reputation for good works both in Barnard and in his later home in Lebanon, N. H. Wm. Walcott, Sr., built the first saw mill in East Barnard.

WALKER FAMILY

There were two or more lines of this name in Barnard. The first to come was the family of James Walker of Taunton, Mass. Chauncey Walker family came in from Bridgewater and lived in the south part of the town. Dana B. Walker who was also born in Bridgewater and may have been a brother of Chauncey was in the east part of the town. These last two families were later comers than James Walker.

James, son of James and Deborah (Homes) Walker, was one of several brothers in Taunton. In the autumn of 1815 he came to Barnard with his brother-in-law, Dea. George Townsend, and with him bought a farm west of Fort Defiance and on the south side of the brook. They divided the land and each family built a house. James Walker took the west part of the farm. In March, 1853, he sold his part of the farm to Eliakim F. Paige and moved to Royalton where he lived until March, 1860, when he moved to East Barnard, where he resided until his death in 1865. In 1848 Deacon Townsend sold his part of the original purchase to George Willard Walker, son of James, who lived there until the time of his death.

WARNER FAMILY

About 1807 Apollos Warner with his wife and two small children came from New Braintree, Mass., to Barnard and settled on the side of the Delectable Mountains, not far from the Nyes, relatives of Mrs. Warner. There were ten children by the first wife and eight by the second wife, all, save the two eldest, born in Barnard. Of the children, three of the daughters by the first marriage and one by the second went to Ohio. Two of the sons went to Massachusetts and one son died in Northfield, Vt. The father and his second wife left town about 1827-34. The burial place of the family is the Nye cemetery.

Apollos Warner was reputed to have been a good natured, corpulent individual who was Captain of the famous Barnard artillery company at the time Lafayette visited Barnard. He was always called "Cap'n Pod."

Franklin Warner, a brother of Apollos, was in Barnard where he married Lydia, daughter of David and Phebe (Dean) Clark, November 17, 1818, and later joined the migration to Ware, Mass.

Apollos Warner's family Bible is in the possession of Mrs. Marian (Wildman) Fenner of Cleveland, O., a descendant of Apollos Warner through his daughter Cornelia. The writer is much indebted to her for a careful transcript of the record and to other valuable information concerning the family.

WASHBURN FAMILY

Two Washburn brothers from Hardwick, Sylvanus and Eliphalet, were land owners in Barnard in the early days. It is not certain that the latter ever resided in town and the former was probably here only a few years although his son Stephen remained in town for some years.

Sylvanus Washburn came to Hardwick as early as 1769. He was town clerk for ten years from 1778 to 1787 and assessor for the same time with the exception of 1781. "He was a man of more than ordinary intelligence." He resigned as clerk and assessor on April 2, 1787, and between that date and July 2 of the same year, when his resignation was accepted, he came to Barnard. On July 9, 1787, he bought of Levi Ball 75 acres of land in the Cox neighborhood. He sold this land on April 27, 1792, to John Adams. This was probably the mill lot on Broad Brook where there still is a saw mill. At the time of the sale he was given as of Windsor, Vt. The only record of his children is from the History of Hardwick.

1. SYLVANUS, son Joseph and Deliverance (Orcutt) Washburn, b. Bridg., Mass., 1738; m. (1), prob. Bridg., Mch. 7, 1765, Melicent Richards, d. prob. Bd.; m. (2), after 1788, widow Jerusha (George) Cox, widow of Capt. Benjamin Cox of Bd.
Children:

II. SYLVANUS, b. Hdwk., June 1, 1773.
III. STEPHEN, b. Hdwk., Nov. 28, 1874. In 1800 he was living between the north road and E. Bd.
IV. MELICENT, b. Hdwk., May 10, 1778; d. Hdwk., Oct. 14, 1778.

Eliphalet Washburn, brother of Sylvanus, born Bridgewater, Mass., 1742; died Hardwick, December 14, 1816; married Anna, daughter of Caleb Benjamin, September 19, 1769. On November 3, 1779, he bought of Lot Whitcomb 100 acres of land in Barnard, "lot No. 106 set to John Hedge on the town plan." He sold this land on July 7, 1786, to Thomas Gray of Ware, Mass. It is probable he did not come to Barnard.

II. LUCENA E., b. Bd., Nov. 11, 1879; d. Bd., Sept. 30, 1884.

WHEAT FAMILY

This family came into the vicinity of Barnard rather early but of their history too little is known. They were related to the Belding family on the Creek and the Howard family and had been in Royalton and Bethel before settling in Barnard. The family lived on the second place west of the Prince Haskell farm toward Mt. Hunger. The younger members of the family were known to the writer. Luke Wheat went to Dakota and took up land. He was followed by his sister Mary who also took up land near her brother. She did not marry and was the last survivor of the family. It is thought Elizabeth died in Barnard but her burial place has not been found. As the death records of William and his wife are not found they may have gone to Dakota with their children.

1. THOMAS WHEAT, b. Mch. 27, 1777; d. Bd., Sept. 12, 1863; m. Aug. 14, 1803, Thankful, dau. Moses and Rachel (Hayes) Belding, b. May 14, 1782; bapt. Weathersfield, Sept. 2, 1782; d. Roy., Nov. 26, 1854.

WHEELOCK FAMILY

There were two strains of Wheelock blood which touched Barnard. One was the family of Peter Wheelock who probably came to Barnard as early as 1790, buying land in the northwesterly part of the town on the Royalton line near Asa Paige's. He sold a part of this land to Elisha Freeman, June 7, 1792, and the remainder to Ebenezer Lewis on June 29, 1793. He moved over the town line on to Royalton hill and spent most of his life there. But he was near to Barnard and on account of his deep interest in the first Methodist church which was not far from his home he may well be taken account of as well as that two, or possibly three, of his children were born in town.

1. Peter, son Jonathan and Thankful (Haskell) Wheelock, b. Lancaster, Mass., May 19, 1766; d. Newbury, Sept. 29, 1851; m. June 1, 1786, Sally, dau. Abner and Dorcas (Belding) Graves, b. Swansea, N. H., Nov. 3, 1765; d. Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 16, 1854. Went to live in Newbury with their youngest son, Peter, Jr. The father died there and then the mother went to the West with Peter's family.

Children:

I. Haskell, b. Swansea, Apr. 5, 1787; d. Hartford, Wis., June 6, 1870; m. Roy., Sept. 27, 1809, Lydia, dau. Jesse and Lois (Hatch) Dunham, b. Nov. 1, 1789. Haskell Wheelock was a Methodist minister. He was a local preacher on the Old Barnard Circuit from 1812-22 and a class leader the latter part of that time. In 1822 he was a supply on Bd. Circuit under the Presiding Elder. In 1823 he was admitted to the traveling connection on probation and in 1825 to full membership. He located in 1832 and went to Wis.

II. Jonathan, b. Bd., July 11, 1790; d. Green Bay, Wis., Jan. 12, 1869; m. Bd., Apr. 13, 1815, Lydia Bowman, b. Sept. 19, 1793; d. Feb. 11, 1871. In his m. record Jonathan is given as of Potsdam, N. Y.

III. David, b. Bd., Oct. 3, 1791; d. young.

IV. Ira, b. Bd. or Roy., Nov. 18, 1794; d. Dec. 31, 1817.

V. Sukey, b. Roy., Feb. 3 or 4, 1796; d. Grand de Tour, Ill., Nov. 6, 1886; m. Roy., Jan. 17, 1815, Amos, son Benjamin and Barbara (Lindley) Bosworth, d. before Jan. 16, 1841, when his estate was in probate. They kept the hotel in Roy. village and removed to Ill., 1840. Three ch. b. in Roy.

VI. David, b. Roy., July 3, 1801; d. Roy., June 11, 1874; m. Almina ———, b. Mass., July, 1802; d. Roy., Dec. 16, 1889. Two daus., one of whom m. Rev. David Copeland, Methodist preacher. David Wheelock was an influential Methodist in Roy.

VII. PETER, JR., b. Roy., Oct. 8 or 9, 1802-3; d. Sioux Falls, S. D., Apr. 8, 1880; m. a dau. of Rev. Professor Amasa Buck, b. Lyme, N. H., Mch. 18, 1811; d. Sioux Falls, May 30, 1886. Rev. Amasa Buck was a Methodist preacher stationed at Bd. Circuit as senior preacher in 1827.

The other family, Humphrey Wheelock, Sr., arrived in town much later from Warwick, Mass., and settled in Chateauguay. There is a tradition in the family that they moved into town on a home-made cart and probably the journey was made in 1827-28. This family has still a representative of the name in the town. This family in its earlier generations was identified with the Methodists. Humphrey, Jr., was a leading man among them until he withdrew to avoid a church trial while Amelia C. Luce remained in the communion all her days.

1. HUMPHREY WHEELOCK of Warwick, Mass., d. Bd., Apr. 3, 1892, ae. 95-5; m. Sophia, dau. Samuel and Hannah Lesure, b. Warwick, Mass.; d. Bd., Oct. 3, 1880, ae. 80-3. They settled in Bd. Chateauguay at the Kelley place.

Humphrey, Jr., lived for at least a part of his married life at the head of the lake on the turnpike road and then in the village. He died while on a visit to his daughter in Stoughton. Humphrey Wheelock, Sr., was a shoemaker as well as a farmer. In his family were other children—some of his descendants say there were 15 or 17—no names or dates given and the unaccounted for died young. There were three sets of twins, one of each set dying.

WHITCOMB FAMILY

In the very early days of Barnard no name occurs more often, especially in the land deeds, than the name of Whitcomb. Their dealing in land was in the nature of speculation while Asa Whitcomb was the agent of the proprietors of the town.

Joshua, son of Robert and Joanna (Lawrence) Whitcomb, born November 19, 1734; died before July, 1787; m. Betty Culver and came to Barnard from Rochester, Mass., becoming the first deacon of the Congregational church in town. It is not thought he was the first of his name to come to town.

Asa Whitcomb, more intimately connected with the town than any of the others, sold his farm in Old Hardwick in 1774, taking his pay in Continental money, and came to Woodstock where he was elected selectman that same year. He seems to have resided in Woodstock and Barnard alternately, in Stockbridge, Rochester, and in the West but returned to Barnard and with his wife is buried in the center yard. He was selectman in Woodstock as late as April 4, 1777. The year following he was in Barnard and elected the first selectman in 1778, the first Justice of the Peace the same year, represented the town in the legislature of 1779. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention which met in Windsor, June 4, 1777. He was agent of the proprietors of the town for the sale of their land. Through his activity a large number of his relatives and former neighbors in Old Hardwick settled in Barnard.

While Asa was living in the south part of the town near the Lurvey farm he was visited one day by three men who came in the guise of hunters and asked for food. Asa recognized one of them as a Tory. While they were eating he dampened the powder in the pans of their guns, called to his neighbors that he was besieged by Tories and arming himself with a stout club and stationing himself near the door called on the three men to surrender. This they agreed to do provided they were treated as prisoners of war. Accordingly the three Lurvey men took them under guard to Old Number 4 where Charlestown, N. H., now is. It was suspected these men were out looking for Major Ben Whitcomb, as were the men who came to Barnard at the time of the Indian raid.

Asa Whitcomb went to Ohio in 1806 with his sons John and Anthony. He went on to the present site of St. Louis and back to the home of his children and later returned to Barnard where he died.

The stone erected to his memory in the Barnard center cemetery carries the following inscription copied verbatim ad literatim: "Erected in Memory of Asa Whitcomb Esq. who ended his carea^{r} of usefulness March 31st AD 1812 in the 78th year of his age. He was one of the framers of the Constitution of this state one of the first settlers of this town & a main pill^{ow} of its infant settlement and during the struggle for independen^{ce} was a firm supporter of the cause of his country." A smaller stone standing nearby carries the following inscription: "Here lies my wife life of my life. & children that I'll name & if theyr gone to distant worlds my love to thems the same. Anthony, Asa Barnard, Joanna & Benjamin are in their graves. Wrote by Asa Whitcomb esq. AD. 1809"

Lot Whitcomb, half brother of Asa, was in Barnard early. Thompson's "Vermont" says he came with his family in 1775. He was extensively interested in the sale of land and was a member of the Committee of Safety by which the first town meeting was called in 1778. Perhaps his family did not come until later. Cox says he was in Barnard at the time of the Indian raid and like many others thought Old Hardwick would be a good place to spend the winter so he hastened thither and was in so much of a hurry that he did not look behind him until he ran into the arms of his folks in the ancestral home. Years later he returned by the way of New York and anxiously enquired if there were any bad Indians about. He was a shrewd, calculating fellow who was accustomed to say he thought more of his scalp for a hat than any use the Indians could put it to for a target. He moved to Stockbridge, Vt., where his last days were spent.

Dorcas Whitcomb, sister of Asa and half sister of Lot, became the wife of Solomon Aikens, the Barnard pioneer of that name, and came to Barnard in 1775 with a large family of children.

Asa and Lot Whitcomb (Nathaniel[4], James[3], Robert[2], John[1]) were descended from a family early in New England. Their father and grandfather were coopers. They were born in Rochester, Mass., but removed to Old Hardwick about 1742. Nathaniel held various town offices in Hardwick.

WHITE FAMILY

In September, 1777, Thomas Wells White of Hardwick, Mass., graduate of Harvard, 1759, school teacher, store keeper, town clerk for eight years and assessor for four years, resigned his offices and with his family removed to Barnard where he found many of his former pupils and townsmen. On the organization of the town he was elected the first town clerk, which office he held for several years—until he went West in 1799 to spend his last days in the home of his eldest son, David. His first purchase of land was May 2, 1777, of lot No. 40 on which he made his home probably as long as he remained in town. He owned extensive tracts of land in the town and sold farms to his sons, David and Thomas, as well as to other parties. He and his son, Thomas, were householders in the No. 9 or Morgan school district in 1800. It is probable his children who grew up all went West, except his daughter Theodosha, and that he followed them.

The father of Thomas Wells White was a graduate of Yale, 1730, and was ordained the first pastor of the Congregational church in Hardwick, Mass., in 1736 and died in office in 1784, aged 74 years. Paige in his History of Hardwick speaks of him as "a thoroughly good man but by no means brilliant," while of his wife it was said that "her memory was blessed by all who survived her, as both brilliant and good."

The Franklin White family was late in coming to town. One child is living there (1927) and another married and died there. Much valuable information for this branch of the White family has been furnished by the late Mrs. Frank E. White of Barnard.

Franklin White's parents separated not long after his birth and each remarried and raised a large family. In the Isaac White family by the second wife there were no sons but there were several daughters. Nancy (Sawyer) White, m. (2), Henry George Stickney.

After marriage Franklin White lived a few months in the home of Joseph Bowman on the Gambell place in the north part of Barnard. They then lived in various places in Randolph and Braintree until coming from East Braintree to Barnard on March 13, 1868, to reside on the Deacon Townsend or Haskell tavern stand about a mile and a half north of Barnard village on Pond Brook. Here they made their home until his death, with the exception that the last three winters were spent in the home of his daughter, Mary J., in Springfield, Vt. After his death his widow continued to make her home with the same daughter until her death.

The early advantages of Franklin White and his wife were very limited. They were thrifty and economical, always buying for cash and owning his farm and stock. With his farming he combined basket making.

At some time Mr. White united with the Congregational church and they were always interested in the religious welfare of the neighborhood and the town. Most of his children were identified with the Methodist church but his youngest son was for some years an elder in the First Fruit Harvesters, a small sect located at Rumney, N. H.

The house where the Whites lived in Barnard was built for a tavern by a son of the pioneer, Prince Haskell. The basement of the house opened on the road level and gave easy access to the bar. This was one of the eight taverns on the road between Barnard and Bethel. After the Haskells went West the place came into the possession of Dea. George Townsend and was commonly known by his name.

WIGHT FAMILY

The name Wight often appears in the early land records. The family was from Wrentham, Mass., probably coming from there direct to Barnard, with the exception of Nathaniel who seems to have had a brief sojourn in Westmoreland, N. H., before coming to Barnard when he bought the northerly half of lot No. 37 and the southerly half of lot No. 38 on June 23, 1783. The genealogy of the family says he did not come to town to live until five years later but in this regard it is in error for he had a child born in Barnard, April 20, 1786.

Benoni Wight had died in Wrentham in 1775. His widow Sarah with her four sons and a daughter came to Barnard. It would appear from the land records that Jabez Wight, who remained unmarried all his days, was the first to arrive, buying one-half of lots No. 38 and No. 39, June 5, 1778, adjoining land his brother Nathaniel later bought. October 22 of the same year Jabez bought lots No. 10 and No. 11 and 300 acres more but at the time of the purchase had returned to Wrentham. He came to town to permanently reside some time before May 6, 1780, when he bought lot No. 36 and was given as a resident of the town. He was also in town the fall of that year as we know from the muster roll of Captain Cox's Company which followed the Indians out of town on August 9, 1780. He bought other land in 1788 and 1792 and sold a part of his land to William Cheedle, Benjamin Stebbings and Whitefield Swift. Some of this land was near the pond and their permanent home seemed to have been near the Gifford place but Jabez was living in the upper creek region in 1800.

Jonathan Wight bought 30 acres of land in 1779. In 1780 he bought 560 acres in two parcels and in his further purchase in February, 1783, he is still given as from Wrentham.

Widow Sarah Wight, in the deeds described as a spinster, was in town about 1785, or a little earlier, and owning land at that time. She seems to have been a woman of some means as at one time or another she was possessed of several parcels of land.

David Wight bought two parcels of land in May, 1787, and added 200 acres more, of which lot No. 241 was a part, on July, 1788.

Jabez and Jonathan Wight never married but lived together. The former lost a part of one hand by the explosion of a gun and the latter was the first person in town to have his tax abated. Both saw service in the Revolution.

Of the six original pioneers of this name, widow Sarah, Nathaniel, Jabez, Jonathan, David and Ruth, all doubtless died in town and are doubtless all buried in the center cemetery but only Sarah, Ruth and David have stones to mark their graves.

WILBUR FAMILY

1. Benjamin Wilbur was the Barnard pioneer coming to town about 1779 for on June 28th of that year he was given as living in Barnard when he bought one hundred fifty acres of Joseph Bowman, lot No. 186 and the easterly half of No. 212, which land was near the land of William Freeman and the Royalton town line. He bought other land in 1783 near Andrew Stevens and in the same part of the town. In 1800 he was in the same neighborhood as a householder. His wife was Betsey.

VI. Harriot A., b. Bd., abt. 1827; d. Bd., Nov. 6, 1831.

1. Aaron Wilbur may have been a bro. of Benjamin Wilbur but little more is known of him than the record of his ch. and the fact that he came here between 1778 and 1780, buying land near the Roy. line, June 28, 1779, not far from the farm of Benjamin. His wife was Betsey. In the census of 1790 he had two boys and three girls in the family which would indicate that one was older than his first recorded ch. and prob. d. before the others were recorded.

Children:

WILCOX FAMILY

William Wilcox of Keene, N. H., bought sixty-six acres of land in Barnard from Joseph Byam, June 20, 1787, and sold the same to Elijah Paine of Williston, Vt., Oct. 20, 1788.

Washington Wilcox was a Methodist preacher and stationed on the Barnard circuit as senior preacher in 1833. In 1835 he located and was reported a local preacher on the Barnard circuit in 1836, in which year he went West and joined the Illinois conference and held important positions, as Presiding Elder three times, and died a member of the West Wisconsin Conference.

David Wilcox was a local preacher on the Barnard circuit in 1836 and was recommended that year to join conference. He traveled only a few years.

Dr. Gardner Cox is authority for the statement that Lucinda E., daughter of George and Sarah (Chamberlin) Cox, who died unmarried in Barnard, June 16, 1839, was engaged to marry Rev. Wilcox, a Methodist preacher, but died a few days before the date set for the wedding. He neglected to give the first name of the preacher but as she died in 1839 and Washington Wilcox is in the West in 1836 it may be she was engaged to Rev. David Wilcox.

WILKINS FAMILY

1. Joseph H. Wilkins, m. Jessie A. Parlow, b. Eden.

Children:

III. Son, b. Bd., Jan. 24, 1897.

WILSON FAMILY

William Wilson with his wife and three children came from Connecticut and settled in Pomfret in 1770 according to Thomp-

as children of Benjamin and Lydia Wing and the three marriages are from the same place. The writer does not attempt to harmonize the date of Lydia's death with the birth of her daughter, Lydia, but gives it as recorded.

Lucy Wing of Barnard and John Hammond of Woodstock were married in Barnard, November 10, 1805. As there appears to have been but one Wing family in Barnard it is likely Lucy was an older daughter of Benjamin Wing born before the family saw fit to have the children recorded in the town book.

WINSLOW FAMILY

This name was numerous in Barnard for many years and persisted until the first decade of the present century. Some of the name went to Ware, Mass., in the migration of the Barnardites to that city after 1835 while the family of Loring S. Winslow went to Michigan in the late sixties.

1. EZRA[5] WINSLOW (Hezekiah[4], Richard[3], Job[2], Kenelm[1]), b. Swansea, Mass., May 10, 1751; d. Hdwk., Aug. 12, 1789; m. Rosamond, dau. Thomas and Rebecca (Paddock) Spooner of New London, b. Mch. 21, 1751; d. Bd., Apr. 27, 1829. Ezra was killed by being thrown from his horse. He came to Hdwk., 1776, and to the close of his life was an ardent loyalist. He publicly declared that if God gave him another son he would name him for the king and the result was George Rex, b. 1788. His wife with all her ch. came to Bd. It is not certain that Ezra ever came here. His widow m. Bd., pub. Nov. 26, 1801, Richard Ransom of Woodstock who is spoken of as a Congregational minister and also a business man having interests in Hartford and in South Barnard where he was associated with Abel Babbitt. She was a sister of Alden Spooner who printed the first newspaper at Windsor, Vt.

X. Lucius Bowman, b. Bd., Nov. 8, 1822; m. N. Y. City, Apr. 9, 1868, Mary Ann Crump. Was a spectacle maker in N. Y. City.

Thomas Winslow received a double portion of his father's estate, being the eldest son. Lived in Barnard near the head of the pond on the present turnpike road. He is described as being a little wizened up old man in his old age, weighing less than one hundred pounds. He was present at the demonstration given by Collins Wight in the old Universalist church on the common when the floor gave way and the company were precipitated into the room below. Thomas, who was in the rear of the room, was caught by the seat of his pants on a projecting spike in the edge of the old balcony which did not go down with the rest of the floor which had been more recently erected. He hung there until after the confusion had quieted down and the injured had been removed and then said to some one of the rescuers, "If you will please take me down I will go right home."

3. EZRA[6] WINSLOW (Ezra[5], Hezekiah[4], Richard[3], Job[2], Kenelm[1]), b. Hdwk., Apr. 10, 1782; d. Ware, Mass., Mch. 27, 1857; m. Jan. 1, 1807, Anna Pratt of Rutland, b. Rutland, June 16, 1783; d. Ware, June 26, 1858. Lived in Bd. until 1836 when they went to Ware.

WOOD FAMILY

In the records the name is spelled both Wood and Woods. The latter spelling seems to have been more common in the early days while the former was common in the family of Samuel and his descendants.

There were four families in the town in the early days. Samuel and Darius Wood were sons of Samuel and Abigail Wood of Brookfield, Mass. Paul and Dexter Woods were also here early.

Paul Woods, given as from Windsor, bought one right in the town on August 30, 1785, and probably came to town soon after for he was a resident of the town on November 16, 1787, when he bought lot No. 195 consisting of 100 acres. In the census of 1790 he is given a son of whom there is no record—perhaps died early. In 1800 he was living in No. 9 school district on the upper creek or Chateauguay section of the town.

WRIGHT FAMILY

Not much is definitely known concerning the ancestry of the family. James and Patience Wright were in Old Hardwick and it is supposed they had sons James, Thomas Martin and Silas and a daughter Huldah. But Paige in his History of Hardwick is not at all certain about that.

Thomas Martin Wright, the Barnard pioneer, was a soldier of the Revolution, responding as a corporal to the Lexington alarm and with his brother-in-law Timothy Newton was at the Battle of Bunker Hill. He came to Barnard in the vicinity of 1778-9 and bought land adjoining Timothy Newton's land on the south. This was lot No. 77 of which he sold about one-half, the part east of the creek, to David Belding on March 12, 1804. This land later became again the property of the Wrights and on the homestead representatives of the Wright family continued until the daughters of George Wright left the farm, in the vicinity of 1907.

The Wright log house was built in the extreme south end of the farm in the old orchard lot a little west of the present road. The evidences of a cellar hole can still be seen there. The first frame house was built nearer the creek and on the east side of the present road and is still standing and is the house in which James, Jr., and Henry Wright lived at last and in which James, Jr., died. It would seem as though they began the building of a second house later on the elevation opposite the present brick house. What appeared to be a one-story ell of a frame house was in evidence years ago and was then used as a part of the barn. Perhaps they did not get further than the building of the ell.

Just what time the present brick house was built is not known but likely during the lifetime of James Wright, Sr. The bricks for this house were made on the farm. The brick yard was north of the present barns, the clay being dug in the meadow west of the road and not far from the Newton farm and the sand being had from the creek. The house was built for a hotel and on the second floor was a dance hall. This was one of five hotels between Barnard and Bethel villages, not counting those in either village. The brick kilns were operated by Henry Wright within the recollection of the writer.

Thomas Martin Wright was captured by Indians, August 9, 1780, together with Prince Haskell and Timothy Newton of Barnard and David Stone of Bethel, and carried to Canada. An account of the raid is given elsewhere.

The family were identified with the Congregational church in town and Thomas Martin Wright signed the articles of incorporation of that church in 1802 when it was organized in accordance with the new law and with him signed his brother-in-law, John Newton. The burial place of the Wrights is in the center cemetery at Barnard village.

INDEX TO PERSONS

The following pages contain the names of all persons appearing in Volume I of this work but not every name appearing in Volume II. To locate any name look first under the family genealogies arranged alphabetically, second under miscellaneous names alphabetically arranged near the close of Volume II and then consult the index for other places where the name sought may appear. By following these directions any name appearing in the two volumes can be found.

In examining the genealogical section remember that a Roman numeral other than 1, before a name indicates that the party is more fully treated in a later place under the same family. An * before the name of a woman indicates that her complete record may be found elsewhere under the name of her husband.

Titles have generally been omitted from the text of Volume II and do not at all appear here nor is any distinction made between Jr. and Sr. in the index. Names spelled in more than one way appear here in one form only. Frequently the index carries names with initials or middle or maiden names not appearing in the text. The author has taken the liberty of listing them under the longer form when he is is sure that was the name intended.

Families may be numbered with one or two styles of type. Italic figures opposite the family show that a family of the given name appears in the body of a family of another name. Where two or more names are so given in the body of the work the individuals are not listed separately but under the family name with italic figures. When no Christian name is known a dash is used before the page number.

Since this index is for both Volume I and Volume II the following method has been adopted. Numbers preceded by lower case i are in Volume I and all numbers following until a change is made are in the same volume. Numbers preceded by ii are in Volume II and all following numbers are in the same volume until a change is made.

The reader is referred to the index of places in Volume I appearing at the close of that volume. No attempt has been made to list places in Volume II. Attention is also called to the lists of illustrations in the two volumes.
